I believe this request came to us yesterday (via the Premier's Office) and we have since referred it to the Minister of Energy and Mines.

Hi CAS,

We are working on an article discussing B.C.'s low carbon and renewable fuel requirements are currently under review in the province.

Here is an op-ed in the Vancouver Sun discussing the review:
<http://www.vancouversun.com/technology/Opinion+clean+fuel+regulation+works/10231994/story.html>

The article is for www.desmog.ca.

Our deadline is immediate. We would like to publish today.

I'm looking for comment on two things:

1. Are B.C.'s current low carbon and renewable fuel quality standards currently under review?
2. Who is pushing for the review? We have sources saying representatives from the province and low carbon fuel providers are in favour of the standards, so does that mean representatives from the oil and gas industry have requested the rules undergo review?
3. What is the timeline for the review?

If you have any additional questions, please don't hesitate to contact me: 1 250 858 1329.

Cheers,
