Hello All,

The Strategic Plan Annual Report was published on Friday. It can be found here:
http://www.bcbudget.gov.bc.ca/Annual_Reports/2017_2018/Strategic_Plan_Report_2017-18.pdf

Thank you for all of your help with this. It was a true group effort.

It was an arduous process, but I think the outcome is a great document that can be used as a resource for communicators across government.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thank you again,

Danielle

Subject: FOR INPUT AND APPROVAL - Statements and Days of Observance for AUGUST
Attachments: 20180720_WF_STM_FINAL.pdf

Hello Sage,

We have developed a new workflow for PJH statements (see attached). Let me know if this works for you.

One of two steps you will be involved in is taking a look at the month ahead and letting us know if you have any changes to the planed statements. The other step is approval.

Below is a list of:

- 1) Confirmed PJH Statements for August
- 2) Confirmed Minister's Statements (as indicated in the corp cal)
- 3) Other days of recognition to consider for acknowledgement via statement or digital post

Confirmed PJH statements are recommended by me (and Cara) based on precedent and judgement.

Digital post recommendations have been put in by Karl.

Please let us know if you agree/approve of these recommendations, OR if you would like to acknowledge one of the other days of recognition.

Call me if you want to chat about it.

Thank you!
Danielle

Hello,

Attached for your feedback are draft versions of the new Content Guide and the new Speech Guide.

A good deal of this content has been distributed to some shops through workshops with Marie.

Repeated messages and content from the NR and Statement Guide are intentional. We want these to stand alone, and reinforce each other.

These guides will also form the basis of upcoming training sessions with CDs.

Please send any suggested changes you may have by 12 noon on Thursday, in the body of an email if possible.

Thank you,

Danielle

Hi Danielle,

Here are all of the Speeches that I currently have entered in the HUB for publication on the Premiers news.gov page – I have highlighted the dates on them as well showing when they were originally given.

They will go under the speeches tab.

Some of them have photos attached for reference and notes and the photos will be at the top above text when published.

Please let me know if any changes, or if good to go, when would you like these posted?

Thank you,
~Dana

Hi, Sara and Everyone -

Here is your Premier's statement for 8 on Thursday morning.

The only substantive change was the spelling of "camaraderie" - so it's more Canadian.

This will go provincewide, but I've added in the local codes - so the locals do not get missed 'n' miffed.

STATEMENT
Premier's statement on BC Summer Games

VICTORIA - Premier John Horgan has issued the following statement in celebration of the 2018 BC Summer Games:

"Over the next four days, athletes, coaches, volunteers and fans will come together in Cowichan to be part of the 40th BC Summer Games.

"Sport brings people together, helps us overcome barriers and differences, and plays a powerful role in the lives of young people.

"A kid trying a new sport today could be a BC Summer Games champion of the future, and move on to higher levels of competition, like Team BC, Team Canada and beyond. The experience, camaraderie and confidence they build will help them succeed in life.

"Our government is investing in sports so more kids have more opportunities to get involved in lifelong healthy pursuits. This includes delivering $21 million each year for grants to sports organizations around the province.

"We're going to keep working hard to make sure every young person in B.C. has the opportunity to be involved in recreational and competitive sports.

"Congratulations to all participating athletes, and thanks to the coaches, families and volunteers who make the BC Summer Games great. I wish you all fair play, camaraderie and memories that will last a lifetime.

"Good luck, and have fun!"

My apologies. I'm having an issue where the last version I save isn't always saving as final, so my final changes aren't being saved.

Hello,

Attached is the final one-year stump and message guide to be distributed to Cabinet.

Sage, do you want to send these to Cabinet/MOs? If so, I can send to the CDs.

Cara is checking with Finance to confirm what our obligations are with regards to keeping the Strategic Plan Annual Report confidential before it is tabled.

We may need to print and hand-deliver copies to Cabinet. I'll let you know as soon as we hear back.

Thank you,
Danielle

Hello again,

I have an updated package for everyone, plus a proposal for a new approach.

I propose that we share the following with MOs and CDs on Monday, in advance of the on year anniversary.

- 1) Advance copy of the Strategic Plan Annual Report to be released in August.
- 2) Cabinet Stump speech.
- 3) A two page one-year guide that includes top-line messaging and highlights of the government's accomplishments over the past year.

Let me know what you think.

Thank you,
Danielle

Hi Sage,

Here is a proposed calendar/schedule for weekly op-eds throughout the summer and early fall.

Let us know if you have any additions, suggestions, changes.

We should also discuss any other op-ed opportunities you foresee for the summer and fall, which could be pitched to specific outlets on priority topics.

Week of	Topic	Notes
July 9	Agriculture: Eat, Drink, Enjoy -- Buy BC Local this summer	Key actions and announcements govt has made to support agriculture in BC (including Buy BC relaunch)
July 16	Community Benefit Agreements	Building up BC while creating opportunities for people; echo announcement and foreshadow future opportunities for people
July 23	Seniors	Actions govt has taken to support seniors and help them live full, active and healthy lives, in dignity (e.g. housing, health care, affordability, community centres)
July 30	Tourism	This BC Day, get out and explore everything our province has to offer (revisit recent tourism announcements and initiatives, encourage people to get out in their own backyards and BC experiences)

Aug 6	Child care	Reminding readers about our key priorities and commitments on child care, describe our first steps on child care (revisit: 22,000 spaces announcement, ECE spaces/training, $350 child care subsidy uptake/rollout updates; pilot project; helping unlicensed become licensed; foreshadow upcoming child care benefit – Sept.)
Aug 13	Education – K-12	Back-to-school, Phase 1: Revisit govt's actions to date to help students get the attention they need and deserve, safe schools, supporting growing communities, ensuring safe/inclusive learning, getting our kids ready for the future. Tie in with EDUC
Aug 20	Education – Post Sec, Skills Training	Back-to-school, Phase 2: Focused on post-secondary and skills training – revisit: enrolment in ABE/ELL, children in care tuition waiver; new seats in tech, new degree programs; giving people the skills they need to succeed and make BC an even better place to live and work. Tie in with AVED.
Aug 27	Labour Day	Recognize the hard work of working people. Talk about our first steps--repeat key accomplishments and reiterate commitments, foreshadow future activity.
Sep 3	Keeping people moving	TRAN/MAH round-up of major infrastructure, key transit announcements, CBAs, building up our province and our people. Jobs and opportunity.
Sep 10	UBCM – working with communities	Utilize UBCM announcement/speech content.
Sept 17	Tech / emerging economy	Revisit: BC Tech summit; Update on: EETF, IC, other key tech announcements. Foreshadow Cascadia Innovation Corridor Convention (Oct 10)
Sept 24	Economic Development/Climate	Setting out top-level messaging on economic development, climate, how we are acting to address the economic and environmental challenges of tomorrow – today.
Oct 1	Fall Sitting – priority-setting	Set out fall session priorities and broad-brush agenda, as MLAs prepare to return to the Legislature.
Oct 8	Small Business	Small Business Week is Oct. 14 to 20. (national) - this presents a chance to revisit key actions to support small business in BC
Oct 15	Referendum	Inform the public about the forthcoming referendum, encourage them to engage/learn more, vote, have their say.
Oct 22	Housing	Remind readers about our 30-point plan, describe our first steps (revisit key announcements and activity over the last few months on housing – from modular, to partnerships, to affordable housing for seniors, indigenous communities, including metrics, key milestones achieved, progress made.)
Oct 29	Mental Health	Opportunity for an update on our actions to help people living with mental health and addictions

NOTE: in fact checking the total investment with our finance team, we've confirmed that the total 20-year investment is $9.1 billion (reported earlier as $7.6 billion). Wanted to make sure you're aware so Premier's speaking / briefing notes can be updated accordingly. I don't have Sheena's contact information so please kindly pass along to her as well. If she needs any assistance or something comes up tomorrow morning, please have Sheena call me at 778-991-7412.

Many thanks and looking forward to a great event tomorrow!

They currently have "Representative from the Province of British Columbia" as a placeholder.

Hi Danielle,

Thanks for the call. Attached is the media advisory (draft, subject to change) we are looking to put out in advance of the event on Thursday. Right now the plan is to put it out Tuesday morning and do followups first-thing on Thursday to drive attendance. Our question is when can we include Premier Horgan's name on the advisory? Does the PO have stipulations? We have put 'Representative from the Province of British Columbia' on the advisory for now.

If you could check with your communications team, we'd appreciate it.

Hello Trevor,

I'm drafting notes for the Premier for the ground breaking on Thursday.

Joleen forwarded me the background materials you sent. Thank you for providing those.

The Premier's focus will be jobs in B.C. and opening up relationships/deepening ties with partners around the world.

Happy to speak with you about the speaking notes or anything else.

Thank you,
Danielle

Hi Joleen,

Great to connect with you today. We are excited to have the premier join Craig to celebrate the ground breaking of our major construction projects. Attached are the documents we committed to on the call:

- Draft event brief with a rough timing of the event
- Briefing note with the most up-to-date facts and figures about YVR and our operations
- Draft news release for review and to include a quote from the Province

Looking at the speakers, our thought was that it makes the most sense for the premier highlight the importance of YVR's investments in the context of strengthening of ties in the Asia-Pacific region, as well as the creation of jobs for local people. But happy to work with the premier's communications team to refine that, as necessary.

On your end, I believe the takeaways were (let me know if we missed anything):

- Confirm premier's availability for a 15-minute meeting with Craig Richmond either before the event or after
- Confirm possible times for you and the premier's security team to visit the site early next week
- Connect us with the premier's speech-writing team

I have included both Brock and my vCards so you have our full contact information. Thanks for all of your support and look forward to meeting in person next week.

Trevor.

NEWS RELEASE

Premier announces tech and innovation investments to spark economic growth, job creation

VANCOUVER - To help spark B.C. innovation, economic growth and new jobs, the provincial government is investing in tech-based research and advanced training opportunities in all parts of the province, Premier John Horgan announced today at the #BCTECH Summit.

"B.C. succeeds when British Columbians succeed - and our province's tech sector is proving that every day," said Horgan, adding that the sector has over 10,000 companies employing more than 106,000 people.

"Our job is to provide opportunities and partnerships that help companies and individuals innovate, succeed and grow. This approach delivers more jobs and a stronger economy, and helps support health care, education, housing and other public services that make British Columbia a great place to live and work."

The Province announced that it is investing over $102.6 million in funding for 75 post-secondary research projects in B.C., through the B.C. Knowledge Development Fund (BCKDF). The projects will develop B.C.'s expertise and innovation in fields such as advanced supercomputing and clean technology, to spur job creation, talent development and commercialize innovation.

To attract and retain the best graduate students, the B.C. government will invest $12 million in graduate degree scholarships over the next three years. The funding will support priority areas such as science, tech, engineering and mathematics programs, as well as Indigenous students and regional programs. The Province will also invest in women-in-technology scholarships to inspire a new generation of women to take up science and tech-based professions.

To further develop tech talent, $10.5 million will be invested in co-op opportunities and entrepreneurial training for post-secondary students, so they can gain vital hands-on experience to be job-ready when they enter the tech sector.

"B.C.'s success comes from the ideas, innovation and inspiration of people who call this province home," said Bruce Ralston, Minister of Jobs, Trade and Technology. "From a two-person startup, to large established tech firms and traditional resource industries, innovation can deliver a wealth of benefits to people, companies and our provincial economy. It is about creating good jobs for people in every corner of the province."

To help make it easier for tech companies to recruit top international talent to B.C., government will expand its Provincial Nominee Program Tech Pilot. That means priority processing for people in tech occupations, such as biotechnologists, software engineers and web developers.

"Investing in innovation is the best thing we can do to set our province up for success," said Andrew Weaver, BC Green Party leader. "Technology is driving global growth and has the potential to add value to every sector of B.C.'s economy. This minority government is a unique opportunity to come together to champion a bold vision for the future of our province, and I am proud to be working in partnership with the government to support our tech sector."

The B.C. government will unveil a provincewide tech strategy next year that will help provide all people with the ability to work and prosper in the communities they call home. In turn, the Province will invest in health care, education, housing and other public services that make B.C. a great place to live and work.

The Province of British Columbia is hosting the third-annual #BCTECH Summit on May 14-16, 2018, in partnership with Innovate BC, the Province's Crown agency. Innovate BC encourages the development and application of advanced or innovative technologies to meet the needs of B.C. industry.

Quotes:

Melanie Mark, Minister of Advanced Education, Skills and Training -

"To obtain good-paying, 21st-century jobs, people need access to affordable and relevant education and training opportunities. Our investment in 2,900 more tech spaces will give students the creative and technical skills to succeed, while supporting the booming tech sector with more home-grown talent."

Jinny Sims, Minister of Citizens' Services -

"Having access to reliable, high-speed internet is the foundation for the growing digital economy, and essential for the expansion of technology and innovation in every corner of our province. It is important that this growing sector be fostered everywhere in B.C. That is why we are investing in connectivity for rural, remote and Indigenous communities, because we believe that everyone - no matter where they live - should have the tools they need to be part of this important industry."

Quick Facts:

* The tech sector in B.C. is one of the fastest growing sectors of its economy, supporting over 106,000 good-paying jobs. It is home to more than 10,200 businesses.

* Over 83,400 tech-related jobs openings are expected by 2027 - jobs such as computer programmers, engineers, information system analysts and software designers.

* In January 2018, the B.C. government announced 2,900 tech-related spaces that will produce 1,000 additional tech-grads a year by 2023, to improve access to training and education. This includes the first full civil and environmental engineering program in the North at the University of Northern British Columbia, and the first full software engineering program in the Interior at Thompson River University. To support these new spaces, the Ministry of Advanced Education, Skills and Training plans to increase investment up to $42 million a year in ongoing funding.

* In April 2018, the B.C. government partnered with the Government of Canada to provide B.C. biotechnology company Stemcell Technologies with $45 million to create up to 2,170 B.C. jobs by 2031, and build a state-of-the-art manufacturing facility in Burnaby.

* Also in April 2018, the Province, together with the federal government and the Alacrity Foundation, provided the Cleantech Scale-Up program with over $787,000 to help promising clean tech companies throughout B.C. get investment-ready and sell to new markets.

* In February 2018, Alan Winter was appointed B.C.'s first innovation commissioner as an advocate for the tech and innovation sector in Ottawa, the Cascadia Innovation Corridor and abroad.

BACKGROUNDER

Premier announces tech and innovation investments to spark economic growth, job creation

The Government of British Columbia is continuing to support B.C.'s thriving technology and innovation sector to create good jobs, establish B.C. as a preferred location for new and emerging technologies, and attract investment to the province.

The government is working to provide people with opportunities and form partnerships that can help B.C. companies and individuals do what they do best - move ideas from the drawing board to the marketplace. The following investments will develop future talent, support research and innovation, and help B.C. companies better compete globally.

Developing future talent

Graduate student scholarships:

* A $12-million fund for graduate degree scholarships that will support priority areas such as science, tech, engineering and mathematics programs, as well as Indigenous students and regional programs.

* The scholarship fund will support up to 800 awards of $15,000 for students in graduate degree programs over the next three years.

Women in technology scholarships:

* Beginning in 2018, nine scholarships of $10,000 each for women in technology, and one for Indigenous women in technology, will be awarded through the Irving K. Barber Society.

* These awards will inspire a new generation of women to consider science and technology-based professions.

Job training for students and entrepreneurs:

- * $10.5 million to extend the B.C. Tech Co-op Grants program and Innovator Skills Initiative until 2021.
- * Innovate BC will provide B.C. companies with grants so students can develop hands-on skills and gain valuable tech-related work experience.
- * The extension of the programs will help employ thousands of B.C. post-secondary students over the next three years, to supplement their education and make them more job-ready for future tech careers.
- * Employers providing B.C. post-secondary students with entrepreneurial training, skills and experience to learn how to run a successful business can also receive funding.

Supporting innovation

Post-secondary research and innovation infrastructure:

- * Over $102.6 million in B.C. Knowledge Development (BCKDF) funding for 75 post-secondary research projects throughout B.C.
- * BCKDF funding also leverages support from the federal government and other partners, providing B.C. researchers with a total of more than $265.5 million in state-of-the-art equipment.
- * The research projects will develop B.C.'s expertise and innovation in fields such as advanced supercomputing and clean technology, among many others to spur job creation, talent development and commercialize innovation.

Helping B.C. companies compete

Provincial Nominee Program Tech Pilot extension:

- * The Provincial Nominee Program (PNP) Tech Pilot is being extended another year, to make it easier for tech companies to recruit top international talent by implementing weekly tech-only invitations for people working in the most in-demand tech occupations.
- * Priority processing is available for jobs such as computer programmers, interactive media developers and software engineers.
- * The tech pilot is being enhanced by allowing applicants with a tech job offer of one year or more to be eligible, instead of requiring a permanent job offer. This will support tech companies with project-based business models, such as animation and visual effects studios.

Extension of the Interactive Digital Media Tax Credit (IDMTC):

- * The tax credit is being extended by five years to 2023, to continue supporting the thriving interactive augmented and virtual reality sector.
- * The tax credit is available to eligible B.C. companies developing interactive, augmented and virtual reality products for entertainment and commercial use to clarify which products are eligible for the credit.

There is a lot of content. I can edit it down if need be.

It also occurred to me that the PTN would make a good op-ed to go out to locals in the interior.

NEWS RELEASE

Premier announces tech and innovation investments to spark economic growth, job creation

VANCOUVER - To help spark B.C. innovation, economic growth and new jobs, the provincial government is investing in tech-based research and advanced training opportunities in all parts of the province, Premier John Horgan announced today at the #BCTECH Summit.

"B.C. succeeds when British Columbians succeed - and our province's tech sector is proving that every day," said Horgan, adding that the sector has over 10,000 companies employing more than 106,000 people.

"Our job is to provide opportunities and partnerships that help companies and individuals innovate, succeed and grow. That not only delivers more jobs and a stronger economy, but more revenues that can be invested in health care, education, housing and other public services that make British Columbia a great place to live and work."

The Province announced that it is investing over $102.6 million in funding for 75 post-secondary research projects in B.C., through the B.C. Knowledge Development Fund (BCKDF). The projects will develop B.C.'s expertise and innovation in fields such as advanced supercomputing and clean technology, to spur job creation, talent development and commercialize innovation.

To attract and retain the best graduate students, the B.C. government will invest $12 million in graduate degree scholarships over the next three years. The funding will support priority areas such as science, tech, engineering and mathematics programs, as well as Indigenous students and regional programs. The Province will also invest in women-in-technology scholarships to inspire a new generation of women to take up science and tech-based professions.

To further develop tech talent, $10.5 million will be invested in co-op opportunities and entrepreneurial training for post-secondary students, so they can gain vital hands-on experience to be job-ready when they enter the tech sector.

"B.C.'s success comes from the ideas, innovation and inspiration of people who call this province home," said Bruce Ralston, Minister of Jobs, Trade and Technology. "From a two-person startup, to large established tech firms and traditional resource industries, innovation can deliver a wealth of benefits to people, companies and our provincial economy. It is about creating good jobs for people in every corner of the province."

To help make it easier for tech companies to recruit top international talent to B.C., government will expand its Provincial Nominee Program Tech Pilot. That means priority processing for people in tech occupations, such as biotechnologists, software engineers and web developers.

"Investing in innovation is the best thing we can do to set our province up for success," said Andrew Weaver, BC Green Party leader. "Technology is driving global growth and has the potential to add value to every sector of B.C.'s economy. This minority government is a unique opportunity to come together to champion a bold vision for the future of our province, and I am proud to be working in partnership with the government to support our tech sector."

The B.C. government will unveil a provincewide tech strategy next year that will help provide all people with the ability to work and prosper in the communities they call home. In turn, the Province will invest in health care, education, housing and other public services that make B.C. a great place to live and work.

The Province of British Columbia is hosting the third-annual #BCTECH Summit on May 14-16, 2018, in partnership with Innovate BC, the Province's Crown agency. Innovate BC encourages the development and application of advanced or innovative technologies to meet the needs of B.C. industry.

Quotes:

Melanie Mark, Minister of Advanced Education, Skills and Training -

"To obtain good-paying, 21st-century jobs, people need access to affordable and relevant education and training opportunities. Our investment in 2,900 more tech spaces will give students the creative and technical skills to succeed, while supporting the booming tech sector with more home-grown talent."

Jinny Sims, Minister of Citizens' Services -

"Having access to reliable, high-speed internet is the foundation for the growing digital economy, and essential for the expansion of technology and innovation in every corner of our province. It is important that this growing sector be fostered everywhere in B.C. That is why we are investing in connectivity for rural, remote and Indigenous communities, because we believe that everyone - no matter where they live - should have the tools they need to be part of this important industry."

Quick Facts:

* The tech sector in B.C. is one of the fastest growing sectors of its economy, supporting over 106,000 good-paying jobs. It is home to more than 10,200 businesses.

* Over 83,400 tech-related jobs openings are expected by 2027 - jobs such as computer programmers, engineers, information system analysts and software designers.

* In January 2018, the B.C. government announced 2,900 tech-related spaces that will produce 1,000 additional tech-grads a year by 2023, to improve access to training and education. This includes the first full civil and environmental engineering program in the North at the University of Northern British Columbia, and the first full software engineering program in the Interior at Thompson River University. To support these new spaces, the Ministry of Advanced Education, Skills and Training plans to increase investment up to $42 million a year in ongoing funding.

* In April 2018, the B.C. government partnered with the Government of Canada to provide B.C. biotechnology company Stemcell Technologies with $45 million to create up to 2,170 B.C. jobs by 2031, and build a state-of-the-art manufacturing facility in Burnaby.

* Also in April 2018, the Province, together with the federal government and the Alacrity Foundation, provided the Cleantech Scale-Up program with over $787,000 to help promising clean tech companies throughout B.C. get investment-ready and sell to new markets.

* In February 2018, Alan Winter was appointed B.C.'s first innovation commissioner as an advocate for the tech and innovation sector in Ottawa, the Cascadia Innovation Corridor and abroad.

BACKGROUNDER

Premier announces tech and innovation investments to spark economic growth, job creation

The Government of British Columbia is continuing to support B.C.'s thriving technology and innovation sector to create good jobs, establish B.C. as a preferred location for new and emerging technologies, and attract investment to the province.

The government is working to provide people with opportunities and form partnerships that can help B.C. companies and individuals do what they do best - move ideas from the drawing board to the marketplace. The following investments will develop future talent, support research and innovation, and help B.C. companies better compete globally.

Developing future talent

Graduate student scholarships:

- * A $12-million fund for graduate degree scholarships that will support priority areas such as science, tech, engineering and mathematics programs, as well as Indigenous students and regional programs.
- * The scholarship fund will support up to 800 awards of $15,000 for students in graduate degree programs over the next three years.

Women in technology scholarships:

- * Beginning in 2018, nine scholarships of $10,000 each for women in technology, and one for Indigenous women in technology, will be awarded through the Irving K. Barber Society.
- * These awards will inspire a new generation of women to consider science and technology-based professions.

Job training for students and entrepreneurs:

- * $10.5 million to extend the B.C. Tech Co-op Grants program and Innovator Skills Initiative until 2021.
- * Innovate BC will provide B.C. companies with grants so students can develop hands-on skills and gain valuable tech-related work experience.

Hello,

Attached please find final BCTECH Summit NR KM and QA for your approval.

Please note small change to last night's QA and NR:

- PJH quote change in the NR
- there will no longer be a foreshadow of the quantum computing announcement.
- STEM language was amended to indicate that the funding will also go to Indigenous and regional programs.
- BCIC changed to Innovate BC.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Thank you,
Danielle

Hello,

I've just been told that this presser has been cancelled, but the NR, QA and Press Conference SNs are attached.

The QA has a lot of details on the announcement items in the speech and NR, so it should be useful for briefing purposes.

Note that the $82.6 research announcement is now $102.6 million. That change is reflected in the attached materials, but I will change it in the speech as well when I get edits back from Sage tonight.

Please let me know if you need anything else.

Thank you,
Danielle

NEWS RELEASE

Province announces new protected lands throughout B.C.

VICTORIA - The Government of British Columbia has announced that more than 190 hectares of ecologically sensitive land throughout B.C. has been acquired as new parks, or as additions to existing provincial parks.

"Parks benefit our environment, our economy, and make life better for people in B.C. every day," said Premier John Horgan. "By protecting these lands today, we're expanding the beautiful parks B.C. is known for around the world, and making sure this land will be here for future generations."

The six parcels of land were acquired through purchase, donation or subdivision dedication. The most significant acquisition includes 144 hectares of land known as Eagle Heights, near Koksilah River on southern Vancouver Island. The Province purchased the property for $7.15 million, supported by a $400,000 contribution from the Habitat Conservation Trust Foundation, via the Cowichan Valley Regional District, and a $225,000 contribution from the Cowichan Community Land Trust.

"Our partners help BC Parks identify important areas, so that the ecological, recreational and cultural values of these lands remain intact and protected," said George Heyman, Minister of Environment and Climate Change Strategy. "By ensuring the conservation and preservation of these sensitive lands, our children, their children, and future generations will be able to enjoy these beautiful natural spaces for years to come."

One of the largest park systems in the world, British Columbia has 1,033 provincial parks, recreation areas, conservancies, ecological reserves and protected areas. They cover more than 14 million hectares, or approximately 14.4% of the provincial land base.

"I applaud the passion, time and effort of several Cowichan Valley area organizations, which worked tirelessly over the years to help secure this special place," said Sonia Furstenau, MLA for the Cowichan Valley. "Eagle Heights is a unique area of significant importance, not only to residents of the Cowichan Valley, but also as a great spiritual and cultural connection to the Cowichan Tribes. I am pleased this rare habitat will be preserved in perpetuity."

The parcels of land are valued at approximately $10 million. The properties acquired are:

- * 144 hectares of land called Eagle Heights, near Koksilah River on southern Vancouver Island;
- * 2.5 hectares at Harmony Islands Marine Provincial Park along the Sunshine Coast, supported by a $750,000 contribution from the BC Marine Parks Forever Society;
- * 17 hectares at Kikomun Creek Provincial Park in the Kootenays;
- * 16.4 hectares at Myra-Bellevue Provincial Park in the Okanagan;
- * 9.45 hectares at Dionisio Point Provincial Park on Galiano Island, and
- * Four hectares at Purcell Wilderness Conservancy Provincial Park in the Kootenays.

BACKGROUNDER BC Parks land acquisitions

Eagle Heights

The 144-hectare Eagle Heights acquisition protects a unique pocket grassland, and is home to rare and endangered species, an old-growth Douglas fir forest, limestone karst features and other red-listed ecosystems. The diverse property is culturally significant to local Indigenous peoples. The acquired lands are near Koksilah River Provincial Park northwest of Shawnigan Lake on Vancouver Island, and will either be added to this park, or established as a new Class A park.

"The area known as Eagle Heights has been used by the Cowichan People since time immemorial and is of extreme spiritual and cultural importance. Certain grasses are still used in spiritual practices today, and are only found in the unique grassland ecosystem of Eagle Heights," said Cowichan Tribes Chief William Seymour. "Cowichan Tribes has been working to protect this area from clear-cut logging for over a decade, and we are happy to hear that Eagle Heights will now be protected."

"Island Timberlands is pleased to be able to work collaboratively with BC Parks to achieve the government's objective of protecting the unique grassland ecosystem at Eagle Heights, while at the same time supporting our managed forest operations on our surrounding lands," said Bill Waugh, chief forester with Island Timberlands. "The Eagle Heights project represents the culmination of many years of diligent effort, and is a testament to what can be achieved through patient and mutually respectful dialogue."

"The actions of BC Parks and their partners to fund the acquisition of the Eagle Heights Grasslands complex above the Koksilah River are commendable," said Jon Lefebure, board chair of the Cowichan Valley Regional District (CVRD). "The CVRD board and Cowichan community are longstanding advocates for protection of these lands, which are notably the most valuable and fragile pocket grasslands on Vancouver Island."

"The pocket grasslands and old-growth forest found on the Eagle Heights property provide important habitat for vulnerable and threatened wildlife species, including Roosevelt elk, western screech owl and northern goshawk," said Brian Springinotic, CEO of the Habitat Conservation Trust Foundation. "The Habitat Conservation Trust Foundation helped fund the purchase of this land so that it would be protected in perpetuity and available to all British Columbians."

Harmony Islands Marine Provincial Park

BC Parks, with the assistance of the BC Marine Parks Forever Society, purchased 2.5 hectares, with the intent of adding the island to Harmony Islands Marine Provincial Park. The land was purchased from Harmony Island Owners Ltd. in Renton, Wash. The BC Marine Parks Forever Society contributed the full purchase price of $750,000. The island is located north of Granville Bay in Hotham Sound, approximately 90 kilometres from Vancouver. The property is among a group of four small islands and an islet making up the Harmony Islands.

"The BC Marine Parks Forever Society has supported BC Parks for 28 years, with donations totalling over $2 million. We continue to work with BC Parks to enhance and improve the BC Marine Park system," said George Creek, president of the BC Marine Parks Forever Society.

Kikomun Creek Provincial Park

The Province purchased the 17-hectare property in the middle of Kikomun Creek Provincial Park, near Baynes Lake / Fernie, for $880,000. Features of the newly acquired property, which will be added to the park, include part of a drumlin, grassland, a natural pond and wetland area. Kikomun Creek Provincial Park protects a rare open forest and grassland, and features four kilometres of lakefront.

"This is a huge announcement for our community," says Stan Doehle, Regional District of East Kootenay Electoral Area B director. "The Carlson family has supported the citizens of Baynes Lake for years, and Jane was known for her passionate commitment to the area. It is wonderful to see the property become part of the park so that it will be protected and enjoyed by all. This is what the family wanted, and what we have been working towards for a long time. I know Jane would be so proud."

Myra-Bellevue Provincial Park

A 16.4-hectare private inholding at Myra-Bellevue Provincial Park, known as the Harvard Road Vacant Acreage, was acquired for $947,000. Situated in the northern section of the park which borders Kelowna, the parcel of land contains an open forest and grassland ecosystem, as well as a significant wetland. The area has high recreational values, as several popular mountain biking and hiking trails intersect within the park. The property contains habitat that supports various wildlife, some of which is considered at-risk in the province. Securement of the property also greatly increases habitat connectivity within the balance of the park.

"Friends of South Slope started advocating for the property to be purchased when the previous owner died in 2006. It is considered to be highly important to Myra Bellevue Park, because the public has been using it for many years," said Isabel Pritchard, with Friends of South Slope (FOSS). "Over the years since 2006, FOSS has been very actively pursuing all avenues towards achieving this goal. We are very excited about this because when looking back, FOSS is 20 years old this month."

Purcell Wilderness Conservancy Provincial Park

Located northeast of Kaslo, near the community of Birchdale, this four-hectare parcel of land, worth $60,000, was donated by the Farr-Jones family. It will provide an important habitat connection to the larger portion of the Purcell Wilderness Conservancy Park. With pasture areas and fruit trees, the donated parcel of land is expected to return to its natural state.

"The Farr-Jones family's gift to the citizens of British Columbia is a wonderful reminder of the connection that people have to BC Parks," said Bill Bryce, president of the Friends of West Kootenay Parks Society.

Dionisio Point Provincial Park

The 9.45 hectares of land on Galiano Island was acquired as a subdivision dedication that was a requirement of a rezoning process. The lands are adjacent to the Galiano Island Ecological Reserve, and provide protection for an important portion of the ecological reserve's watershed. This ecologically sensitive area helps protect environments that support species-at-risk in a Coastal Douglas fir forest. The lands also form part of a recreation trail network between Dionisio Point Park and Bodega Ridge Park on Galiano Island.

"The Galiano Conservancy Association welcomes this significant addition to BC Parks on Galiano," said Risa Smith, chair of the Galiano Conservancy Association. "BC Parks has been a solid partner in accepting additions to its Galiano holdings, made possible through a visionary land-use planning process, that ensure development and protection of the island's ecologically and culturally significant forest base go hand-in-hand."

Attachments: NR High-speed corridor study 16March 2018_V12.docx; QA High-speed corridor 16March 2018_V12.docx; 20190916_SN_PJH_Inslee Corridor Announcement_V1_DD.docx; 20180316_MA_PJH_GJI_High Speed Corridor_V1_DRAFT_BC.docx

Hello,

The DRAFT materials for the High Speed Corridor Announcement - 1 p.m. (TBC) Friday are attached.

Materials included are:

- 1) News Release
- 2) Corridor Q&A
- 3) PJH Speaking notes
- 4) Media Advisory

The Speaking Notes are the only new materials to you. I had planned to send the advisory out tomorrow at around 10am upon your approval, but any time before 2pm should be fine.

We are ordering the call-in line so it is available if we want it, but that final decision is up to you. We are fine either way.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

We'll await your final approval on the MA and NR before sending.

Thank you,
Danielle
