Thanks. Also wondering about stakeholder validators and engagement plan. Larry was going to send something to us tomorrow. But have you been working on something along these lines as well? Kelly has agreed to be a validator, but I think she probably falls more into AVED's sphere so I'm still looking for a couple of names.

Hi Tim, looks like we may be looking for an alternate location for the announcement/launch. Have calls in to Kelly and s22 to see if they can suggest a possible employer location with quite a few students. Can you think of anything. Southern Island. Thanks.

Hi Tim

The first list (took kit crew) is all good I think..

I'm not sure about some on the other list:

S22

The rest will be good I think (in fact, people like S22 will be great.).

Other supts? - S22

How many are we looking for??

Importance: High

Hi there – We are being asked for a final list of folks to invite to the skills and trades launch on Tuesday. They need to send out invites tomorrow.

This is the current list of potential invitees we have. Can you let us know if this is final? I need to get it up to the MO and then down to HQ by tomorrow am.

Thx

We're limited to folks in the K12 sector (school districts and agencies that work with them, essentially).

This list is what Larry and our team have come up with so far. Jenn and I discussed going broad (all superintendents, etc) but thought inviting the world (such as all superintendents) didn't seem useful. Therefore, last call...

Still on the call – are we reaching out to validators to get a sense of what they are going to say? They want validators to be front and centre and accessible to media at the event.

Also need to give them a brief synopsis of the event. Are all the validators also part of the invited folks on the official invite list?

Thx

Hi there – The MO has approved our validators for the Tuesday event. (See below)The full list is attached. It will essentially act as a long list of validator quotes which will act as a backgrounder for the news release. Jessica will start drafting quotes for the three individuals below. In the meantime, Tim when you reach out to them and give them a run-down of what the event will be like on Tuesday can you ask them if they are okay with having a quote in the news release?
We may have to get their quotes approved quickly.

Thx

BACKGROUNDER

Susannah Pierce, General Manager, LNG Canada -

"LNG Canada appreciates the government's vision and leadership in enhancing skills to employment training in the province. We look forward to continue to partner with the province, First Nations and local communities in skills training in BC."

Greg Kist, President at Pacific NorthWest LNG -

"Pacific NorthWest LNG will require skilled workers for construction and operations of our proposed facility," said Greg Kist, President of Pacific NorthWest LNG. "Time is of the essence, and we're encouraged by the positive and meaningful steps being made by the Province of BC to expedite and enhance access to skills training for British Columbians who want to take part in the generational careers that projects like ours present."

Laurie Sterritt CEO, Aboriginal Mentoring and Training Association (Previously aboriginal Mining Association) -

"This is a very ambitious undertaking for sure, and when fully implemented it will have a positive impact on people's ability to access trades training close to where the jobs are. This goes a long way to reducing some of the barriers we face in delivering training to our Aboriginal clients, as well. I'm supportive of this enhanced and holistic approach to education and apprenticeships."

John Winter President, BC Chambers of Commerce -

"Our members live and work in the communities of BC that are experiencing unprecedented economic change and growth. They want to actively participate in and comment on how to meet their own skilled labour shortages. Expanding the network of ITA Apprenticeship Advisors will be a significant resource for local business. Increasing access to trades training through focused training in communities, e-learning and mobile trainers will increase the likelihood of small company participation in apprenticeship training. This will bring strength to the community and strength to their business."

Jonathan Whitworth, Seaspan -

"With some ramp up time available to meet the impending labour shortages in the shipbuilding industry, we are confident that the new BC Skills for Jobs Blueprint: Re-engineering Education and Training plan will help meet the needs of our industry. We are keen to be involved in working with government, schools and post-secondary institutions to facilitate career awareness and exploration activities that puts a career in the marine industry at the top of youth's career of choice. If we can do that we'll be well set up for the long run."

Ken Tourand, president of Nicola Valley Institute of Technology -

"NVIT is B.C.'s Aboriginal public post-secondary institution with students from over 70 per cent of the 203 First Nations bands in the province. As an Aboriginal institute, NVIT is uniquely positioned to offer post-secondary programs that meet the education and training needs of Aboriginal people and communities, including trades training. Innovation such as our mobile trades training unit is one way that we are able to improve access to trades training by bringing training to Aboriginal students in their home communities, including rural and remote parts of the province.”

Kathy Kinloch, president of British Columbia Institute of Technology -

“The BC Blueprint fits with BCIT’s work towards the social and economic prosperity of our students, businesses and province. Refocusing the industry training system means collaboration and support on the part of all stakeholders. Changes are focused on outcomes that are evidence-based and demand-driven, while ensuring a role for industry and employers, including labour. We can grow our economy with all three pillars – K-12, post-secondary and industry – of the Blueprint working together.”

Paul Lacerte, Executive Director of the of BC Association of Aboriginal Friendship Centres -

“Aboriginal people represent the fastest growing youth population in British Columbia and with the proper supports they are poised to participate in the growing economy. Creating pathways that link Aboriginal youth, training and jobs is a good first step.”

Dave Betts, Asst. Superintendent, Sooke SD #62 -

“We support the goal of ensuring B.C. youth and workers are first in line for the jobs of the future. This plan will help students find their fit earlier and provide an important guide to helping students pursue a seamless education path from school to the workplace.”

Mark Fraser, Asst Superintendent, Saanich SD #63 -

“We want all of our young people to share in the future prosperity of B.C. This new plan will help more young British Columbians find rewarding, well-paying jobs and take advantage of the many thousands of career options that are opening up in the trades and technology fields.”

Kelly Betts, Coordinator of the South Island Partnership, Camosun, President of Skills Canada BC -

“Our students have tremendous potential in B.C.’s growing economy if they are given the opportunity and support they need to thrive. The ‘BC’s Skills for Jobs Blueprint’ is a map to how we will get there— by encouraging more students to take technical training through the ACE-IT program and graduate successfully, as well as building important partnerships between the K-12 school system, post-secondary institutions and industry.”
