Hello Katie and Lianne (looping you in as Katie has an out of office alert),

I've recently joined the Strategic Communications Division at GCPE as a Cabinet Priorities Director, and I'm looking forward to working with you.

The premier will be visiting the Global Containment Terminal this Friday June 8th, and we will be preparing his briefing materials. Could you send me any information you have related to the facility, and alert me to potential issues that we should cover? If you can send this on by end of day tomorrow, that would be great.

Many thanks,

Rosa Kouri

We have received the above mentioned order to remove all excess user profiles on your desktop, laptop or tablet with the asset# s.17

By removing the excess user profiles, this will remove any data stored on your desktop, laptop or tablet by the previous user may have forgotten as well as free up space on your device.

We do require the asset to be connected to the network, so that I can remove any additional profiles off your desktop, laptop or tablet.

Please contact me via email or Lync to let me know when the asset has been connected to the network.

Once the asset has been connected to the network the removal of the profiles will not impact your day in anyway.

Subject: Climate Action update

Hi Rosa;

I am assigned to the Climate Action file in our communications shop, and I want to catch you up on the public engagement and communications activities planned for this file, as I understand you have this on your radar. The nutshell version:

- I am working with the Climate Action Secretariat and Citizen Engagement team to post three intentions papers (on Buildings, Transportation, and Clean Growth) on June 25th to the public engagement site (Corporate Calendar entry #ENV-87735).
- A test site is here: <http://test.engage.gov.bc.ca/climateintentionspapers/> but please bear in mind the content is not final yet.
- We will be announcing them via news release and social media posts when they are posted for public comment, for one month.
- Then the feedback will be used to formulate a renewed climate strategy, to be released later in the fall 2018 (via news conference/event).
- Further intentions papers will follow, on communities (i.e. local governments) and carbon neutral government, and other topics to be determined.

I’m happy to answer any questions you have regarding public comms related to this file.

Cheers

Victoria

NEWS RELEASE
B.C. government announces new approach to salmon farm tenures

VICTORIA - The Government of British Columbia will establish rigorous new rules and expectations for the renewal of salmon farm tenures in B.C. waters.

"The challenges facing our wild salmon have been ignored for far too long," said Lana Popham, Minister of Agriculture. "That's why we are putting in place a new approach to provide clarity and outline our expectations moving forward for a sustainable industry that protects wild salmon, embraces reconciliation, and provides good jobs."

The new requirements provide clarity on the salmon farming tenure process, establishing key criteria for tenures past 2022.

"We need to take the necessary steps - steps that should have been taken years ago - to ensure that fish farm operations do not put wild salmon stocks in jeopardy," said Doug Donaldson, Minister of Forests, Lands, Natural Resource Operations and Rural Development. "The thousands of British Columbians who rely on our clean ocean waters for jobs, culture and recreation expect no less".

Effective June 2022, the Province will grant Land Act tenures only to fish farm operators who have satisfied Fisheries and Oceans Canada (DFO) that their operations will not adversely impact wild salmon stocks, and who have negotiated agreements with the First Nation(s) in whose territory they propose to operate.

A key court ruling in 2009 clarified that the federal government has the exclusive jurisdiction for regulating fisheries, including fish farms. "We will look to DFO to bring the best science to determining where and under what conditions open-pen fish farms can operate without threatening wild salmon and other species," said Popham.

The year 2022 aligns with the current renewal date of the substantial majority of fish licences issued by DFO. Operations with expired provincial tenures, or tenures that expire before June 2022, may operate with month-to-month tenures.

In addition to aligning with the expiry date of the majority of federal fish licences, the Province will give notice of the change in expectations to fish farm operators. This will give operators time to adapt their operations to requirements established by DFO, strengthen their relationships with First Nations, and make investment decisions.

The Province and Broughton-area First Nations are continuing discussions, which began Jan. 30, 2018, to resolve concerns regarding specific farms in the Broughton Archipelago. This announcement does not pre-determine the outcome of those discussions.

A backgrounder follows.

BACKGROUND

Finfish farms licensing in British Columbia

Prior to 2010, the Government of British Columbia was responsible for the management of most aspects of the finfish industry, including:

- * licensing and regulating industry, including production, animal health and compliance and enforcement (B.C. Fisheries Act and Aquaculture Regulation)

- * tenuring the seabed (Land Act)

- * regulating waste discharge (Environmental Management Act; Finfish Aquaculture Waste Control Regulation)
- * issuing permits for pesticide use (Integrated Pest Management Act)

The federal role, at that time, focused on assessment of potential impacts of aquaculture on wild fish and fish habitat:

- * fish habitat-impact authorizations (Fisheries Act)
- * introductions and transfers permits (Fisheries Act)
- * environmental assessment screening (Canadian Environmental Assessment Act)

In 2009, a B.C. Supreme Court decision in the case of Morton vs. British Columbia (Agriculture and Lands) determined a fish farming operation was a "fishery" within the meaning of the s. 91 of The Constitution Act, 1867, which gives the Parliament of Canada exclusive legislative authority in relation to "seacoast and inland fisheries".

The Canada-British Columbia agreement on aquaculture management (2010) sets out the responsibilities of both governments with respect to the management and regulation of the aquaculture sector in B.C.:

- * Fisheries and Oceans Canada is responsible for the conservation and protection of fish and fish habitat, and proper management and control of fisheries, including aquaculture.
- * Canada is responsible for collecting data regarding the environmental performance of the industry in B.C. via its licensing activities, and its regular scientific research and monitoring programs.
- * Ministry of Agriculture is B.C.'s lead for seafood industry development and strategic aquaculture policy. The ministry's Plant and Animal Health Laboratory supports Fisheries and Oceans Canada's audit programs.
- * Ministry of Forests, Lands, Natural Resource Operations and Rural Development issues Land Act tenures, authorizing use of Crown land and foreshore
- * Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy issues permits for sewage discharge and pesticide use.

Under the agreement:

- * Canada may issue aquaculture licences under the Fisheries Act for all aquaculture activities to be undertaken in B.C.;
- * B.C. may issue land tenures under the Land Act for aquaculture purposes;
- * Canada and B.C. will make best efforts to harmonize their decision-making criteria and synchronize their decision-making processes.

By 2022, prior to issuing a new tenure or a renewal of a tenure, B.C. will now also require that open-net pen salmon farms demonstrate they have reached agreements with the First Nation(s) in whose traditional territories they intend to operate. There are currently 120 finfish aquaculture tenures in British Columbia.

The fish licences issued by the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO) for 95 of these sites will expire in 2022. The DFO-issued licences for 21 farm sites in the Discovery Islands area are on an annual licensing regime.

The provincial Land Act tenures have expiry dates as follows:

- * 20 will expire in 2018 (17%)
- * Five will expire between 2019 and 2022 (4%)

- * 26 will expire between 2023 and 2030 (26%)
- * 38 will expire between 2031 and 2035 (32%)
- * Five will expire between 2035 and 2046 (4%)
- * 26 are currently on a month-to-month basis (22%)
