Dear Rob,

I write as the CEO of the Royal BC Museum. We are about to complete a new book on the 130+ year history of the museum that runs to 500 pages and around a hundred images. It will be called 'The Collectors' and has been written by the great historian Patricia Roy. The idea is that the book hits the shops this fall in time for Christmas. I would very much like to include a picture of Minister James and myself in the book looking at the Douglas Treaties, which were recently added to Canada's National Register of UNESCO Memory of the World or the Citizen's Petition which created the Museum back in 1886.

Would you be kind and ask Minister James whether she would consider having her photograph included in the book and enquire whether I could call on her with the treaties and/or the petition to have a photograph taken with her? Equally I would be happy to tour her personally, her family and staff one morning through the Egypt exhibition if her schedule allows. It is a remarkable exhibition.

My time frame for the photograph would be any time before 6 July.

Apologies if I should have written to a different assistant in her team. Thank you so much for your help in this matter. I know how hugely busy you all are and how the last thing you need is another request!

Yours,
Jack
