He can leave whatever he wants and take what he wants (he has to remember though if he takes files and brings them back to the MO, they become FOI-able). If he has files to keep it is best to put them right in his car and take them home or to the CO. I am moderating a CA conference call from 2:00-3:00pm in the Pine Room on the first floor and will come and see Rob right after, although the call may run a bit long. Tell Rob that Gonet at reception will have his boxes. I will go and take them to her now, thanks for your help!

Dear Premier Horgan, Minister Fleming, and Minister James,

My hope for 2018 is that BC's government leaders will finally re-prioritize public education in the February Budget by implementing the Select Standing Committee on Finance's recommendations for K-12 Education (<http://facebc.ca/newyear/recommendations>).

Putting these recommendations into effect will help to ensure that BC will provide quality equitable public education to all BC's children, in 2018 and beyond.

Please consider the many ways in which previous administrations have increased the disparities in both the public and independent school systems. In particular, the rise of Distributed Learning programs is creating a tiered system where children with socio-economic privilege are benefitting from individualized, parent-driven educational programs while those without privilege have less access to educational resources.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Brar,

I am a School Psychologist in the Surrey School District and on a daily basis I work closely with students who have significant learning needs. The recent cuts to Learning Support Teachers are having a disproportionately large impact on the most vulnerable kids we are trying to help.

School is extremely difficult for many students: it has always been difficult and likely will continue to be difficult. These students do not need the added burden of not having enough help with areas of significant struggle.

There are so many examples that speak to the necessity of LSTs. There is a student in one of my schools who is dyslexic. He needs targeted interventions to improve his reading. Without an LST, he will not learn how to read beyond three and four letter words. Another student I worked with has an intellectual disability. Today, she doesn't have an LST. Without this support, she may never learn to count past ten. Examples proliferate.

LSTs contribute immeasurably to student learning. Without them, my assessment results don't matter. I can't do my job in good faith, knowing what these kids needs, given the current government cuts. At a bare, bare minimum, please consider reinstating funding for our learning support teachers.

Sincerely,

Peter McKay

My topic: Advice and observations unrelated to specific 'asks'. I have some deep contacts with people who were involved with public education at senior admin levels who are willing to provide deep background about how the MOE got to the position it is in today. I would like to bring them along for a meeting with Rob.

Unlike some other people who are lobbying, I don't have an axe to grind nor do I have any 'demands'. Just some advice that has stuck to me through a number of years of experience and exposure to others who were more directly involved in education than I was - I was a classroom teachers, after all.

Long story short, I am not planning on pissing in anyone's corn flakes, or expressing shock that 'X' hasn't been done yet by the new government.

Also, there is a level of morale at the school and district level that many people have seen for a long time and some have never seen. Just having Horgan and Fleming at the switch puts more bounce into people's steps these days.

Any help you can provide would be appreciated.

Let me know. My phone numbers: 250-334-1580 and Cell: 250-21806597

Hi there – in looking through this 2017 conference magazine (link at the bottom) the previous government took out a full page ad (pg 4) which we are currently dealing with/responding to in caucus.

They also submitted a letter from the Premier (pg 7) and from Minister of State for Emergency Preparedness (pg 9).

Wanted to make you aware so that if you want to get them a letter from PJH and MMF to contact the person below. If not MMF, we should get a letter from Jennifer Rice, Parliamentary Secretary for Emergency Preparedness.

Dear MLA,

The Fire Prevention Officers Association of B.C. are having their annual Conference, Seminar and trade show, It is being hosted by the City of Richmond Fire

& Rescue Services. Fire Safe is putting together the conference Magazine

These are the men and women who educate our children in the schools and the community in fire safety and prevention.

We are asking for your support once again with an Advertisement in the magazine, It will greatly help us put it together and distribute it to all the delegates attending the conference, as well as mailed out to all the Fire Prevention Officers and the Fire Halls throughout B.C. for free.

We have no outside funding and our only way of support is through your help with an advertisement in the magazine. Here is a link to last year's conference magazine.

The Fire Prevention Officers' Association of British Columbia is proud to announce the 2018 FPOABC 49th Annual Seminar.

From April 30 to May 3 2018, the Fire Prevention Officers Association of British Columbia will be holding its annual Education Seminar, AGM and Trade Show at the Hilton Vancouver Airport in Richmond, BC.

This event will be hosted by the Richmond Fire-Rescue Services. The award winning City of Richmond is a unique island city, favorably located within Metro Vancouver. It is comprised of a series of islands nestled in the mouth of the Fraser River with the coastal mountain range as a backdrop.

This seminar will bring together fire prevention officers and fire and life safety educators from across British Columbia and Alberta for four days of seminars, education, workshops and meetings on major topics concerning fire and life safety in our communities and for our members.

This year promises to be diverse and dynamic, covering sessions in fire investigation, fire inspections and public awareness and education. Along with health and wellness topics for our members, the conference will cover NFPA, ULC and other code compliant topics, exceptional guest speakers and an excellent opportunity to share information.

The 49th annual seminar magazine is produced by FireSafe Communications (FSC) Inc. The magazine will contain the agenda and background information as well as articles of current interest and relevance.

As a non-profit organization, we depend on support from the business community to help offset the costs of a comprehensive seminar agenda. Should you choose to support us, we thank you.

Sincerely,
Gayanne Pacholzuk
President, FPOABC

Thank you for your support!

Hi CAs - John was interviewed about a UBCM resolution about ending daylight savings time where he stated that it wasn't on his radar because he hadn't heard a lot of demand for it. He then invited people to e-mail him if they wanted it. The response has been fairly large, so it will be flagged with his office. I've asked that if a response or action is going to be taken on this issue, that I am notified so I can pass it on to you.

Yes to that. I think MLAs would be pleased. In talking to the Pres of the Vic Labour Council earlier this week, he indicated that he'd spread the word if we do something at the Ledge.

I got this response below from Education Services here at the Building – we could approach them about doing something by the rotunda if we want to do it inside or what about on the front steps? December 6th Ministers are in cabinet and the Govt members have meetings in the caucus in the morning – how about right after those are done? Most will be heading home straight away after that. Not sure what time cabinet is done but I'd say 15 mins afterwards for this vigil/event is the best time.

Hi Susan,

Karen forwarded your email to me for a response as I coordinate the use of grounds process and can access the database.

There was a Day of Remembrance ceremony held here sponsored by government 2004 - 2009.

In 2009 - 2011 there were candle light vigils as part of the National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence Against Women sponsored by CAW Local 114 in 2009, and PSAC BC Victoria Regional Women's Committee in 2010 and 2011. There really hasn't been anything since then.

There has been a request by the Grandmothers Advocacy Network to light up the front fountain and ceremonial entrance in orange Nov 27 to Dec 7, 2016, and this year Nov 25 - Dec 8, 2017, for the UN Orange Campaign, UNiTe to End Violence Against Women, an international campaign against violence to women. This year it will only be Nov 25 - 27 because Christmas Lights Across Canada is Nov 28 and all the Christmas lights will be turned on.

I think that UVic has done something for a number of years.

I hope that helps. Please let me know if you have any other questions.

Thank you

Hi folks –

I know all of us have been working on the Dec 6th event (or lack thereof) and I want to pull us all together. There is a strong interest from many caucus members to attend some kind of event while in Victoria. Given that there does not appear to be an event in Victoria on the 6th, I'm wondering about the possibility of hosting something ourselves. I'm imagining working with a local women's organization and holding a moment of silence inside or outside of the Leg. Thoughts?

Thanks

Province stepping up support for women and children affected by violence

SURREY – Community organizations working to prevent and respond to violence against women and children will receive immediate one-time funding of $5 million to help reduce waitlists and better meet demand for vital services such as counselling, outreach and crisis support.

“Violence against women hurts everyone and has long-term effects on families and our communities,” said Premier John Horgan. “For too long, community organizations helping women affected by violence have not had the resources and support they need, with gaps in service and growing waitlists for counselling and crisis programs. People in crisis should not have to wait for help. Our government is enhancing supports for women and children affected by violence.”

Victim service and violence-against-women programs throughout British Columbia will share $4 million in one-time grants to better address high demand for programs that help women and children affected by domestic abuse and sexualized violence. Another $800,000 will support Inter-Agency Case Assessment Teams of police officers, victim service workers, transition house service providers and others who provide victim safety in high-risk domestic violence cases. The remaining $200,000 will be used to enhance education and prevention programs.

“Many worthy organizations have been stretched beyond capacity for years with static budgets despite their growing caseloads and operating costs, and dozens of service providers telling us they’re ready to give up their contracts next year,” said Minister of Public Safety and Solicitor General Mike Farnworth. “The grants we’re providing are a stepping stone toward greater certainty and stability for the thousands of women and children who rely on them in some of the most frightening, stressful and dangerous times in their lives.”

Two education and awareness programs will share the $200,000 grant. Be More Than a Bystander is an award-winning program delivered to more than 80,000 high school students and youth to date, through a partnership between the Ending Violence Association of B.C. (EVA BC) and the BC Lions. Violence is Preventable is a free, confidential, school-based violence prevention program for children and youth aged three to 18 years.

“For 25 years, the Surrey Women’s Centre, along with all the dedicated women’s organizations around the province, has been tirelessly meeting women where they are to give them the support they need,” said Alison Brewin, interim executive director of the Surrey Women’s Centre. “This funding means we can reach even more women who need us. We can help women not just survive sexual and domestic violence, but thrive.”

“If we’re to end gender-based violence, we need to ensure those harmed by violence have access to immediate support, risk identification and safety planning,” said Tracy Porteous, executive director, EVA BC. “We also need to hold abusers accountable in ways that help them change their behaviour, and teach young people that violence is never acceptable. The additional funding that government has announced will support all three of these important goals.”

“Children and youth who have experienced domestic violence have their own unique needs and often require specialized service. The BC Society of Transition Houses is really pleased to hear that PEACE Programs across B.C. are receiving some additional funding support,” said Joanne Baker, executive director, BC Society of Transition Houses. “We also know how important it is to prevent violence through education and are happy that these funds will also better the Violence is Preventable Program to be delivered in schools throughout the province.”

Quick Facts:

- Today’s announcement, during the international 16 days of activism against gender-based violence (Nov. 25-Dec. 10), represents an immediate investment in services to victims of violence throughout British Columbia.
- It is a step toward government’s commitment to increase annual funding to support women who experience domestic violence, sexual assault and other crimes.
- The Province invests more than $70 million annually in services to support victims of crime, including $16.5 million for violence-against-women programs and $32 million for transition house services. The $5 million of one-time grants announced today is over and above this core, annual funding.
