Note that all general FOI request records that are released to an applicant should be published on the Open Information website unless the exemption criteria apply. The exemption criteria can be found on page 11 of the Open Information and Open Data Policy. Consultations from outside provincial public bodies are not published on the Open Information website.

Exercise of Discretion:

The Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (FOIPPA) contains both mandatory and discretionary exceptions to disclosure. Sections 13 to 20 are the discretionary exceptions. Where Information Access Operations (IAO) has advised the head that a discretionary exception may apply, it is important that the head consider the possibility of releasing the information despite the fact that an exception may apply.

Factors relevant to the exercise of discretion include:

- the general purposes of the legislation: public bodies should make information available to the public; individuals should have access to personal information about themselves;
- the wording of the discretionary exception and the interests which the section attempts to balance;
- whether the individual's request could be satisfied by severing the record and by providing the applicant with as much information as is reasonably practicable;
- the historical practice of the public body with respect to the release of similar types of documents;
- the nature of the record and the extent to which the document is significant and/or sensitive to the public body;
- whether the disclosure of the information will increase public confidence in the operation of the public body;
- the age of the record;
- whether there is a sympathetic or compelling need to release materials;
- whether previous orders of the Commissioner have ruled that similar types of records or information should or should not be subject to disclosure; and
- when the policy advice exception is claimed, whether the decision to which the advice or recommendations relates has already been made.

Do you have any update on your convo with Mira re: WOMEN DELIVER?

I did have a preliminary convo with CoV communications.

They are doing a CULTURE NIGHT street party next door to the conf venue in Jack Poole Plaza one night. CoV is a participating sponsor. They paid $50k for this level of event sponsorship.

They are having a meeting on January 8th, and will have more information following that.

Hi All,

I hope you're about to, or have already started a nice break. No need to reply to this urgently, but I am trying to put together a calendar for the post budget time, and obviously a major part of that will be the handful of major speeches that the Premier or Minister James will deliver to Chambers and Boards of Trade and other key groups around the province.

How many of those requests are there at the moment? I'd like to have a clear list, and once we confirm which ones the Minister will do and which ones the Premier will do we can see if we need to find other Ministers to do other ones. I'd also like to confirm the dates for the major ones ASAP as I want to build a calendar of other announcements and reannouncements for the post budget weeks.

Let me know, and happy holidays,
Thanks

Dear Mira,

Hope all is well and that you are even perhaps counting the days to the Women Deliver 2019 conference (209 days to be precise)!

I'm writing to confirm that Katja and I along with several colleagues, including Kelli Farr, Conference Manager, will be in Vancouver the week of January 14th. The schedule is still taking shape but we will be meeting with members of the Indigenous Advisory Circle; the great leaders organizing the Indigenous pre-conference; stakeholders in BC who are mobilizing in advance so we can give them a lift and much more. I'll fill you in once details are set.

A very important opportunity is to touch base with the Premier if it is feasible during that week. It would be good to have a face to face meeting to provide an update on how the conference is shaping up. Let me know if this is feasible. I've copied in Masha Devoe who manages Katja Iversen's office and will be supporting the development of this schedule. Let us know your thoughts on key stakeholders we should meet if you have any recommendations. In the meantime, I look forward to hearing from you and to seeing you again early in the new year.

Molly,

It was so great to have you, Parliamentary Secretary Dean and Bowinn Ma meet with some of the families we work with through both our Proud2Be conference and weekly therapeutic groups for parents and youth. I hope you all found the discussions insightful and helpful for your planning. I know the families really appreciated your desire to learn more about their challenges and needs.

In terms of the current programming we offer to support these families, we have the following services available:

Our Be Yourself drop-in group for youth and our Parenting gender-diverse youth drop in group for parents are both free weekly gatherings to provide a safe and welcoming space for LGBTQ2+ youth and parents to connect, share their experiences and resources and build resiliency. These groups are facilitated by Masters-level counsellors and serve not just families from the North Shore, but from other communities across the Lower Mainland as well. There are no other resources of this kind on the North Shore.

Our Proud2Be conference, as you know, is an annual conference we host, in partnership with West Vancouver Youth Services. It has been held for the past five years in October and brings together parents, youth and professionals from across the province to celebrate and strengthen our diverse LGBTQ2S+, gender non-conforming and allied community. It is the only conference of its kind in B.C.

Clinical Counselling support from our Masters-level counsellors to transgender children, youth, adults and their families in our community. In many cases these services are offered at a low-fee or no-cost to ensure low-barrier access to services.

I would love to set up a follow up call with you in early January to discuss your experience at the informal meeting we held with families on December 15th to share their experiences with you. Let me know if January 9th or 10th might work for you, and if so, what a preferred time to reach you might be. In the meantime, please let me know if you have any further questions.

Thank you very much for taking the time out of your busy schedules to meet with us last weekend.

All the best for the holidays,

Michelle

Dear Ms. Dean:

Re: BILL 57 - GENDER-BASED ANALYSIS

I am writing to you in your capacity as the Parliamentary Secretary for Gender Equity on the assumption that role entails ensuring that gender equity is reflected not only in government budgets, policies and programs, but also in the legislation it passes. I must first commend your tireless efforts and interest in the challenges that confront your constituents. What follows is not a criticism of you personally, but a recognition of the flawed milieu in which you are compelled to function; one which has failed to acknowledge the necessity for vigilance in the protection of human rights.

The drafting of Bill 57 and the consultation paper that spurred its production do not appear to have engaged a gender-based analysis. There are many familiar with the practice of family law who believe that the rights and lives of women and children will be negatively affected by this initiative. This letter was undertaken late last week in hopes of urging you, as the Parliamentary Secretary, to declare the need for scrutiny of this legislation from a gender equity perspective, before it progressed. It was surprising to find that a controversial Bill, introduced on November 19, has, despite repeated calls for consultation, already received Royal Assent.

On the morning of November 19th you spoke passionately about the social cost of failing to ensure that women achieve equality. You outlined enhanced support for women and children affected by violence, but by the afternoon session that pledge was seemingly forgotten by your colleagues. Women and children cannot find safety when their interests are ineffectively legally represented and as you know, they are particularly at risk during divorce and separation.

It was incumbent on the government to consider the arguments of those who feel these proposed measures are harmful to the pursuit of equal status for women in society. The Government of British Columbia must act as the guardian of the rights of all citizens, before expanding the privileges of the Law Society of British Columbia. In particular, adding the following section to the Legal Profession Act without the capacity to ensure the protection of the rights of women and children, is an abdication of governmental responsibility.

Licensed paralegals

15.1 The benchers may make rules establishing the scope of practice within the practice of law of licensed paralegals or a class of licensed paralegals.

There are many who believe the above section should have been express in stating that paralegals cannot engage in certain aspects of family law, particularly when constitutional protections of the participants will be engaged. The Attorney General instead has seen fit to ensure legislatively that the lawyers of this province have no say in the scope of practice for alternate legal providers. The practice of family law is not only an exercise in procedural navigation, it requires broad knowledge of current substantive law.

In the course of the practice of law I have witnessed countless examples of gender bias: the categorization of 'major crime' as excluding cases of sexual violence against women and children (cases prosecuted largely by women); the repeated thwarting of an effort to advance a policy that named domestic violence for what it entailed, violence against women perpetrated by their intimate partners; the description of anti-violence organizations as 'special interest groups'; funding cuts to victim based advocacy groups, including VAWIR community coordination committees and sexual assault centres; a pathetically funded system of legal aid for child protection and family law cases and among many other trends, a disturbing opinion on the part of many law students and members of the Bar, that family law is an undesirable area of practice, some expressing it is a domain best left to female practitioners.

That disquieting and persistent attitude has now been formalized, both by the Law Society of BC and this Government. The Attorney General Statute Amendments Act has attacked many in the base of support upon which it relies to retain its authority. It is alarming that BC is engaged in a headlong rush to further disenfranchise those whom this government was expected to defend, particularly those facing unique challenges. What structure will support a paralegal in serving indigenous women or those with special needs stemming from disability or immigration complications who are now served by committed, largely female, family lawyers?

The issues are complex and have been glossed over in debate. Attached please find two submissions to the Law Society Working Group on Alternate Legal Service Providers, which clearly outline significant and pressing concerns. The Alternate Legal Service Provider Working Group consultation paper is also attached for your convenience. You will see, for example, of the stated 70% of people who do not access a family lawyer, there is no assessment of the percentage that are women. In addition, despite the Law Society's concern about retaining women in the practice of law, there is no indication or analysis of how many women that practice family law will be negatively impacted by this initiative.

It is apparent that the interests of women and children are being disregarded yet again in the press to save the justice system the expense and aggravation of dealing with unrepresented litigants and the government the money that would be required for an adequately funded family legal aid system.

The laudable goal of providing 'access to justice' can only be achieved with a proper analysis of the potential impact of these measures on women's lives. I regret that the dismay felt by countless women, after so many years of working toward substantive equality, cannot adequately be conveyed in a letter. I urge you to continue your efforts to contribute to that struggle and to address the hypocrisy which underlies this 'access to justice' initiative. There are many ready to offer their assistance to you in that regard should you choose to rely on them.

Yours sincerely,

Diane I. Turner

Dear s.22

On behalf of Parliamentary Secretary Mitzi Dean, thank you very much for your note. She has asked me to thank you for sharing your story with her.

The Building BC: Women's Transition Housing Fund is an investment of $734 million to build and operate 1,500 new units of housing for women and children leaving violence across the province. So far we have announced 280 new homes in 12 communities across BC, and there will be many more to come.

Thank you again for your message, and for taking the time to write.

Molly

Good morning Mira,

Please find attached a funding proposal for the Women Deliver Mobilization initiative. This proposal is our "ideal" scenario proposal, but we are obviously flexible and determined to ensure that domestic voices are heard and able to participate during the Women Deliver Conference itself.

If you'd like to jump on a call to go over the proposal or if you have any questions, please let me know.

Looking forward to hearing from you

Good afternoon Mira!

As promised I am connecting you with Julie Savard-Shaw, Director of Partnerships for Women Deliver Mobilization. Her and I discussed how we might engage the broader community in the conference. She has developed a proposal for a 'shadow' conference at a nearby venue that would help us facilitate local involvement, provide a stage for announcements, and allow for people to showcase and discuss their work in the health + equity space. A location 7 minutes from the convention centre has already been identified.

As for provincial specific mobilization efforts pre-conference I would love to hop on a call with you around some options related to the three areas of focus identified by the mobilization - health equity, gender based violence, and economic opportunity + development.

Regards,

GG

Hi Melissa,

It was good to connect with you a few moments ago. As you recommended, I pleased to copy Sonja on this note.

Ocean Wise is a global conservation organization headquartered here in BC. We are a parent organization of the Vancouver Aquarium and run a number of research, education and public engagement programs – the Ocean Wise Seafood program, the Great Canadian Shoreline Cleanup, Marine Mammal Research Centre, as well as our Aquavan that travels to remote locations to bring ocean education to schools, youth groups and communities.

We are looking to attend the budget lockup and are hoping that your team could add us to the consideration list, we are hoping for 1-2 spots for our CEO and myself. We are currently in the final stages of our CEO search, I am hoping that our process wraps up over the next few weeks.

I would be delighted to send your way any supporting materials with additional information on Ocean Wise.

Thank you,

Hi Molly

Will you be right downtown? If so I would suggest Mon Petit Choux which is right downtown on Commerical Street.

Thank you.

Hi Molly

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly.

In general, we would love to have a meeting to discuss the work we are doing in the mid-island region and how we might be able to work with or support Ms Dean in her work. It would be myself and our chair Ashwak Sirri who I understand has also sent Ms. Dean an email.

As, well we are planning for our International Women's Day event which we usually have the Sunday before - this year we are hoping to have it on March 3. If Ms. Dean might be available on that day to be part of this event, that would be wonderful.

Thanks again Molly and please let me know if you have any more questions or need any more information.

Subject: RE: Invitation - Urban Land Institute of British Columbia (ULI BC)

Hi Duncan,

Yes, this is all in line with what we had discussed. Minister James will do approximately 10 minutes of introduction, and then would like to hear from ULI members about:

- Their views on BC's housing market outlook
- Feedback on BC's 30-point housing plan
- Current challenges and opportunities for the sector

It will be Minister James and myself attending.

Thanks,
Molly

Hey Molly,

Hope you had a great weekend. I can confirm that ULI BC is pleased to host the Minister at Telus in downtown Vancouver. to recap exact details:

What: Round table discussion with BC Minister of Finance & ULI BC
When: Friday December 14th
Time: 1:00pm-2:00pm
Location: 510 West Georgia, Vancouver – 5th Floor TELUS Garden Executive Boardroom

I have sent invites out to ULI BC leadership and will be inviting some other ULI members today. I will update you on attendees confirmed on both this Friday and Wednesday next week, and will send the final list to you Friday morning, if that works? To recap, the round table will be informal and is meant for lots of discussion, and as such, I will keep total attendees to around 20 people, plus the Minister and you or another staff (unless you're bringing others?).

Finally, it would be helpful if I can give attendees a heads up on any specific topics or subjects areas the Minister would like to speak to, which I can relay to attendees, while also ensuring as moderator I keep us on topic. We certainly want this to be as productive and valuable as possible for both parties. Happy to chat on the phone ahead of time if needed.

Thanks again and looking forward to it.

Regards,

Duncan

Dear Minister James,

My name is Duncan Wlodarczak and I am emailing you in my capacity as Vice-Chair of the Urban Land Institute of British Columbia (ULI BC)

On behalf of ULI British Columbia (ULI BC), we would like to invite you to join us for a roundtable discussion with ULI BC, it's leadership team, and select ULI BC members to share our feedback on a number of recent initiatives your office and government have enacted, and learn how we can work with you and your government to help tackle some of the major urban issues we face.

ULI BC has enjoyed a good working relationship with local governments across British Columbia, and has had positive conversations while hosting your colleague, Minister Selina Robinson. The Government has ambitious goals as it relates to planning and the built environment, transportation, and housing, and we would welcome the opportunity to speak with you on these goals.

To this end, I have enclosed an invitation for your consideration to speak with our organization.

Thank you very much and we look forward to working with you.

Best regards,

Duncan Wlodarczak

Hi Molly,
Staff at TAC have requested an invitation for Sandra Carroll (DM at TAC) to attend this meeting. I think this would be a good idea as this is the Ministry responsible for funding viaSport and could assist on moving things forward following the meeting.
Please let me know if you are ok with this and whether your office will extend the invite or whether I should forward it –

Thanks,
