Subject: Fall agenda

Hi all:

Today, Premier Christy Clark informed caucus that there will be no fall election and the government will focus this fall on its agenda of jobs, families and open government.

In these serious economic times, British Columbians need a government that will focus on protecting and creating jobs in this province. To accomplish that goal, a stable government with a proven economic track record is a necessity.

As one component to drive economic development and capitalize on the unique advantages that B.C. holds, a fall sitting of the legislature will be called to debate important initiatives and pass a Speech from the Throne that will outline the government's priorities in the months ahead.
