Flood Forecast Update – 11/12/2021

We are monitoring a strong weather system forecasted to arrive Saturday night/Sunday morning which has the potential to cause significant flooding in our region. Current river predictions have flood elevations increasing significantly Sunday afternoon with flood waters peaking between Monday afternoon through Tuesday morning.

This current system has the potential to cause significant flood impacts including closures of major roadways (Marine Drive, Slater, Hannegan, etc....), overflows at Main Street Everson and inundation at Marietta.

There is a high possibility of sector watches starting as early as Sunday Afternoon or Monday morning. We are requesting that all Sector staff start making plans accordingly. Sector supervisors will meet tomorrow to discuss sector responses and will be following up with you tomorrow afternoon via email and cell phone. As such, please check your county email and keep your county issued cell phones on you and charged.

Subject: Potential Flooding on the Nooksack

We are monitoring an atmospheric river predicted to affect our region Thursday through Saturday. River levels are anticipated to peak Friday then recede through Saturday with all three river gauges approaching minor flood elevations.

The current system is expected to bring freezing levels to approximately

8,000 to 9,000 feet. We currently have low snowpack conditions which are vulnerable when hit by warm storm events like this.

As such, we require all sector staff to have their county issued cell phones charged and ready if things ramp up. We are not anticipating a sector watch at this time but want to make sure staff is aware. I will be following up tomorrow as this storm system arrives.

Current forecast have a second storm arriving on Sunday bringing more precipitation to the region through the middle of next week. We will keep you updated.

Sector Staff

We are planning a Sector 1 – 4 response starting tomorrow night followed by a full Sector 1 - 5 response starting Monday morning. Please report to your sector supervisors and pick up sector boxes (or coordinate a drop off) prior to departing to your assigned sector.

- Sunday Night Shift (9 pm - 5 am) - Sector Supervisor: Christina Schoenfelder (360) 815-1959

- Monday Morning shift (5 am - 1 pm) – Sector Supervisor: Danny Goger (360) 389 - 8304
- Monday Afternoon (1 pm - 9 pm) -Sector Supervisor: Travis Bouma (360) 815 - 3795

The current flood forecast from the National Weather Service have remained steady with river levels increasing tomorrow night prior to cresting Monday / Tuesday. This current system has the potential to cause significant flood impacts including closures of major roadways (Highway 9 in Acme, Marine Drive, Slater, Hannegan, etc....), overflows at Main Street Everson and inundation at Marietta.

We will be giving you updates as things progress.

Here are the most recent river forecast from National Weather Service:

Subject: RE: Update - Potential Flooding on the Nooksack

Flood Forecast Update – 11/12/2021

We are monitoring a strong weather system forecasted to arrive Saturday night/Sunday morning which has the potential to cause significant flooding in our region. Current river predictions have flood elevations increasing significantly Sunday afternoon with flood waters peaking between Monday afternoon through Tuesday morning.

This current system has the potential to cause significant flood impacts including closures of major roadways (Marine Drive, Slater, Hannegan, etc....), overflows at Main Street Everson and inundation at Marietta.

There is a high possibility of sector watches starting as early as Sunday Afternoon or Monday morning. We are requesting that all Sector staff start making plans accordingly. Sector supervisors will meet tomorrow to discuss sector responses and will be following up with you tomorrow afternoon via email and cell phone. As such, please check your county email and keep your county issued cell phones on you and charged.

Subject: Potential Flooding on the Nooksack

We are monitoring an atmospheric river predicted to affect our region Thursday through Saturday. River levels are anticipated to peak Friday then recede through Saturday with all three river gauges approaching minor flood elevations.

The current system is expected to bring freezing levels to approximately

8,000 to 9,000 feet. We currently have low snowpack conditions which are vulnerable when hit by warm storm events like this.

As such, we require all sector staff to have their county issued cell phones charged and ready if things ramp up. We are not anticipating a sector watch at this time but want to make sure staff is aware. I will be following up tomorrow as this storm system arrives.

Current forecast have a second storm arriving on Sunday bringing more precipitation to the region through the middle of next week. We will keep you updated.

The flood is here and we have mobilized our upriver sector observers to monitor conditions in the forks and upper mainstem. At 9 pm we will have more coverage on all sectors of the river.

The NWS predictions for this flood suggest it will be similar in scope to what we saw in February of 2020. We are already seeing flooding of Highway 9 in Acme and expect the river will overtop

Everson Main Street and flow into the overflow corridor towards Sumas later this evening and early tomorrow. All of the roads that typically flood will be impacted including Hannegan and Slater Roads.

The latest hydrographs and a link are below:

Stay safe!

Hi again-

The forecasted peaks are going up and now they are showing a peak stage at Cedarville higher than the 2020 flood, similar to the 2006 flood which was the flood of record for the Cedarville gage. The forecasted peak flow is not quite as high as the estimated flow for the 1990 flood but it is close. We anticipate significant impacts throughout the floodplain including the Everson-Sumas overflow corridor.

The flood is here and we have mobilized our upriver sector observers to monitor conditions in the forks and upper mainstem. At 9 pm we will have more coverage on all sectors of the river.

The NWS predictions for this flood suggest it will be similar in scope to what we saw in February of 2020. We are already seeing flooding of Highway 9 in Acme and expect the river will overtop

Everson Main Street and flow into the overflow corridor towards Sumas later this evening and early tomorrow. All of the roads that typically flood will be impacted including Hannegan and Slater Roads.

The latest hydrographs and a link are below:

Stay safe!

Flood Forecast Update – 11/12/2021

We are monitoring a strong weather system forecasted to arrive Saturday night/Sunday morning which has the potential to cause significant flooding in our region. Current river predictions have flood elevations increasing significantly Sunday afternoon with flood waters peaking between Monday afternoon through Tuesday morning.

This current system has the potential to cause significant flood impacts including closures of major roadways (Marine Drive, Slater, Hannegan, etc....), overflows at Main Street Everson and inundation at Marietta.

There is a high possibility of sector watches starting as early as Sunday Afternoon or Monday morning. We are requesting that all Sector staff start making plans accordingly. Sector supervisors will meet tomorrow to discuss sector responses and will be following up with you tomorrow afternoon via email and cell phone. As such, please check your county email and keep your county issued cell phones on you and charged.

Subject: Potential Flooding on the Nooksack

We are monitoring an atmospheric river predicted to affect our region Thursday through Saturday. River levels are anticipated to peak Friday then recede through Saturday with all three river gauges approaching minor flood elevations.

The current system is expected to bring freezing levels to approximately

8,000 to 9,000 feet. We currently have low snowpack conditions which are vulnerable when hit by warm storm events like this.

As such, we require all sector staff to have their county issued cell phones charged and ready if things ramp up. We are not anticipating a sector watch at this time but want to make sure staff is aware. I will be following up tomorrow as this storm system arrives.

Current forecast have a second storm arriving on Sunday bringing more precipitation to the region through the middle of next week. We will keep you updated.

Sector Staff

We are planning a Sector 1 – 4 response starting tomorrow night followed by a full Sector 1 - 5 response starting Monday morning. Please report to your sector supervisors and pick up sector boxes (or coordinate a drop off) prior to departing to your assigned sector.

- Sunday Night Shift (9 pm - 5 am) - Sector Supervisor: Christina Schoenfelder (360) 815-1959

- Monday Morning shift (5 am - 1 pm) – Sector Supervisor: Danny Goger (360) 389 - 8304
- Monday Afternoon (1 pm - 9 pm) -Sector Supervisor: Travis Bouma (360) 815 - 3795

The current flood forecast from the National Weather Service have remained steady with river levels increasing tomorrow night prior to cresting Monday / Tuesday. This current system has the potential to cause significant flood impacts including closures of major roadways (Highway 9 in Acme, Marine Drive, Slater, Hannegan, etc....), overflows at Main Street Everson and inundation at Marietta.

We will be giving you updates as things progress.

Here are the most recent river forecast from National Weather Service:

Subject: RE: Update - Potential Flooding on the Nooksack

Flood Forecast Update – 11/12/2021

We are monitoring a strong weather system forecasted to arrive Saturday night/Sunday morning which has the potential to cause significant flooding in our region. Current river predictions have flood elevations increasing significantly Sunday afternoon with flood waters peaking between Monday afternoon through Tuesday morning.

This current system has the potential to cause significant flood impacts including closures of major roadways (Marine Drive, Slater, Hannegan, etc....), overflows at Main Street Everson and inundation at Marietta.

There is a high possibility of sector watches starting as early as Sunday Afternoon or Monday morning. We are requesting that all Sector staff start making plans accordingly. Sector supervisors will meet tomorrow to discuss sector responses and will be following up with you tomorrow afternoon via email and cell phone. As such, please check your county email and keep your county issued cell phones on you and charged.

Subject: Potential Flooding on the Nooksack

We are monitoring an atmospheric river predicted to affect our region Thursday through Saturday. River levels are anticipated to peak Friday then recede through Saturday with all three river gauges approaching minor flood elevations.

The current system is expected to bring freezing levels to approximately

8,000 to 9,000 feet. We currently have low snowpack conditions which are vulnerable when hit by warm storm events like this.

As such, we require all sector staff to have their county issued cell phones charged and ready if things ramp up. We are not anticipating a sector watch at this time but want to make sure staff is aware. I will be following up tomorrow as this storm system arrives.

Current forecast have a second storm arriving on Sunday bringing more precipitation to the region through the middle of next week. We will keep you updated.

Hi again-

The forecasted peaks are going up and now they are showing a peak stage at Cedarville higher than the 2020 flood, similar to the 2006 flood which was the flood of record for the Cedarville gage. The forecasted peak flow is not quite as high as the estimated flow for the 1990 flood but it is close. We anticipate significant impacts throughout the floodplain including the Everson-Sumas overflow corridor.
