Request

Reporter is writing a story about legalization of non-medicinal cannabis in Canada. Looking at B.C. as putting forth fairly liberal laws vs Ont with restrictive laws.

Reporter is hoping she can interview someone who has knowledge of what it took to bring forth these laws, the challenges, possibly someone in the public service. Reporter is wondering, for example, why BC went with mixed retail model?

Background

Recommendation

- The Province is taking a cautious, balanced approach to the federal legalization of non-medical cannabis.
- British Columbia's top priorities are the protection of young people, health and safety, keeping the criminal element out of cannabis and keeping our roads safe.
- It's important to note that B.C.'s new laws are dependent upon the proposed federal legislation coming into force and the date set by the federal government for cannabis legalization will just be the beginning.
- Upon implementation, the Province will continue to monitor the regulations and make any necessary adjustments to ensure provincial goals are being met and local authorities' specific interests and concerns are addressed.

"Mike Farnworth was re-elected as MLA for Port Coquitlam in 2017. He was first elected as MLA for Port Coquitlam-Burke Mountain in 1991, and re-elected in 1996, 2005, 2009 and 2013.

He is the Minister of Public Safety and Solicitor General. Minister Farnworth served as the Official Opposition spokesperson for Justice (Public Safety and Solicitor General), and as the Official Opposition Caucus House Leader. As MLA, he served in numerous cabinet positions, including Minister of Health, and Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing.

Please join me in welcoming Honourable Mike Farnworth."

- Question highlighting the excellent work last summer in partnering with the Provincial government and Red Cross to support wild-fire disaster relief with an open-ended question asking what else we can do together to support relief efforts recognizing the geographic distribution of our members and industry across the province.
