

Summary of Nutritional Analysis of Menu Moderate Activity Men's Menu

February 14, 2005

*Average of 7 days: 5 weekdays & 2 weekend days, randomly selected
Includes 3 meals plus 1 coffee and 1 tea break per day*

Nutrient	Amount Provided by Menu	Recommendation	Comment
Calories	3296 calories	2965	Adequate. These menus provide 11 percent more calories than are required by the average male in custody.
Protein	116 grams	60 grams	More than adequate. Menu provides 193 percent of the recommended protein intake.
Dietary Fibre	34 grams	34 grams	Adequate. Menu meets the new, and higher recommendations for dietary fibre. This assumes intakes of some white bread and some brown bread. Fibre is present in whole grains, legumes, vegetables and fruit (i.e. plant foods).
Fat	121 grams	99 grams or less	High. Provides 22% more than the recommended fat intake. Note that typical Canadian diets are high in fat.
Cholesterol	359 grams	300 g or less	High. Provides 20% more than the maximum recommended cholesterol intake. (No need to increase portions of meat, eggs, dairy and cheese on menus!)
Vitamins	See Bar Graph	See Rec. Daily Nutrients Chart	Menus provide adequate intakes. Note that intakes for vitamin E, a fat soluble vitamin, are below recommended levels; this could be accomplished by changing brand of margarine as Ontario has done.
Minerals: Calcium	1475 mg	1000 mg	Adequate. Note that actual intakes for chromium and molybdenum are higher than shown in analysis, due to analysis database lacking complete data on these nutrients for a few food sources on menu. Chromium is found in whole grains, soyfoods such as TVP, and vegetables.
Iron	26 mg	8 mg
Zinc	15 mg	11 mg

Moderate Activity Men's Menu (cont'd)

Essential Fats			Typical of Current North American Pattern.
Omega-6 fatty acids	13 grams	10 grams	People require 3% of daily caloric intake from omega-6 fatty acids (about 10 grams per day for the caloric level of these menus) and about 0.5% of daily caloric intake from omega-3 fatty acids (about 1.8 grams per day for these menus). Intakes of omega-6 fatty acids are more than adequate.
Omega-3 fatty acids	1.3 grams	1.8 grams	Intakes of omega-3 fatty acids are slightly below recommended intakes. This could be increased by increasing number of times fish is on menus (which apparently inmates don't like) or by using ground flaxseed in baked items as an egg replacer. (1 Tbsp of ground flaxseed plus 3 Tbsp of water can be used to replace 1 egg in baking.)
Distribution of Calories between Protein, Fat and Carbohydrate	14% of Calories from Protein	10-15% of Calories from Protein	Typical of Current North American Pattern.
	32% of Calories from Fat	15-30% of Calories from Fat	These Moderate Activity Men's Menus have been steadily improving gradually, over the years and they continue to improve. Drastic menu changes might have met with more resistance.
	54% of Calories from Carbohydrate	50-75% of Calories from Carbohydrate

Summary of Nutritional Analysis of Menu

Men's High Activity Menu

Average of 7 days: 5 weekdays & 2 weekend days

Includes 3 meals plus 1 coffee and 1 tea break per day

Nutrient	Amount Provided by Menu	Recommendation	Comment
Calories	3731	3662	Adequate. The safety factor in this menu allows 2% more calories than are required by a 160-pound man, and would, for example, meet the requirements of a 190-pound inmate at a similar (high) activity level.
Protein	129 grams	60 grams	More than adequate. Provides about twice the recommended intake of 0.8 grams protein per kg body weight. Endurance athletes may have higher than normal requirements, in the range of 90 grams protein. These menus provide more than enough protein.
Dietary Fiber	38 grams	27 to 40 grams*	Adequate. This assumes intakes of some white bread and some whole wheat bread. Fiber is found in whole grains, legumes, vegetables and fruit.
Fat	151 grams	122 grams or less	High. Provides 24% more than the maximum recommended fat intake. About 20 percent of this fat comes from the allowance of margarine. (Note that this came down from 42% above recommended fat intake on 1998 menus.) Increasing the proportion of Textured Soy Protein (TVP) in certain menu items would help, by cutting fat, saturated fat and cholesterol.
Cholesterol	410 grams	300 mg or less	High. Provides 37% more than the maximum recommended cholesterol intake, (related to higher risk of cancer and of coronary artery disease.)
Vitamins	See Bar Graph	See Rec. Daily Nutrients Chart	Adequate. Note that 75% is generally considered adequate, because recommended levels include a safety margin. Actual intakes for biotin and pantothenic acid are higher than shown in analysis, because analysis database lacks complete data on these nutrients for a few food sources on menu.
Minerals: Calcium	1550 grams	1000 mg	Adequate. Note that 75% is generally considered adequate, because recommended levels include a safety margin. Actual intakes for chromium, copper and molybdenum are higher than shown in analysis, due to analysis database lacking complete data on these nutrients for a few food sources on menu. Chromium is found in whole grains, soyfoods, TVP, vegetables. Copper is found in soyfoods, whole grains, fruits, vegetables, and nuts.
Iron	27 grams	10 mg
Zinc	16 grams	15 mg
Other		See Rec. Daily Nutrients Chart

*Alternative recommendation (World Health Organization) is 15 to 22 grams of fiber per day per 1000 calories, which would mean at least 52 grams fiber for menus at this caloric level.

Essential Fats			Typical of Current North American Pattern.
Omega-6 fatty acids	17 grams	12 grams	People require two essential fatty acids: about 3% of daily caloric intake from omega-6 fatty acids (about 10 grams per day for the caloric level of these menus) and about 0.5% of daily caloric intake from omega-3 fatty acids (about 3 grams per day for these menus). Intakes of omega-6 fatty acids are adequate. Intakes of omega-3 fatty acids are adequate on these menus if tuna sandwiches are given once a week, in addition to the fish dinner that is already on the menu three times a month. Intakes of omega-3 fatty acids could be increased by: -adding 1 Tbsp of ground flaxseed per person to oatmeal or to muffins three times a week, -putting Red River cereal on the menu, or -replacing one additional meat/poultry meal per month with fish.
Omega-3 fatty acids	1.6 grams	2 grams
Distribution of Calories between Protein, Fat and Carbohydrate	14% of Calories from Protein 36% of Calories from Fat 50% of Calories from Carbohydrate	10-15% of Calories from Protein 15-30% of Calories from Fat 50-75% of Calories from Carbohydrate	Typical of Current North American Pattern. A shift of some calories from fatty foods to whole grains would be a health benefit.

Soups

It is important that soups be hearty, and that they include 3 ounces of cooked grains, beans, pasta or potatoes per portion. Use vegetable soup stock.

Vegetarian Option Meals

The vegetarian option meals should provide high protein plant foods such as tofu, tempeh, veggie burgers, meat analog or beans in amounts that are equivalent to amounts of meat in items they replace. Meals such as Vegetable Goulash, Stir Fries, Spaghetti Sauce, and Vegetable Ratatouille can easily incorporate one or other of the following as ingredients, and still be very flavorful and appealing: tofu, tempeh, veggie burgers, veggie wieners, other meat analogs and various beans. (The vegetarian option does achieve this on most days.)

Macaroni and Cheese can include veggie wieners. (Note that cheese is not an iron source, in fact it decreases iron absorption.) However, if certain items, for example Caribbean Veggie Patties or Macaroni and Cheese are very well accepted by inmates, it is not necessary to replace them or to change the recipe, even though they don't contain these protein-and-iron containing ingredients. This is because protein and iron levels are generally high on vegetarian menus.

The Notes on Sandwich Fillings could include a more extensive list of vegetarian sandwich fillings for use at lunch. There are veggie "meat" slices, veggie "chicken" and "turkey" slices, and marinated tofu, in addition to hummus, cheese, egg and peanut butter.

If any vegetarian menu item might have wide appeal among inmates, it could be used as an item on the regular menu. This would improve the somewhat high fat and cholesterol levels on regular menu.
