Hi David,

I understand MOS Cullen will soon be meeting with Oliver Brandes of POLIS. James asked that I pass on some supporting materials, namely our briefing package on the Watershed Security Strategy, as well as the POLIS proposal to government on a Watershed Security Agenda.

Please feel free to reach out if you have any questions.

Cheers,

Dear Minister Conroy and Minister Cullen

I am requesting an opportunity to share recent research and work done by the University of Victoria's POLIS Water Sustainability Project at the Centre for Global Studies.

We have supported the government for many years on water related issues including links to land use planning and in particular around governance and Water Sustainability Act reform. I have personally served the Minister on a number of occasions as an independent expert advisor leading reforms and pilot initiatives.

I draw your attention to the linked document which outlines a comprehensive approach to watershed security. It offers a clear plan that fulfils one of the most important platform commitments and Minister(s) mandates. It was reviewed by a group of senior staff in government (supportive) and leading external experts across sectors including Indigenous partners all with agreement that it strikes a good (ambitious) but possible balance.

This complements a larger project on water and modernized land use planning recently completed. I attach the executive 1-page summary for your interest on this as well (it was released summer 2020).

Sorry about that previous message – hit send to soon 😊. Here's what I meant to say...

Further to our discussion at the ADM Water Forum on March 31, attached please find the latest draft materials on the s.12; s.13. As we noted, our timelines of getting through ADMCNR and ELUC didn't line up with our own meetings, so we're sending these to you by email. If you have any comments on the ELUC materials, please let Ted Zimmerman (Ted.Zimmerman@gov.bc.ca) know directly. We are also happy to meet with you directly to discuss – please let us know and we'll set up a time.

We are also proceeding with these drafts to ADMCNR review. The materials are in process of going to committee and include the draft ELUC submission and PPT deck, and a PPT version formatted per ADMCNR requirements. Pending any comments you may have and ADMCNR discussion and approval, we plan to advance to DMCNR on May 10. Our ELUC date is currently June 7.

Our ADMCNR meeting date is Thursday, April 29th with the ADM Water Forum following the next day on the 30th. We have time on the ADM Water Forum agenda for an update on this work in general. We'll also provide an update on the feedback we received at ADMCNR and any required changes we'll be making to the materials at that time.

If you have any questions, please reach out to Ted to follow up.

Thanks.

I asked Morgan to do a scan of the mandate letters to see what linkages both in and out there are for us. This is attached. As you can see there are a couple where we are leading and many where we are supporting. I will raise on Monday at DMCNR the need for us to share our papers and for others to share their papers with us. In the meantime please work with colleagues in other ministries as appropriate so our discussion on Tuesday is efficient.

Thanks and have a great weekend.
