Hi Matt,

I'm coordinating the drafting of JTI's Annual Service Plan Report for 2011/12 and there are a couple of areas where help from your team would be appreciated if you're able to provide it.

Mainly, we'd be looking for you to draft the messages from the Minister and the MoS, and also to review the full draft at a later stage. The messages would need to be drafted by May 24th. Given that a key function of the report is to highlight the ministry's good work over the past year, a list of key accomplishments (if one exists) or suggestions on what to highlight in the report would also be very helpful.

If you're able to assist with this, please let me know who on your team I should be working with.

How do we proceed once we have copy? Do we send your team the name of who we want to use and you set up the arrangements and then we proceed to work with them?

Can we show them copy before we proceed? I suggest not. Therefore I would suggest we show them the last ad and ask for their thoughts on translating / adapting that to gauge if we want to use them.

Subject: ITF Report

Hi Brian: we are just updating the event plan based on direction from HQ yesterday,, date is now May 9th for event in Victoria.

The report has been desk-topped and we are just reviewing for typos. Exec summary below:

1.0 Executive Summary

As a key element of Canada Starts Here: The BC Jobs Plan, the BC Immigration Task Force was established to review the current economic immigration system and provide recommendations on how to enhance its outcomes. Over the past three months, the Task Force has engaged a broad range of stakeholders across British Columbia in identifying challenges and opportunities pertaining to economic immigration, focusing on how the British Columbia Provincial Nominee Program (BC PNP), the Federal Skilled Worker Program (FSWP), the Canadian Experience Class (CEC) and the Federal Immigrant Investor Program (FIIP) could be better leveraged to respond to labour market and economic development needs.

The Task Force found that the need for economic immigration is growing across the province. Over the next decade, over one million job openings are forecast in BC – given the limited domestic supply, it is estimated that one third of these job openings will need to be filled by migrants from outside BC and Canada. However, the current immigration system is not geared to effectively respond to the needs of communities across the province. Whereas BC is playing a more important role in driving national economic growth, immigration levels to the province have declined sharply over the last five years. Furthermore, some federally-managed economic immigration programs have resulted in immigration flows that are not aligned with regional skills needs.

In the context of the consultations, stakeholders expressed strong support for increases in immigration to fill urgent labour and skills gaps, and sustain business development and competitiveness across BC. Stakeholders challenged governments to manage the immigration system in a manner facilitative of economic development, emphasizing the importance of:

- Immediately increasing immigration levels to BC, with a focus on growth in the BC PNP as the most responsive program to fill regional labour and skills needs across the skills spectrum;
- Ensuring that economic immigration program requirements, application procedures and processing times reflect business realities;
- Capitalizing on BC's attractiveness as a destination of choice for entrepreneurs and investors;
- Providing effective information and supports for clients, especially employers and newcomers.

A detailed overview of the Task Force's findings and recommendations can be found below:

Finding 1: The impact of the aging population and economic development varies across regions and industries in British Columbia. Immigration policies and programs are not sufficiently responsive to ensure competitiveness.

- Recognizing that the province is best positioned to respond to regional and industry needs for international talent, engage British Columbia in setting immigration levels that reflect labour market needs and enable BC to select all economic immigrants to the province (Canada and British Columbia)

Finding 2: Current immigration levels are insufficient to meet British Columbia's needs, and targeted increases in immigration are supported by stakeholders across the province.

- Immediately increase economic immigration levels to British Columbia (Canada)
- Work with New West Partners to engage industry to identify labour and skills needs and set immigration levels based on labour market information (British Columbia)

Finding 3: Lack of awareness and knowledge of immigration program requirements prevents employers from effectively using economic immigration programs to attract foreign workers

- Provide one-stop access to information on economic immigration programs for employers (British Columbia)
- Ensure employers and prospective immigrants have access to timely and meaningful information about the status of their immigration applications and expected timeframe for completion of processing (Canada)
- Collaborate with immigration lawyers, consultants, and organizations that deliver settlement and integration services to improve the accuracy and availability of information on economic immigration programs (British Columbia)

Finding 4: Temporary foreign workers play a key role in filling urgent labour and skills gaps across industries. Yet, processing times are too long and the program is not responsive to business needs.

- For essential job openings that have demonstrated shortages, exempt employers from obtaining a Labour Market Opinion, a federal requirement to confirm Canadians are not available to fill the positions before hiring temporary foreign workers (British Columbia)
- Streamline the Labour Market Opinion application process and reduce processing times to better reflect business needs (Canada)
- Work with New West Partners to support employers in recruiting temporary foreign workers overseas (British Columbia)
- Use sub-provincial information (e.g. regional unemployment rates) in assessing the need for temporary foreign workers (Canada and British Columbia)

Finding 5: Employers and industry support an immediate shift to a demand-driven economic immigration system.

- Immediately increase BC's PNP cap to at least 5,000 in 2012, and 6,500 in 2013, to respond to demonstrated labour and skills shortages across British Columbia's regions (Canada)
- Broaden the BC PNP's Entry-Level and Semi-Skilled Stream to support retention of low-skilled temporary foreign workers who fill permanent roles (British Columbia)
- Increase the number of occupations eligible for the FSWP to better reflect British Columbia's regional and province-wide skills needs (Canada)
- Use the successful BC PNP as a guide in developing a more demand-driven economic immigration system (Canada)
- Work with the Industry Training Authority, trades training organizations and employers to maximize employment opportunities in trades for British Columbians (British Columbia)

Finding 6: Pathways to attract and permanently retain international students need to be expanded to increase the supply of workers, support innovation and allow for a better regional distribution of immigration

- Revise the eligibility criteria for the CEC and BC PNP to allow more international students from authorized institutions to remain in British Columbia after graduation without a job offer (Canada and British Columbia)
- Ensure all international students are aware of the employment services available and the options to become permanent residents upon arrival (Canada and British Columbia)

- Allow all international students from authorized institutions to work in BC during their studies and after graduation (Canada)

Finding 7: Foreign entrepreneurs provide capital and know how to support business development and succession. Not enough is being done to attract and support them, especially in regions outside the Lower Mainland.

- Facilitate business succession planning by marketing regional business opportunities to potential entrepreneurs overseas, and setting up business mentorship programs to maximize their success (British Columbia)
- Explore changes to the requirement for entrepreneurs to operate a business in order to facilitate investment pooling in larger-scale businesses under the BC PNP (Canada and British Columbia)

Finding 8: BC's share of the capital collected through the Federal Immigrant Investor category is not commensurate with the number of investors residing in BC.

- Increase the minimum investment threshold for the FIIP to increase the amount of capital available for BC (Canada)
- Revise the allocation formula for the FIIP to better reflect the settlement patterns of investors within Canada (Canada and British Columbia)
- Establish a selection mechanism that leverages the business know how of investors (Canada)

Finding 9: Settlement and integration services are crucial to the success of immigration programs and the attraction and retention of economic immigrants in regions across BC..

- Ensure effective settlement and integration programs are available in communities across the province (British Columbia)
- Engage industry, local governments, and non-governmental organizations in settling and integrating immigrants, especially in communities outside the Lower Mainland (British Columbia)
- Continue to fund settlement and integration programs commensurate to immigration levels (Canada)

Finding 10: Challenges with recognizing foreign qualifications and work experience by regulators and employers prevent economic immigrants from fully contributing to BC's labour market.

- Establish a review panel to investigate foreign qualification barriers identified through examination of individual assessments in collaboration with regulators in occupations crucial to economic growth (British Columbia)
- Help employers understand and evaluate foreign qualifications and work experience (British Columbia)

Volunteer Activity with BC Parks staff on Sunday, April 15 at Mt. Seymour in North Vancouver

BC Parks staff (Regional director, Brandin Shultz and a park ranger [TBD]) will be leading a group of volunteers to decommission some unauthorized trails in the lower areas of Mt. Seymour. Minister Lake will join them in recognition of their work as BC Parks Volunteers and to celebrate not only National Volunteer Week (April 15-21) but also the launch of www.bcparksvolunteers.ca – a new online volunteer community for BC Parks volunteers.

Korean Hiking Club – About 12 members will be joining us. They range in age from 40-70. They helped build a couple of bridges and they've done some trail maintenance – adopted part of the Elysee Lake Trail. Park rangers really enjoyed working with them.

Their president is: Sang Gee Bae – pronounced Hung Gee Bye (778-866-5435)

They are open to having media cover the event.

Sunday, April 14:

11:30 – BC Parks staff and Korean Hiking Club members meet at the BC Parks Office at 1610 Mt Seymour Road in North Vancouver

11:30 to noon – Safety orientation and volunteers sign waivers

Noon – Minister joins staff and volunteers. Everyone drives to the first site and parks in the Mt. Seymour parking lot.

12-2pm – Decommissioning work on unauthorized trails.

Cheers,

Lauren

Hello Nadine,

I have no written recommendations to make for the Minister's greeting/message although the Minister may need to be aware that whilst beauty pageants continue to draw positive attention, and form part of the aspirations for a diverse group of women who have the freedom to choose to be judged. There is controversy among feminists, the general population, and corporate sponsors.

Conservative cultures and the more conservative among their religious groups view pageants with little enthusiasm. This can be extreme with Muslim pageant contestants receiving death threats in the UK in 2011 and Australia in 2006 for "denigrating the name of Islam".

The Feminist perspective argues that pageants are dehumanizing and suggest all women (especially the contestants) are seen as sexual objects; a view which highlights the issue of 'dignity' a key point in the Canada's adoption of multiculturalism, which "affirmed the value and dignity of all Canadian citizens regardless of their racial or ethnic origins, their language, or their religious affiliation" (Citizenship and Immigration Canada).

Finally those who support pageants argue that many young women who compete in pageants do so to win scholarship money or to be a role model for other young ladies. Many pageant winners do a lot of community work and conduct numerous speaking engagements throughout their reign.

Message from
The Honourable John Yap

Dear Friends,

Best wishes to Miss World Canada on the occasion of its 2012 crowning gala.

The organization's focus on humanitarianism and philanthropy is commendable. Thank you for your work in helping children with special needs and searching for an ambassador of Canada to represent our country on the world stage.

The event is an excellent opportunity to bring together a community that works to inspire hope, enrich lives and build better futures for children in need.

We're proud of all the diverse communities in British Columbia that have always played an important role in the development of our province. B.C. is a truly multicultural province, and our diversity is one of the things that make us strong.

I offer you my best wishes.

Sincerely,

The Honourable John Yap

Hi guys,

Are you going to advise the minister of our recommendation not to proceed with the events and let me know the outcome so I can advise staff to proceed with the distribution?

Attached is the List of MLAs that had requested to be involved. When you open the excel sheet each MLA that wanted to be involved has a tab at the bottom and their spreadsheet lists the organisations that would have got a book. Again, the participants and most of the service agencies had all declined to attend these events. And, the libraries were told in October last year that they were about to receive the books.

Hi Cheekwan,

Hope you had a great weekend. ☺

Just wanted to follow up...is there a decision on if we are going to proceed with the MLA distribution?

Best,

Subject: update on BC People book / MLAs

Hi, all – just an update to let you know that Brian and I are recommending to the Minister's office that we forego this opportunity of a possible event for MLAs to present the BC People Book. However, we'll be waiting for Joel to return (Apr. 10) to get his advice before we proceed with mailing all the books out.

Thanks,
Cheekwan

Can we have the e-mail to stakeholders be from John Yap?
What are the details of the following two activities?

Collate outreach organizations from the MAC	April 16	Lori
Community Outreach to businesses, large stakeholder organizations	April-September	Lori

IDEA: Wondering if we should do an Op Ed on Asian Heritage Month (May) and have the minister push for nominees – this could be short (letter to the editor size) and we could get play in community papers all over BC.
