All Day	National Day of Mourning The National Day of Mourning is an annual day of remembrance for workers who have been killed or injured on the job in Canada. The aim of this day is to publicly renew the commitment to fight for the safety of the living, as well as mourn for those workers who have died. On December 28, 1990, the government passed the Workers Mourning Day Act, which established an official day observed every year to commemorate workers injured on the job, killed, disabled, or who suffer from occupational illnesses. This day is also intended to show Canadians' concern for occupational health and safety. April 28 was chosen for this observance, since the first comprehensive Workers' Compensation Act was passed in the province of Ontario. Although it all began in Canada, the Day of Mourning is now commemorated in more than 70 countries worldwide.
