Premier introduces new Executive Council to keep B.C.'s economy strong for a secure tomorrow

VANCOUVER – Premier Christy Clark introduced her next Executive Council to British Columbians at an event that included citizens from throughout the province.

“This is an exciting moment for British Columbia,” said Premier Clark. “British Columbians have asked us to build a strong economy, a secure tomorrow, and a lasting legacy for generations. We will deliver.”

The Premier’s nominees for the Executive Council will be formally sworn in on Monday, June 10, 2013, at Government House by Her Honour, Lt.-Gov. Judith Guichon. Parliamentary Secretary appointees were also announced today.

“My new team has the experience and the fresh perspectives that government needs, representing all regions of the province and united by a common commitment to work on behalf of every British Columbian,” added Premier Clark. “Together, we have the opportunity and obligation to grow the economy, control spending, and put B.C. firmly on track to a debt-free future.”

Today’s event also celebrated the diversity of British Columbia. In attendance were First Nations leaders, mayors and community leaders, and representatives from the federal government, the business community, labour organizations and non-profit associations. Guests were welcomed by Elder Mary Charles of the Musqueam Nation, led in the singing of ‘O Canada’ by 11-year-old Lisalee Campbell of Clearwater, and entertained by the award-winning Moscrop Secondary school jazz band of Burnaby.

“To remain strong in the face of global economic uncertainty, we will accelerate our jobs plan and run a tight ship,” added Premier Clark. “We will respect families who simply cannot pay higher taxes. We will also respect future generations and not burden them with our debt, so when it’s their turn to lead they can make their own choices.”

Three backgrounders follow.

Ministry of Agriculture

The Ministry of Agriculture supports an innovative, adaptive, globally competitive and socially and environmentally responsible agrifoods sector valued by all British Columbians. The Ministry's support of healthy and safe agrifood and seafood production and post-production processing provides new and value-added products for domestic and international markets, contributing to B.C. jobs and the economy as well as to diversified rural communities. The Ministry champions the agrifoods sector by:

- Supporting practices that promote adaptable, sustainable and competitive agrifoods production;
- Ensuring, in partnership with the Ministry of Health and the Federal Government, a regulatory system that promotes animal and plant health and food safety;
- Delivering programs to stabilize farm incomes when threatened by circumstances beyond farmers' control to ensure continued long-term production;
- Providing guidance and funding to the sector to increase market development;
- Supporting the agricultural industry's contribution to the green economy;
- Working with other ministries, federal partners and other governments, stakeholders and industry to ensure sustainable marine fisheries; and
- Working to balance urban / agricultural interests.

Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation

The Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation is BC's lead agency for reconciling provincial interests with First Nations' Aboriginal and treaty rights, negotiating treaties and other lasting agreements. As an increasing number of agreements have been signed, the focus on implementation of these agreements has become more important. The ministry works with First Nations to improve treaty-making through trilateral tables that deal with policy and process challenges to concluding treaties. The ministry also works with Aboriginal leaders, partner ministries and the federal government to close the gaps in education, health, housing and economic development that separate Aboriginal people from other British Columbians, in order to reach the goals of the Transformative Change Accord and the Métis New Relationship Accord.

Ministry of Environment

The Ministry of Environment provides leadership in ensuring our natural legacy for future generations while supporting positive economic outcomes for BC. The Ministry has responsibility for environmental protection, compliance and enforcement, and BC Parks. This ministry also remains the lead on environmental policy direction such as species at risk and climate action, and is responsible for the Environmental Management Act. The act covers areas such as municipal waste management, contaminated site remediation and clean air provisions. The Ministry provides environmental leadership through developing policy, building knowledge, developing partnerships, encouraging innovation and providing environmental services. Policy development is focussed on water, air, ecosystems and species protection and conservation priorities.

The Environmental Assessment Office which forms part of Ministry of Environment is a neutral office that manages the review of major projects to assess their potential environmental, economic, and social impacts required by the Environmental Assessment Act. The assessment process is also needed to ensure that the issues and concerns of the public, First Nations, interested stakeholders and government agencies are considered.

Ministry of Energy, Mines and Natural Gas

The Ministry of Energy, Mines and Natural Gas is responsible for ensuring the energy needs of British Columbians are being met now and into the future, and for contributing to the economic growth and development of BC communities. The Ministry manages the responsible exploration and development of BC's energy and mining sectors (including electricity, clean or renewable energy such as biomass, biogas, geothermal heat, hydro, solar, ocean, and wind), petroleum and natural gas, minerals, and renewable and low carbon fuels. The Ministry develops and implements BC's policies with regard to electrical power generation and transmission. The ministry has responsibility for B.C.'s electrical power generation and transmission policies, including oversight of BC Hydro and the Columbia Power Corporation.

Ministry of Forests, Lands and Natural Resource Operations

The Ministry of Forests, Lands and Natural Resource Operations supports the sustainable development of forest and land resources and the competitiveness of industries that use them. The ministry aims to deliver better service and better land management to British Columbians. Bringing all provincial natural resource operations together in one ministry allows for more informed decision making when it comes to natural resource uses and the environment. This enhanced understanding of cumulative impacts will fully consider the environmental, social and economic factors of land use. The integrated approach of the ministry is part of a global trend toward combined service distribution in public sector governance structures. Regionally based, this ministry is committed to helping local businesses and citizens succeed in the natural resource sector while creating predictability, encouraging investment and ensuring strong environmental management. As the ministry responsible for making decisions around land use in the province, the ministry considers all factors of resource activity for complete view of the land base. The Ministry works collaboratively with other resource ministries, industry professionals, regulators and federal agencies. Initiatives such as the Environment and Land Use Committee and Natural Resource Board exemplify the shared service delivery the Province is working towards. MINISTRY PROFILE

Ministry: Ministry of Forests, Lands and Natural Resource Operations

Ministry Mandate:

The mandate of the Ministry of Forests, Lands and Natural Resource Operations (FLNRO) is to deliver integrated services and better land management to British Columbians. The ministry oversees a broad land base including natural capital as ecosystem resources, land, water, forests, plant and animal species/habitats and covers in total an area of 94.8 million hectares. Bringing all provincial natural resource operations together in one ministry allows for more informed decision making when it comes to natural resource uses and the environment. The Ministry helps develop our natural resources to ensure jobs and economic prosperity while providing environmental stewardship; this enhanced understanding of cumulative impacts will fully consider the environmental, social and economic factors of land use.

With a long-term vision of economic prosperity and environmental sustainability, FLNRO are the main agency responsible for establishing the conditions for access to and use of the province's natural resources. The Ministry integrates forest and land policy with operational resource management, creating a single land manager for the province's resources. This means more coordination between agencies and organizations, providing a more efficient system to support B.C. workers, businesses, investors and environment. It is a regional approach that allows effective and informed decisions that take into account the needs of the communities and ecosystems directly affected.

The integrated approach of FLNRO is part of a global trend toward combined service distribution in public sector governance structures. Regionally based, this ministry is committed to helping local businesses and citizens succeed in the natural resource sector while creating predictability, encouraging investment and ensuring strong environmental management. Working with stakeholders, the Ministry develops policies, programs and legislation to promote industry competitiveness, and encourage investment in and development of natural resources. It also ensures that ministry activities support sustainable development and protect the public's interest in these resources.

The Ministry has been focusing on reducing backlogs in mining notices of work applications and backlog in land and water authorizations. The Ministry will continue focusing on streamlining permitting processes for those authorizations.

April 2013

FLNRO works collaboratively with other resource ministries, industry professionals, regulators and federal agencies. Initiatives such as the Environment and Land Use Committee (ELUC) and Natural Resource Board (NRB) exemplify the shared service delivered by the Province.

Working together means the operational decisions on the land base match policy development. The Natural Resource Sector ministries (Environment; Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation; Agriculture; Energy Mines and Natural Gas and FLNRO) share service and business planning with clear lines of accountability and shared responsibility. This sectoral approach promotes streamlined authorization processes and enhanced access to public services across the province. It also enhances inclusion of First Nations, economic and environmental considerations into decision making.

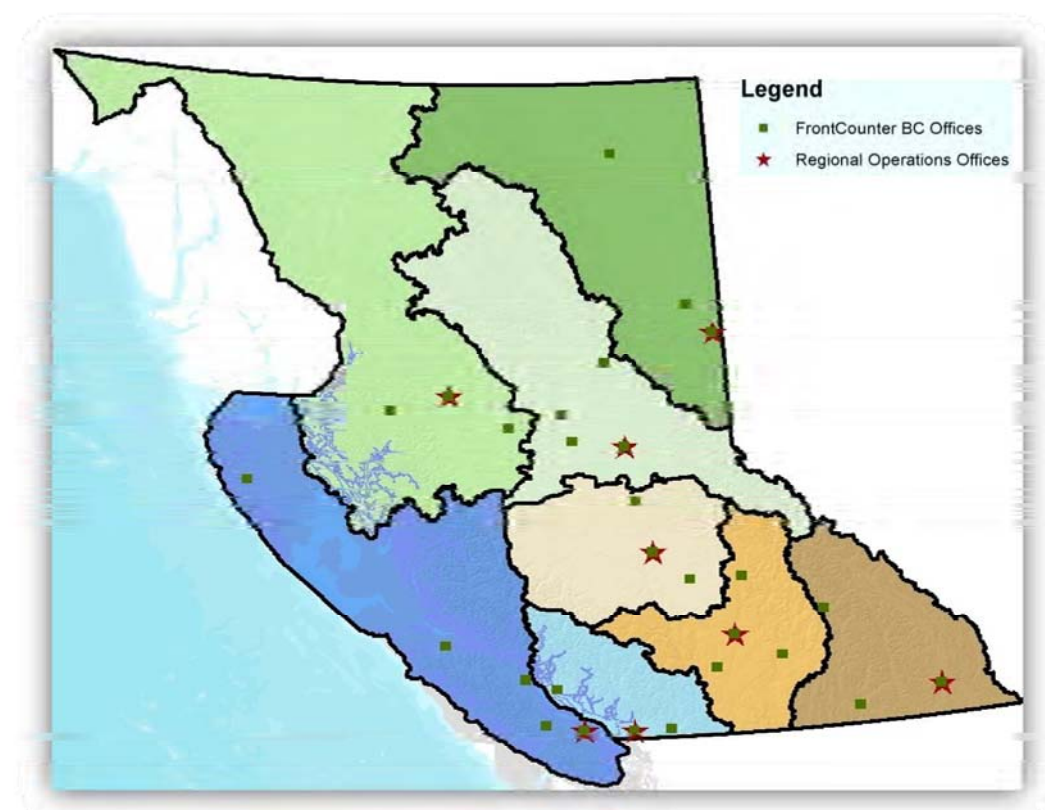

The Ministry's programs and services are delivered through both provincial and regional operations lines with staff located in all regions of the province.

The Ministry has three areas; Coast, South and North, consisting of regions outlined below:

Coast Area – West Coast and South Coast regions

South Area – Thompson/Okanagan, Kootenay/Boundary and Cariboo regions

North Area – Skeena, Omineca and Northeast regions

April 2013

The forest and land areas of the ministry serve as the main agency responsible for establishing the conditions for access to and use of the province's forest and land resources. Approximately 94 per cent of British Columbia's land is publicly owned and managed by the provincial government on behalf of the public.

FLNRO is responsible for forest tenures, pricing and use, and administers the forest tenure and timber measurement, pricing and billing systems. It also develops and maintains log export policies. Through BC Timber Sales, FLNRO auctions crown timber to support the timber pricing system. This includes preparing forest development plans and logging plans; developing timber sale licences, constructing and maintaining logging roads and bridges and ensuring the work of the ministry is carried out in a safe manner.

Laws, policies and practices developed by the Ministry support sustainable natural resource management. The Ministry has programs to invest in silviculture and maintain forest health and it also assesses the effectiveness of resource practices to ensure our natural resource is managed sustainably. FLNRO is also responsible for forest inventory and, through the Chief Forester, determines sustainable rates of harvest.

FLNRO holds the legislative authority for provincial permitting and licensing activities delivered by FrontCounter BC, this "One Process" administration melds numerous single agency processes for issuing authorizations, eliminating overlap and duplication while maintaining environmental standards. These streamlined processes creates predictability in the natural resource sector, better attract global investments and provide the means to turn proposed projects into actual worksites and jobs.

- Why were we created?
- What do we do?
- Who are we?
- How will we work together?
- Where are we going?

Why were we created?

- FLNRO is another step toward integration across the natural resource sector.
- Integration supports strong environmental standards and a greater understanding of cumulative impacts.
- Integration enables robust and durable decision making.
- Continued pressure to operate with fewer human & fiscal resources.

Integration will make our vision a reality

By working as part of an integrated system, ministry staff can shift resources to support changing economic development priorities and support the environmental sustainability of resource use activities.

What do we do?

We're the boots on the ground in almost every community of the province delivering integrated land management services for British Columbians.

We manage and protect the land base ensuring environmental standards are maintained.

We set policies for access and use of the province's forest, land and other natural resources.

We serve the Public

Authorizations

Evidence Informed Decision Support

Policy, Legislation & External Relationships

One Process is a key initiative

- ▶ Permitting is a large focus of what we do as a ministry.
- ▶ One Process is the internal process for issuing those authorizations in an efficient manner.
- ▶ Removes duplication and overlap while maintaining environmental standards.

One Process in action: Mt. Milligan

-Copper gold mine

- ✓ Expected to create 400 permanent jobs over a 15 year mine life.
- ✓ 16 permits were required and handled by one person in government which resulted in:
 - 90% reduction in referral letters (one letter from government to 4 First Nations; rather than 28 letters).
 - 55% reduction in staff time.
 - Consultation timeframe reduced from 320 to 120 days.

Collaboration in action: Environmental Sustainability

Okanagan River Restoration Initiative

Re-naturalizing sections of Okanagan River:

- Increasing flood plain width to reduce flood risk for adjoining property owners.
- Restoring natural channel & riparian features.
- Protecting endangered species (i.e. Tiger Salamander & Screech Owl).

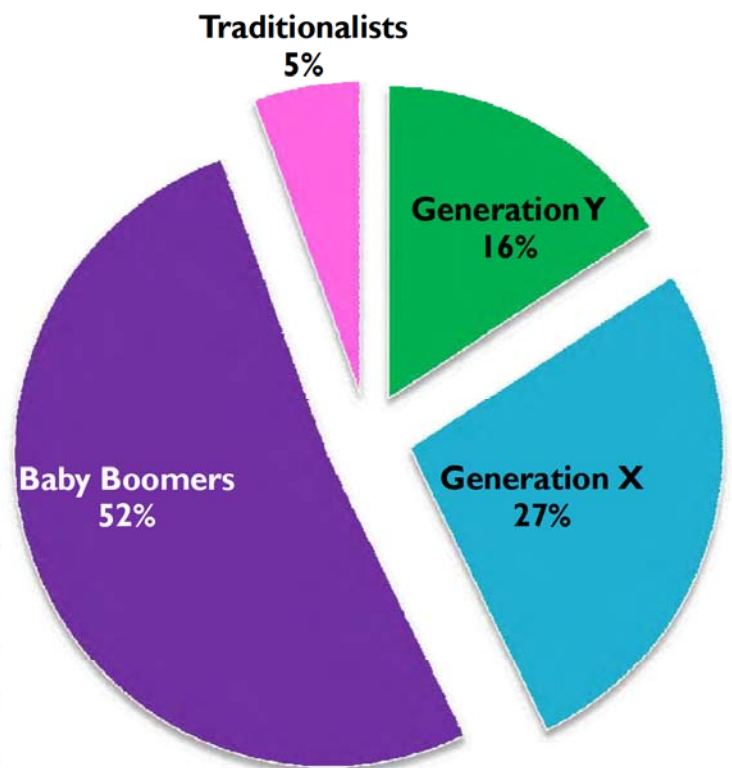

- ✓ Sponsored by an innovative and effective partnership between three main leads:
 - FLNRO
 - Fisheries and Oceans Canada
 - Okanagan Nation Alliance

Who are we?

- ▶ Approx. 3400 regular and auxiliary employees.
- ▶ Plus approx. 600 employees supporting Corporate Services for the Natural Resource Sector (CSNR).
- ▶ Located in 57 BC communities.

Four generations working together!

Generation	Age
Generation Y	34 & under
Generation X	35 to 45
Baby Boomers	46 to 59
Traditionalists	60 & over

Where are our staff?

We are operational

We deliver programs
and services
“on the ground”

How will we work together?

We will be:

- ✓ Innovative
- ✓ Regionally focused
- ✓ Integrated and coordinated
- ✓ Collaborative-with a stakeholder/client focus
- ✓ Able to understand the cumulative effects of multiple resource activities

We are committing to...

- A photograph of three men in outdoor work attire. The man on the left wears a blue and red jacket and a green cap. The man in the center wears a black t-shirt and a green cap. The man on the right wears a red jacket and a black beanie. They are all looking at a document held by the man on the right. The background shows a clear blue sky and distant mountains.
- ✓ being empowered, proud to belong, equipped to do our jobs, and encouraged to learn and grow.
 - ✓ making informed, integrated & durable resource management decisions.
 - ✓ collaborating with our partner agencies and others to achieve government's priorities.

Where are we going?

We will be successful when we...

- ✓ are safe and take care of each other.
- ✓ ensure environmental standards are upheld and environmental sustainability is achieved.
- ✓ provide a fully integrated and efficient authorization framework.
- ✓ improve access to B.C.'s Crown lands to support sustainable economic development.
- ✓ coordinate consultation with stakeholders and First Nations.

and also when we continue to...

- ✓ actively collaborate with others.
- ✓ seek and listen to alternative viewpoints.
- ✓ find ways to learn, grow and adapt.
- ✓ promote a positive, caring work environment.

We innovate

We need to recognize that we (FLNRO) are already the innovation that we seek. We need to realize this and maintain the effort towards further integration and collaboration.

We have been brought together under one ministry banner to work collaboratively and build on our team strengths.

“The conversation” is the relationship.
When the conversation stops... So does the relationship.

"Only those who will risk going too far can possibly find out how far they can go."

— T.S. Eliot

We are good at what we do!

What will it take?

"We have a unique opportunity to make a difference in how natural resources are managed in BC."

...What will it take to move us forward?"
