Province of BC – Premier John Horgan

“Our government is committed to working with every person, community and sector in B.C. to create a more equal B.C. We’ve started this work by appointing a Parliamentary Secretary for Gender Equity, and half of B.C. government ministries are led by women. We support the “We for She” forum because when we encourage young women to gain skills and apply their unique perspectives in the pursuit of skilled trades, STEM and other occupations, the whole province benefits.”

Subject: Asia Pacific Foundation dinner update

Hi all,

I spoke with Vilupti Lok Barrineau, the VP at the Asia Pacific Foundation, and she ran me through some of the key points for next Thursday evening's dinner with PJH. I am happy to follow up with her again if you have more questions, or to connect you with her directly. I'm not sure if this is new or helpful, but I wanted to pass it on just in case.

She suggested that in order to keep things conversational and avoid it becoming a rapid fire q&a session, that the Premier come prepared with questions to ask the Board. There's currently a big focus on the Pacific Gateway (and some of the attendees were also at the Pacific Gateway roundtable he attended in October, with Ministers Trevena and Ralston). The group is very engaged and will have a lot to say and a lot of questions; they're very strongly pro-trade and happy to speak about opportunities throughout the region.

She also highlighted two of the attendees that would be good to speak with- Dominic Barton and Murad Al-Katib (link to bios here), who are very open and friendly. The Premier connected with Stewart Beck, the President and CEO of the Foundation, at the Pacific Gateway Roundtable, and apparently left a very positive impression s.22

I have updated the timeline and logistics details on Asana and in the events calendar. Amber, there are a few small details outstanding, but I expect to have it all confirmed tomorrow, and will let you know when I do. Vanessa, I will be onsite by 6:15 and ready to meet you and the Premier and show you in when you arrive.

Please let me know if you have any additional questions or need any support from my end.

Thanks!

STATEMENT

Premier's statement on Remembrance Day

VICTORIA - Premier John Horgan released the following statement in honour of Remembrance Day and the 100th anniversary of the end of the First World War:

"On Remembrance Day, British Columbians honour the courage and sacrifice of veterans, armed forces members and merchant marines who have served our country.

"We also recognize the families who have lost sons and daughters, mothers and fathers, and cared for those who have returned with injuries, both visible and invisible.

"As we gather at cenotaphs in communities around the province and pay respect to generations of Canadians who bravely risked their lives to protect ours, we are reminded of the horrors of war.

"In those moments of silence, we resolve to stand together against hate and violence, and work to build a more peaceful world.

"Lest we forget."

Sure thing. One comment.

While this government has done amazing things in a very short time, this really reads like a Statement, so suggesting we tone it down a bit outside of the quotes.

An example would be the sixth paragraph. Suggesting this:

Over the past 16 months, the B.C. government has taken action and made historic investments to make a difference in people's lives. In the fall, government delivered on major commitments, including announcing 4,900 new affordable mixed income rental homes

The proof is in the numbers.... :)

NEWS RELEASE

Working together to end gender-based violence

VICTORIA - The Province is joining the United Nations 16 Days of Activism against Gender-Based Violence campaign to help advance gender equity, make life better and make communities safer for women, girls and transgender people in B.C. and around the world.

"Everyone has the right to live without fear and violence, yet women, transgender and gender-diverse people continue to face gender-based and sexualized violence in every part of their lives," said Mitzi Dean, Parliamentary Secretary for Gender Equity. "Every step we take in this fight must include the voices and acknowledge the experiences of those who have faced this type of violence."

To mark the beginning of the 16 days, Premier John Horgan and Dean met with anti-violence advocates to discuss the progress and challenges of ending gender-based violence in B.C.

"We need to work together to end gender-based violence and build a better world and brighter future for our children and grandchildren," said Premier Horgan. "We are at a critical moment in history in the struggle for gender equality. B.C. is joining people around the world in raising their voices, telling their stories and fighting to end gender-based violence."

In addition to joining the UN campaign, the Province has been taking cross-government action to address gender-based violence. The Province has allotted $734 million in funding to build 1,500 new transition homes for women and children fleeing violence. The first 280 of these safe spaces will be delivered in 12 projects around the province and will include funding for a range of services, such as emotional support and safety planning.

Government has also invested $5 million to help reduce waitlists and better meet demand for vital services like counselling, outreach and crisis support, with an additional $18 million over three years for continued services.

In continuing its work toward reconciliation, government has provided funding to the Snuneymuxw Youth and Family Society in Nanaimo to operate 10 transition house beds that will primarily serve Indigenous women and children and will provide culturally appropriate supports. To ensure safe and reliable travel for women in northern B.C., the Province is increasing cellular service and building a new cell tower along Highway 16 and establishing the BC Bus North long-haul bus service.

Government is taking steps toward fighting gender-based violence and working together to ensure a better and safer B.C. for all.

Quotes:

Linda Amy, Sexual Assault Centre -

"For far too long, silence and stigma have allowed gender-based violence to continue. We need to support all women, trans, two spirit and gender-diverse survivors of sexual assault and childhood sexual abuse through crisis support, counselling and empowerment. With healing, education and prevention, we can end sexualized violence."

Karen Martin, Disability Alliance BC -

"Women with disabilities experience high rates of gender-based violence, but have low rates of access to community services because of continued physical, social and economic exclusion, discrimination and isolation."

Elba Bendo, Rise Women's Legal Centre: West Coast LEAF -

"As we reflect and commit to taking action on gender-based violence, it is essential to recognize that the eradication of gender-based violence requires substantive public investment in social benefits and services, access to justice, and increased police accountability."

Ninu Kang, MOSAIC BC -

"Ending violence is also about challenging the systems of inequality that women and children who experience intersecting oppressions like poverty, racism and language barriers face. Ensuring newcomers to Canada are supported through culturally appropriate prevention and education is key to decreasing risks and making our communities safer."

Angela Marie MacDougall, Battered Women's Support Services -

"Violence against women and girls is endemic and an epidemic. Any gains we have made in the past 40 years in shifting culture toward ending gender violence are precarious. Today, we stand at a tipping point and the 16 Days of Activism on Gender-Based Violence is a reminder that we must continue the unfinished business of redressing historical power imbalances toward liberation and justice."

Chastity Davis, Minister's Advisory Council on Indigenous Women -

"Indigenous women have been subject to gender-based violence since the early settlers arrived to colonize the land now known as Canada. Following that, the creation of the Indian Act by the federal government and legislation within the act targeted to displace women from their rightful roles as matriarchs in their communities has contributed to perpetuating gender-based violence. We have a long road ahead of us to address the systemic racism that has led to a dominant narrative in this country that Indigenous women's lives are of less value than other women's lives in this country. I am encouraged to see the B.C. government honour their commitment to the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples through addressing gender-based violence against Indigenous women, girls and two-spirited people. The single most impactful investment that can be made is in the safety and optimal health and wellness of Indigenous women. Healthy Indigenous women equate to healthy Indigenous children, men and communities."

Quick Facts:

- * Cross-government work is being done to address gender-based violence in B.C., such as:
- * Standing with community groups and frontline workers by providing $1.7 million in community grants to address violence against women, including domestic violence, sexual violence, human trafficking and sexual exploitation.
- * Investing $26 million in access to affordable, quality, legal services and expanding legal aid, including Indigenous and family law services.
- * Promoting safe, respectful workplaces for everyone with new measures to make sure B.C.'s creative sector is free from bullying and harassment.
- * Re-establishing a human rights commission that will focus on human rights education and promotion and creating a more inclusive and just society for all.
- * Over half of women in B.C. have experienced physical or sexual violence since the age of 16 - more than one million women in the province.
- * In B.C., there are over 1,000 physical or sexual assaults against women every week.
- * Indigenous women are 3.5 times more likely than non-Indigenous women to experience violence. The homicide rate is seven times higher.
- * Women with disabilities are almost twice as likely to be sexually assaulted as women without disabilities.

STATEMENT
Premier's statement in recognition of World AIDS Day

VICTORIA - Premier John Horgan has issued the following statement in recognition of World AIDS Day on Dec. 1, 2018:

"2018 marks the 30th anniversary of the first World AIDS Day. On this day in particular, British Columbians wear the red ribbon to acknowledge people living with HIV, remember those we have lost to this disease and recognize the many people leading the fight to eliminate this epidemic.

"Led by the groundbreaking work of Dr. Julio Montaner and the B.C. Centre for Excellence in HIV/AIDS, B.C. has been at the forefront of research, prevention and treatment for people living with and at risk of acquiring HIV.

"Recognizing there is no cure or vaccine for HIV, we do have a made in B.C. strategy - Treatment as Prevention - that with sustained treatment and care, the virus will be rendered undetectable in the blood and will make HIV non-transmittable.

"B.C. has been a leader in HIV research since the early days of the epidemic including the implementation of highly active antiretroviral therapy and in providing the groundwork for the global UNAIDS 90-90-90 target. This United Nations program is built on the backbone of B.C.'s world-renowned Treatment as Prevention strategy.

"To further help people live longer and healthier lives, this year our government made pre-exposure prophylaxis, known as PrEP, available to all British Columbians at high risk of HIV infection. PrEP medication prevents new HIV infections and is available at no cost to the patient.

"Because UNAIDS estimates that 9.4 million people worldwide are unknowingly living with HIV, this year's global theme for World AIDS Day is 'know your status.' Thanks to the efforts and dedication of countless people working in this field, more British Columbians than ever have access to HIV testing, giving people the opportunity to receive early treatment, care and support.

"We are grateful to every researcher, medical practitioner and health-care worker who supports patients living with or vulnerable to HIV. And we thank every community organization working to raise awareness and fight stigma and discrimination, including the Canadian Aboriginal AIDS Network that is marking the 20th anniversary of Aboriginal AIDS Awareness Week this year.

"Today, AIDS-related deaths are at an all-time low in B.C. Together, we stand with the United Nations and the rest of Canada in renewing our commitment to end the AIDS epidemic, here and across the globe."

STATEMENT

Premier and Parliamentary Secretary's statement on the Transgender Day of Remembrance

VICTORIA - Premier John Horgan and Mitzi Dean, Parliamentary Secretary for Gender Equity, have issued the following statement to mark the Transgender Day of Remembrance:

"Each year on Nov. 20, we honour the memory of transgender people we have lost because of transphobia and violence, and vow to fight against the erasure of trans people and trans identities in our culture and our history.

"As we remember those who have been taken from their friends, family and communities, we commit to working together to make our province a place where transgender people are safe, loved and celebrated.

"For too long, B.C. has fallen behind when it comes to supporting people who are transgender, non-binary and gender-diverse. Everyone deserves to be treated with dignity and respect, and to live in safe, supportive communities.

"We are proud to stand with trans people in our province, and to move forward by reinstating the B.C. human rights commission, promoting sexual orientation and gender identity awareness in schools, giving people a non-binary gender option on government identification and improving access to gender-affirming surgeries around B.C. But we still have a long way to go.

"At a time when the human rights of transgender people are under sustained attack in the United States and elsewhere, it is more important than ever to affirm our commitment to fight for safety, inclusion and justice for trans people in our province.

"We will not be silent in the face of injustice. We will not let the memories of our trans friends, family and neighbours be lost to violence.

"Together, we remember, and pledge to do better."

Hello,

We have gotten Brent's version down to 2000 words, and I think retained the narrative structure.

Let me know what you think.

Hello Sage,

Attached for your final approval is the NR for the Community Housing fund announcement on Nov. 13.

You have approved a previous version of this.

Changes from that version are:

- Added a quote from MLA Olsen and the CASA boilerplate.
- Also expanded the backgrounder to provide more details about each project.

Thank you,

V5 updated for your approval.

We will send out to shops for approval of sections that pertain to them first thing tomorrow, including the House Leader's office.

Please let me know what time you would like to release this tomorrow. It should be after the house rises.

*Note that the MA for the Premier's scrum is not in the system. Will you send that out tomorrow morning?
