NEWS RELEASE
Caregivers for B.C.'s most vulnerable get first pay increase in a decade

VICTORIA - Foster parents, adoptive caregivers, extended family members caring for children and Community Living BC (CLBC) home-share providers will each receive a boost in support payments -- the first increase in 10 years -- to make life more affordable and provide more support to some of B.C.'s most-vulnerable children and adults.

"Caregivers open their homes and hearts to children and adults who need their support," said Premier John Horgan. "For 10 years, the cost of living has steadily increased while caregiver rates have stagnated. Our government is making different choices by increasing support rates for caregivers, to make life more affordable and build stronger, more inclusive communities."

Budget 2019 provides approximately $64 million over three years to the Ministry of Children and Family Development and $45 million over three years to the Ministry of Social Development and Poverty Reduction to boost monthly caregiver rates.

"I have met with so many foster parents and family caregivers, especially grandmothers, who have been struggling to provide for the children in their care. Their stories resonated with me and I knew this was the right thing to do," said Katrine Conroy, Minister of Children and Family Development. "The most important thing is that children are raised in a safe, loving home, and I am proud to be part of a government that is addressing a long-standing inequity for extended families, especially Indigenous families, and investing in the well-being of all children when they need it most."

For family members caring for children through the Extended Family Program, support will nearly double and will be paid at the same rate as foster caregivers. This increase is part of government's commitment to meaningful reconciliation with Indigenous peoples and addresses recommendations by Grand Chief Ed John.

"I am pleased the B.C. government is taking steps to address this key recommendation of my report, which identified the disparity between the caregiver rates and extended family rates as being a clear barrier to permanency for many children in care," said Grand Chief Ed John. "Bringing these rates in line will undoubtedly lead to both an increase of permanent placements as well as an increased quality of care for children placed with extended family members. This is especially important for Indigenous children in care as it will result in greater opportunities for placements with extended family within their communities, thereby maintaining access to their culture and language."

Budget 2019 will provide foster parents with an additional $179 each month to help cover basic necessities for children in their care, including food, shelter and clothing.

Eligible adoptive parents, many of them adding children with special needs and/or sibling groups to their families, will receive an additional $105 to $120 per month for post-adoption assistance to help meet increases in the costs of living.

"This announcement is a wonderful acknowledgement of the work that foster parents and other caregivers do to emotionally and financially support children and youth in B.C.," said Russell Pohl, a long-time foster and adoptive parent. "It's good to know that this government is looking out for us and valuing our contribution."

Community Living BC home-share provider rates are based on the individual needs of the person in care. The $45 million in funding over three years is a 15% increase for the program. After 10 years without an increase in home-share provider funding, CLBC is updating the program rate structure to better align with the disability-related needs of each individual.

"Home-share promotes social inclusion and helps keep people with developmental disabilities connected to their communities," said Shane Simpson, Minister of Social Development and Poverty Reduction. "Over the last year, we have engaged with individuals with developmental disabilities and their families to look closely at CLBC supports and plot a new vision for the next 10 years. This increase recognizes the important work of home-share providers. It is long overdue, well deserved and one more step in the the work we are doing with the community to create a truly accessible and inclusive province."

CLBC will be working with home-share providers over the next few weeks to work through the details. The rate increases will vary under the new rate structure, but all home share providers will receive an increase over the next two years.

In 2018, CLBC engaged with home-share providers to find out how government can better support them in their vital work. The primary concern reported was low rates, which had not kept up with rising household costs and growing demand for the program.

Rate increases for Ministry of Children and Family Development caregivers will come into effect April 1, 2019.

BACKGROUND

Caregiver rate increases

Caregivers caring for children and youth

* Budget 2019 contains more than $64 million in funding over three years for the Ministry of Children and Family Development (MCFD) to increase pay rates for:

* foster caregivers;

* caregivers of the Extended Family Program;

* transfer of guardianship/custody caregivers; and

* adoptive families who are eligible to receive post-adoption assistance.

* The monthly rate paid to caregivers, the maintenance rate, has not increased since 2009, while inflation has risen approximately 15% between 2009 and 2018.

* Maintenance rates are only one part of the financial model supporting the Province's overall system of care for children and youth who are unable to live with their families either permanently or temporarily.

* Grand Chief Ed John's 2016 report, Indigenous Resilience, Connectedness, and Reunification - From Root Causes to Root Solutions, called for changes to the financial model supporting the Province's system of care to address a lack of resources for care providers, particularly within Indigenous communities.

* While MCFD is providing greater supports to keep families together when it is safe to do so, resulting in fewer children coming into care in the first place, there is still a need for skilled caregivers to care for children who cannot safely live with their parents. Static basic monthly payment rates have impacted the ministry's ability to recruit and retain caregivers at a time when costs of living continue to rise and long-term caregivers are aging and retiring.

* The Budget 2019 rate increases are a result of an ongoing review of the system of care by MCFD.

Community Living Home Share Providers

* Budget 2019 contains $45 million in funding over three years for CLBC Home Share Providers, a 15% increase in funding for the program.

* The raise is the first home-share providers have received since 2009.

* Home sharing is a residential service option through Community Living B.C. (CLBC), under the Ministry of Social Development and Poverty Reduction, in which an adult with a developmental disability shares a home with someone who is contracted to provide ongoing support to promote independence and inclusion.

* In 2018, Shane Simpson, Minister of Social Development and Poverty Reduction, directed CLBC to engage with home-share providers to identify needs and provide recommendations. Rates were the top concern highlighted in the final report: <https://www.communitylivingbc.ca/wp-content/uploads/HSP-Engagement-Report-Final.pdf>

* More than 4,000 individuals with developmental disabilities in B.C. live with home-share providers.

* Individuals with disabilities choose the home-share provider that best meets their goals and preferences. Support is flexible and evolves with the changing needs of the individual.

* Home sharing now accounts for 61% of all residential settings for people with disabilities, compared to 51% in 2010.

* Home-share providers' in-home support is integral to an inclusive province that supports the participation of people with disabilities in their community.

NEWS RELEASE

ERASE expands to protect students from bullying

VICTORIA - Government leaders joined together with students and education advocates to introduce new online safety sessions to help support and protect students against cyberbullying.

"We all have a responsibility to combat bullying, whether it's online, in our homes, workplaces or schools," said Premier John Horgan. "We need to support those being bullied and show them they're not alone, and that we will stand up with them. I'm so proud to see all the students here today taking a stand against bullying."

The Ministry of Education is investing $160,000 to provide over 190 online safety sessions to more than 19,000 students in grades 3-12 throughout the province. The sessions will provide students with information on recognizing the importance of a positive digital reputation, protecting their privacy online and details on how to use the ERASE (Expect Respect and a Safe Education) anonymous-reporting tool in response to bullying and other concerns.

Premier Horgan and Rob Fleming, Minister of Education, hosted B.C.'s 12th-annual Pink Shirt Day event at the Parliament Buildings to proclaim Bullying Awareness Day. They were joined by local students, MLAs and Carol Todd, parent and founder of the Amanda Todd Legacy Society. The event included a spoken word presentation from a Reynolds Secondary school student, a dance performance from Northridge Elementary school students and a choir performance by Central Middle school students.

"Bullying knows no boundaries - the technology our kids are using today has presented challenges that we could not have imagined years ago. The expansion of ERASE will provide our students with additional tools to help combat against bullying," said Fleming. "If we all stand together and say no to bullying, we can make a major difference in our schools and communities."

The new sessions are part of the ERASE strategy, which is being expanded this school year to be a more comprehensive resource to better represent the issues facing youth and their communities today. ERASE will now also focus on social media and online safety, mental health and wellness, substance use, gang prevention and supporting students of all sexual orientations and gender identities (SOGI). New ERASE resources and training for students, parents, educators and community partners are being launched during the current school year.

Since the 2018 Pink Shirt Day event, the ministry has made strides to combat bullying. A new ERASE website was launched in November 2018, as well as an updated online safety reporting tool, offering students an opportunity to notify an adult member of their school community about something that is worrying them.

The ministry also provided $100,000 to the B.C. School Superintendents' Association to offer 80 social media education sessions to more than 3,500 parents in every school district, providing them with the tools they need to support their children and protect them against cyberbullying. The parent guide from the sessions is currently posted on the ERASE website and additional online resources for parents who were not able to attend the in-person sessions will be launched in fall 2019.

Last year, the ministry, along with the B.C. Confederation of Parent Advisory Councils and the ARC Foundation (Awareness/Respect/Capacity), developed a new set of SOGI resources for parents, including a brochure and online videos found on the SOGI 123 website: <https://bc.sogieducation.org>

Those in attendance at the Pink Shirt Day event in Victoria were encouraged to speak out against negative online posts, post Pink Shirt Day event photos and spread positivity, using the hashtags #ERASE and #PinkShirtDay.

Quotes:

Carol Todd, parent and founder, Amanda Todd Legacy Society -

"It is wonderful to see that the Ministry of Education, through the ERASE strategy, is prioritizing the importance of providing our young people with the knowledge they need to safely navigate the digital world. Educating youth about the ERASE Report It tool will further help to ensure the personal safety of our children and the overall safety and well-being of school communities throughout the province."

Jordan Watters, board chair, Greater Victoria School District (SD 61) -

"Students can't learn if they don't feel safe, which is why we work so hard to ensure we are creating and maintaining safe schools. In today's digital world, that also means we need to help our students navigate technology and the pressures of social media in ways that protect and empower them."

Dustin Hogan, trainer and threat analyst, Safer Schools Together -

"Students in British Columbia are beginning to recognize the positive impact the ERASE Report It tool can have on ensuring their safety and well-being at school. During the ministry supported student sessions, they are engaged and are asking thoughtful questions to further their understanding of the reporting tool and how much of a difference it can make in keeping their school communities safe."

Isabella Laughey, Grade 12 student, Reynolds Secondary school -

"Pink Shirt Day cannot end on Feb. 27. To make the changes we want to see, every day must be anti-bullying day."

Quick Facts:

* ERASE, launched by the Ministry of Education in 2012, is a comprehensive prevention and intervention strategy designed to foster school connectedness, address bullying, prevent violence, and provide support to school districts during critical incidents.

* ERASE has received national and international recognition for its work in keeping students safer.

* Pink Shirt Day started in 2007 with two Nova Scotia high school students, Travis Price and David Shepherd. The students organized a protest at their high school, which involved participants wearing pink t-shirts in support of a Grade 9 boy who had been bullied for wearing a pink shirt. The protest was successful, and the student was not bullied again.

* 19% of Canadian children have experienced cyberbullying or cyberstalking.

* Research suggests vulnerable youth are at a greater risk of mental-health challenges and may be more susceptible to bullying and cyberbullying behaviour.

STATEMENT

Premier's statement on the Moose Hide Provincial Gathering and Day of Fasting (disponible en français en bas de page)

VICTORIA - Premier John Horgan has issued the following statement in support of the Moose Hide Campaign's Provincial Gathering and Day of Fasting on Feb. 13, 2019:

"Today we recognize the Moose Hide Campaign and its work to end violence against Indigenous women and children, and encourage men to speak out and hold each other accountable.

"Over one million women in our province have experienced physical or sexual violence since the age of 16. Indigenous women are 3.5 times more likely than non-Indigenous women to experience violence.

"Everyone has the right to live without fear and violence. It is the responsibility of every one of us to stand with survivors, believe their words and honour their courage. As men and allies, we must be vigilant to make sure our words and actions do not perpetuate a culture of violence.

"Today, members of all parties in the B.C. legislative assembly will wear their moose hide pins and participate in a fasting to pledge their support for the campaign.

"Our government recognizes our responsibility to advance reconciliation with Indigenous peoples, and we are working together with the Minister's Advisory Council on Indigenous Women to right historical wrongs and to create a province where all Indigenous women and girls live free of violence.

"There is hope for a better, brighter future if we all come together to make our communities safer for every person in B.C."

DÉCLARATION

Déclaration du premier ministre concernant le Rassemblement provincial de la campagne Moose Hide et la Journée de jeûne

VICTORIA - Voici la déclaration du premier ministre John Horgan, qui manifeste son appui au Rassemblement provincial de la campagne Moose Hide et à la Journée de jeûne du 13 février 2019.

« Aujourd'hui, nous saluons la campagne Moose Hide et le travail qu'elle permet d'accomplir pour mettre fin à la violence faite aux femmes et aux enfants autochtones. Nous encourageons aussi les hommes à parler de cette question et à se tenir mutuellement responsables.

Plus d'un million de femmes dans notre province ont subi de la violence physique ou sexuelle depuis l'âge de 16 ans, et les femmes autochtones courent 3,5 fois plus de risques de vivre une telle violence que leurs consœurs non autochtones.

Tout le monde a le droit de vivre sans peur ni violence. Chacun de nous a la responsabilité de se tenir debout avec les survivantes, de croire leurs récits et d'honorer leur courage. En tant qu'hommes et en tant qu'alliés, nous devons faire preuve de vigilance et nous assurer que nos mots et nos gestes ne contribuent pas à perpétuer une culture de la violence.

Aujourd'hui, les membres de tous les partis politiques de l'Assemblée législative de la Colombie-Britannique porteront le carré de peau d'orignal et participeront au jeûne afin de manifester leur appui à cette campagne.

Notre gouvernement est conscient du rôle qu'il doit jouer pour l'avancement de la réconciliation avec les peuples autochtones, et nous travaillons avec le conseil consultatif sur les femmes autochtones mis sur pied par le ministre afin de corriger les erreurs du passé et de créer une province où toutes les femmes et les filles autochtones pourront vivre sans violence.

Nous pouvons espérer un avenir meilleur et plus heureux si nous joignons nos forces afin de rendre nos communautés plus sécuritaires pour chaque personne en Colombie-Britannique. »

NEWS RELEASE

B.C., Washington strengthen ties as B.C. backs next phase of high-speed corridor study

SEATTLE, WASH. - As part of ongoing work to improve connectivity and strengthen ties between British Columbia and Washington state, B.C. Premier John Horgan has joined Washington Gov. Jay Inslee to announce that B.C. will help fund the next proposed phase of a study of a potential ultra-high-speed corridor service linking British Columbia, Washington state and Oregon.

"Gov. Inslee and I recognize the enormous potential for growth in our region to deliver strong, sustainable economic development, create good jobs and a better future for people on both sides of the border," said Premier Horgan. "Improving transportation connectivity is a critically important part of the path forward, and we're going to keep working together to seize opportunities and strengthen the relationship between Washington state and B.C."

The two leaders have been working jointly to grow the region's innovation and tech economy, combat climate change, protect the environment, promote trade and improve transportation connectivity. Collaboration on the corridor study is another step toward realizing these shared goals.

"I want to thank Premier Horgan for his generous contributions to the ultra-high-speed corridor project," said Gov. Inslee. "Our Cascadia region has the critical mass of a growing population, the muscle mass of a strong economy and the traffic problems to justify ultra-high-speed connections, and this investment will help move the project to the next level."

In March 2018, B.C. contributed $300,000 for a business case analysis to explore ridership levels, project delivery methods, cost and financing. The full results of this analysis are expected in summer 2019.

B.C. has announced the contribution of an additional $300,000 for the proposed next phase of the project that will explore models for a multi-jurisdictional authority to lead a community engagement process and preliminary environmental review.

On Dec. 10, 2018, Gov. Inslee announced that he is including USD$3.25 million in his budget for the development of a new ultra-high-speed corridor authority for Washington, British Columbia and Oregon. It's part of his broader clean energy strategy, which advances electric transportation and helps achieve Washington state's climate action goals.

Premier Horgan is in Washington state on Feb. 7-8, 2019. The two-day trip with Gov. Inslee includes speaking engagements and meetings with government and business leaders in Seattle and Olympia, including Microsoft and the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. Premier Horgan will give a formal address to the Washington state legislature on Friday, Feb. 8.

Quick Facts:

- * On Oct. 10, 2018, Premier Horgan and Gov. Inslee signed a memorandum of understanding to act jointly to grow the region's innovation economy, protect the environment and combat climate change, promote trade and improve transportation connectivity.

- * Funding partners have contributed a total of USD$1.5 million toward the current study [Washington state ($750,000), British Columbia (CDN $300,000), Oregon ($200,000) and Microsoft ($300,000)].

- * Washington state released an economic analysis in 2018 that estimated a high-speed corridor link could create up to 200,000 jobs for people in B.C. and the U.S. and generate billions of dollars in economic benefits for the Cascadia corridor between B.C., Washington and Oregon. The analysis also estimated that within a few years of operation, ridership could reach 1.8 million annually.

- * A high-speed transportation corridor could reduce the travel time between Vancouver, B.C. and Seattle to about one hour from three hours. High-speed trains travel up to 400 kilometres per hour.

- * Total Canada-Washington goods trade is valued at approximately $26.4 billion.

NEWS RELEASE

Province reinvesting in the Northwest with grants to regional districts, municipalities

TERRACE - Government is investing in success for northwest communities by addressing long-standing infrastructure needs that are holding back the region.

A $100-million Northern Capital and Planning Grant will go to four regional districts (Fraser Fort George, Bulkley Nechako, Kitimat Stikine and North Coast) and their 22 municipalities.

"The rich resources and hard-working people of the Northwest have long contributed more than their fair share to the prosperity of our province," said Premier John Horgan. "Unfortunately the benefits of success have been slow to flow back to the region, leaving communities with aging infrastructure that does not meet their needs or the needs of industry."

"We're reversing this legacy of neglect with a new Northern Capital and Planning Grant that will help people and communities make the most of new opportunities, so that the benefits of resource development are felt for years to come," Premier Horgan said.

This grant fulfils Premier Horgan's commitment to northwest mayors to make sure local workers and communities are able to reap the full benefits of resource development in their region.

"We've been hearing from local governments in northern B.C. about the challenges they face funding much-needed upgrades to their aging infrastructure, and how it makes it difficult for them to make the most of growth opportunities and holds them back from diversifying their economies," said Selina Robinson, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing. "We know this grant will not only help northern communities meet their infrastructure needs today, but it will also set them up to benefit from development opportunities in the future."

Small communities within the catchment area will receive a larger proportional share of the grant to compensate for their reduced commercial and industrial tax base.

Local governments may use the grant to meet an immediate infrastructure need for their community, save it for a future opportunity or leverage it to secure other sources of funding, including borrowing, reserves and other grant programs, to cover major infrastructure and long-term planning.

The grant was informed by recent discussions between the Province and the Northwest B.C. Resource Benefits Alliance. The Province consulted with the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, as a change to the Local Governments Grant Regulation is required before the Northern Capital and Planning Grant can be implemented.

Quotes:

Carol Leclerc, mayor of Terrace -

"This is the largest grant the City of Terrace has ever received, and it represents one-third of our annual budget. It gives us the chance to address some of the many outstanding projects we would like to tackle. We are grateful to the provincial government for recognizing the needs of northern communities."

Lee Brain, mayor of Prince Rupert -

"Each community in the North has struggled for years to improve and maintain infrastructure, services and day-to-day operations that meet the desired liveability outcomes for local residents, small businesses and industries. The Province has listened to our concerns by providing this financial injection, as it will help all our communities begin to tackle those challenges as our region becomes a globally significant national trade corridor."

Joan Atkinson, mayor of Mackenzie -

"The Northern Capital and Planning Grant provides invaluable assistance to help Mackenzie and other small northern B.C. communities meet our current infrastructure challenges and prepare for upcoming development opportunities."

Quick Facts:

* The LNG Canada facility is expected bring an influx of new people into the region. The Northern Capital and Planning Grant will help local governments improve infrastructure and services for the new and existing population.

* The 22 municipalities will receive a total of $83.7 million. The four regional districts will receive $16.3 million.

- * Local governments can generally expect to receive the following based on their populations and assessment bases:
- * municipalities with populations of more than 10,000 people will receive between $6 million and $9 million;
- * municipalities with populations of fewer than 10,000 people will receive between $1 million and $6 million; and
- * regional districts will receive between $1 million and $6 million.

NEWS RELEASE
B.C., Washington state united on climate action, building sustainable future

OLYMPIA, WASH. - Washington Gov. Jay Inslee and B.C. Premier John Horgan have advanced work together to rise to the challenge of climate change while investing in a sustainable, low-carbon economy.

"We are honoured to have Premier Horgan visit Washington state. This meeting will build on the important work we've done together over the past few years," Gov. Inslee said. "Washington and British Columbia share so much, from our natural beauty to our innovative economies. This visit is a great opportunity for us to come together to advance substantive and concrete proposals to advance our common interests."

Gov. Inslee joined Premier Horgan as he signed on to the Statement on Stepping Up Climate Ambition. The states of Washington and California, the Government of Canada and other governments, as well as agencies from around the globe, have supported the statement, which emphasizes the need to increase ambition and strengthen efforts to tackle climate change.

"B.C. and Washington state are taking important steps forward together to fight climate change, grow the innovation economy and build a sustainable future," said Premier Horgan. "I'm very optimistic about what we can achieve to make life better for the people who live in the Pacific Northwest."

Both B.C. and Washington state introduced climate action plans in December 2018.

Gov. Inslee has proposed a plan to the state legislature that would accelerate innovation and efforts already underway across the economy to transition to 100% clean energy, construct ultra-efficient buildings, establish a clean fuel standard, electrify the state's transportation system and phase down super-pollutants in certain products.

The CleanBC climate action plan is designed to help B.C. reduce climate pollution while creating more jobs and economic opportunities for people, businesses and communities.

On Oct. 10, 2018, Premier Horgan and Gov. Inslee signed a memorandum of understanding to act jointly to grow the region's innovation economy, protect the environment and combat climate change, promote trade and improve transportation connectivity.

Premier Horgan and Gov. Inslee are also working with West Coast partners to create opportunity and grow prosperity in the region while fighting climate change through the Cascadia Innovation Corridor and the Pacific Coast Collaborative.

Quick Facts:

- * The Statement on Stepping up Climate Ambition is in response to a report by the United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) on the impacts of global warming of 1.5 Celsius.
- * It reflects signatories' determination to step up climate ambition in order to achieve the long-term goal of the Paris Agreement of holding global warming to below 2 Celsius and pursuing efforts to limit the temperature increase to 1.5 Celsius.
- * In 2016, Gov. Inslee, along with Gov. Andrew Cuomo of New York and Gov. Jerry Brown of California, founded the U.S. Climate Alliance.
- * The U.S. Climate Alliance includes 20 governors, representing 47% of U.S. population, and is committed to taking action that urgently addresses the climate challenge.
- * CleanBC was launched by the B.C. government on Dec. 5, 2018. The plan is designed to help B.C. lower greenhouse gas emissions and seize new, clean-economy opportunities. CleanBC helps British Columbians use more clean and renewable energy in how they get around, heat their homes and fuel industry - setting B.C. on the path to a cleaner, brighter future.
- * The governments of British Columbia and Washington state are part of the Pacific Coast Collaborative with Oregon and California. In 2013, California, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia set the IPCC on its current course of ambitious climate and clean energy policy by signing the Pacific Coast Action Plan on Climate and Energy, which was updated three years later as the Pacific Coast Climate Leadership Action Plan.
- * In 2016, the IPCC strengthened its regional collaboration network with the addition of the cities of Los Angeles, Oakland, Portland, San Francisco, Seattle and Vancouver, B.C. through the Pacific North America Climate Leadership Agreement.
- * Premier Horgan is in Washington state Feb. 7-8, 2019. The two-day trip with Gov. Inslee includes speaking engagements and meetings with government and business leaders in Seattle and Olympia, including Microsoft and the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. Premier Horgan was scheduled to give a formal address to the Washington state legislature Friday, Feb. 8, but the speech was cancelled due to snow. It will be rescheduled in the future.

STATEMENT

Statement on reconciliation process between Province and Office of the Wet'suwet'en

VICTORIA - The Wet'suwet'en Hereditary Chiefs and Scott Fraser, Minister of Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation have issued the following statement to mark the start of a new reconciliation process:

"The Office of the Wet'suwet'en and Province of British Columbia have agreed to explore a path forward together, government-to-government, that seeks to build trust over time and meaningfully advance reconciliation. This process has emerged from decades of denial of Wet'suwet'en rights and title. Both parties believe that the time has come to engage in meaningful nation-to-nation discussions with the goal of B.C. affirming Wet'suwet'en rights and title.

"The Office of the Wet'suwet'en and Province are undertaking a process focused on Wet'suwet'en title, rights, laws and traditional governance throughout the Wet'suwet'en Yintah, or territory.

"Our discussions will be guided by Wet'suwet'en law, the principles of the United Nations Declaration of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's Calls to Action and Canadian jurisprudence, including the Supreme Court of Canada's Delgamuukw Gisday' Wa decision. We stress that our commitment to lasting reconciliation is not connected to any specific project. These discussions are not transactional, but a real commitment to reconciliation.

"To support this work, the Province has appointed Murray Rankin as B.C.'s representative to help guide and design the process between the Province and the Office of the Wet'suwet'en. Mr. Rankin, a lawyer and mediator, has an understanding of the Supreme Court's historic Delgamuukw Gisday' Wa decision and an abiding commitment to better understand the history and current reality of the Wet'suwet'en people.

"As a key step in creating this new foundation for reconciliation, the Wet'suwet'en Hereditary Chiefs will host a bahtlats (potlatch or feast) in March 2019 to share information and initiate discussion with the Wet'suwet'en Clans and House groups. The goal is to involve all in this dialogue. The bahtlats is an established governance and decision-making process under Wet'suwet'en hereditary leadership protocols. This work builds on discussions that have been ongoing since the Premier and minister visited the territory last August. A public announcement will follow after the official commencement of our discussions.

"We all recognize that the path forward will involve challenges. It will take a willingness to innovate and take bold steps together. This engagement is a historic opportunity to advance Wet'suwet'en self-determination and self-governance, and for the Province and Wet'suwet'en Nation to establish a deeper relationship based on respect and recognition of rights."

NEWS RELEASE

New St. Paul's Hospital officially moving forward

VANCOUVER - Improved access to life-saving health care is on the way to downtown Vancouver with the approval of the business plan for a new St. Paul's Hospital.

"For over 125 years, people in Vancouver and across British Columbia have benefited from the health care provided by St. Paul's Hospital," said Premier John Horgan. "Today, we are safeguarding these life-saving services by taking action to build a brand new St. Paul's Hospital that will serve more people and offer better access to the specialized care people need."

Doors of the new $1.9-billion St. Paul's are expected to open in 2026 and will be located at 1002 Station St.

"British Columbians have always expressed great confidence, and taken great comfort, in the care delivered by St. Paul's. After more than a decade and a half of stalling, it is exciting to give the green light to a new, state-of-the-art St. Paul's Hospital that will continue this legacy for many years to come," said Adrian Dix, Minister of Health. "Our government has made it a priority to see this project move forward, so that St. Paul's continues to serve people around the province now and in the future."

The new St. Paul's will continue to serve the people of Vancouver and all of B.C. as an internationally renowned, full-service, acute-care hospital and integrated health campus. It will have capacity for up to 548 beds, which includes 115 net new beds. The site will be the home of several leading provincial programs and referral centres, including for heart and lung care, renal, eating disorders and specialty surgeries and transplants.

The hospital will also offer a diverse and long list of general and specialized care, including HIV/AIDS, chronic disease management services, emergency and critical care, mental health and addictions beds and programs, ambulatory services and outpatient clinics, end-of-life care, Indigenous health, maternity, colorectal and gastrointestinal services, and community care and community outreach programs.

Health-care workers, researchers and students will harness the medical tools of the future in the new hospital, with medical projects like immunotherapy, precision medicine, virtual reality, robotics and 3-D printing. Medical records, test results and images will be instantly and securely accessible to patients and their care team no matter where people are in the hospital or the province. This will help patients be empowered to take more control of their own health.

St. Paul's will continue to be a teaching hospital, training hundreds of University of British Columbia medical students, British Columbia Institute of Technology nursing students and hundreds of other health-sector professions. Integration of care, teaching and research - with emphasis on new knowledge rapidly translated into patient care solutions - will continue to be the focus of its research centres and specialized programs.

The project will be delivered using a design-build finance procurement model and will be cost-shared between the provincial government and Providence Health Care. The St. Paul's Foundation campaign fundraising goal for Providence Health Care is anticipated to be in the hundreds of millions of dollars with a portion allocated to the new core hospital. Jim Pattison, chairman and CEO of the Jim Pattison Group, has already donated $75 million to the future of St. Paul's, a historic contribution in Canadian health-care philanthropy. The current St. Paul's Hospital land at 1081 Burrard Street will be sold with funds going toward the project.

Quotes:

Fiona Dalton, president and chief executive officer, Providence Health Care -

"One hundred and twenty five years ago, St. Paul's Hospital was established by the Sisters of Providence, and ever since then it has delivered compassionate care to the most vulnerable patient populations in Vancouver and across British Columbia. The provincial government's visionary commitment and investment into the new St. Paul's will enable us to take this commitment forward for the next 125 years. We will also work with our partners to ensure this amazing project further strengthens B.C.'s position as a global leader in health care, research and teaching."

Dick Vollet, president and chief executive officer, St. Paul's Foundation -

"The new St. Paul's at the Jim Pattison Medical Centre will establish a new standard for health care and for community building. The site offers a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to create a hospital that's purpose built to put people first. A world-class facility for the 21st century that remains true to our core philosophies of compassion, social justice and innovation. It's a place where the best and brightest will work together to heal the sick, collaborate on new discoveries and mentor the next generation of health-care providers. It's truly so much more than a hospital - it's the beginning of a new era in health care for British Columbians."

Mary Ackenhusen, president and chief executive officer, Vancouver Coastal Health -

"This is an exciting and historic day for health care in British Columbia. The new St. Paul's is a tribute to the extraordinary vision of our partners at Providence Health Care, the commitment of the provincial government and the generosity and support of the community. We look forward with great anticipation to our continued collaboration with Providence Health Care as this 21st-century centre of innovation, patient care, research and education moves forward."

Quick Facts:

- * A business plan confirms scope, cost estimate, procurement and timeline.
- * The first phase of the St. Paul's redevelopment project is building a new core hospital. Phase 2 is expected to include a clinical support and research centre. Future development opportunities will be confirmed upon completion of the Station Street rezoning.
- * All new hospitals in B.C. are planned to a Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Gold standard.
- * Opened in 1894, St. Paul's Hospital offers medical and surgical programs, including cardiac services, HIV/AIDS and kidney care for people around British Columbia.
- * All existing services currently offered by Vancouver Coastal Health in the West End and downtown will remain after St. Paul's Hospital relocates.
- * Vancouver Coastal Health and Providence Health Care are working collaboratively with people in the West End/downtown so they continue to have access to health-care services. This will be done through existing services, while expanding, enhancing and improving access to primary, home and community services.

Thanks for the feedback, Sage.

I hope the attached will work better for the audience – I'm not entirely sure if there will be members present, or if it is just the Executive.

Please let me know if I should make any further edits.

Hello Sarah -- draft copy of the statement is attached. Added the full ministry to Minister Fraser in the lede. That was about it as far as edits go, other than lowercasing "minister" when "Premier and the minister" is mentioned later in the release.

STATEMENT

Statement on reconciliation process between Province and Office of the Wet'suwet'en

VICTORIA - The Wet'suwet'en Hereditary Chiefs and Scott Fraser, Minister of Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation have issued the following statement to mark the start of a new reconciliation process:

"The Office of the Wet'suwet'en and Province of British Columbia have agreed to explore a path forward together, government-to-government, that seeks to build trust over time and meaningfully advance reconciliation. This process has emerged from decades of denial of Wet'suwet'en rights and title. Both parties believe that the time has come to engage in meaningful nation-to-nation discussions with the goal of B.C. affirming Wet'suwet'en rights and title.

"The Office of the Wet'suwet'en and Province are undertaking a process focused on Wet'suwet'en title, rights, laws and traditional governance throughout the Wet'suwet'en Yintah, or territory.

"Our discussions will be guided by Wet'suwet'en law, the principles of the United Nations Declaration of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's Calls to Action and Canadian jurisprudence, including the Supreme Court of Canada's Delgamuukw/Gisday' Wa decision. We stress that our commitment to lasting reconciliation is not connected to any specific project. These discussions are not transactional, but a real commitment to reconciliation.

"To support this work, the Province has appointed Murray Rankin as B.C.'s representative to help guide and design the process between the Province and the Office of the Wet'suwet'en. Mr. Rankin, a lawyer and mediator, has an understanding of the Supreme Court's historic Delgamuukw/Gisday' Wa decision and an abiding commitment to better understand the history and current reality of the Wet'suwet'en people.

"As a key step in creating this new foundation for reconciliation, the Wet'suwet'en Hereditary Chiefs will host a bahtlats (potlatch or feast) in March 2019 to share information and initiate discussion with the Wet'suwet'en Clans and House groups. The goal is to involve all in this dialogue. The bahtlats is an established governance and decision-making process under Wet'suwet'en hereditary leadership protocols. This work builds on discussions that have been ongoing since the Premier and minister visited the territory last August. A public announcement will follow after the official commencement of our discussions.

"We all recognize that the path forward will involve challenges. It will take a willingness to innovate and take bold steps together. This engagement is a historic opportunity to advance Wet'suwet'en self-determination and self-governance, and for the Province and Wet'suwet'en Nation to establish a deeper relationship based on respect and recognition of rights."

Good morning, Everyone -

Over to Danielle to stickhandle with the Premier's People.

After much discussion, we have chosen 3:40 this afternoon - after the Premier's media avail.
But if you want another time, that's an easy change for us.

Distribution as Sharon noted - Victoria, the Gallery and Indigenous media.

(I had to sit on my hands to NOT allow myself to add something about "dashing through the snow.")

Revised a bit more but concerned about the first paragraph. Could you take a look?

New primary-care networks will deliver faster, better health care for you and your family

By John Horgan, Premier of British Columbia

Good health is the foundation for a good life. But for too long, too many B.C. patients have been struggling to access the services they need. People can't find a family doctor, are waiting too long for surgeries and diagnostics, and worry about caring for their aging loved ones.

That's why our government launched primary-care networks in the Fraser northwest region to deliver team-based care that connects people to the health care they need faster and closer to home.

At the heart of the primary-care strategy is a new focus on team-based care to recruit more doctors, nurse practitioners and other health professionals, and put patients back at the centre of health-care delivery.

Over the next three years, across the four networks in the Fraser northwest region, up to 65 new health-care providers will be recruited. As part of our overarching primary care strategy, provincewide, we're recruiting 200 more family practice physicians, 200 nurse practitioners, and 50 clinical pharmacists.

Primary-care networks are part of our work to deliver faster, better health care for you and your family, in every part of the province.

It will take time and work to address the health-care challenges people are facing throughout the province, but we're taking action to fix problems and deliver the services people count on.

Budget 2019 invests more than $1.3 billion in total health spending over three years, which means more doctors and nurses, and shorter wait times for you and your family.

Our surgical and diagnostics strategy, launched less than a year ago, has added 1,110 more MRI hours per week compared to August 2017, with 10 public MRIs now operating 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

From Terrace to Cowichan to Dawson Creek to Richmond, we are building, renovating, and expanding hospitals to meet health care needs today and for future generations. And after more than a decade and half, rebuilding St. Paul's, one of the most important hospitals in B.C., is moving forward.

Urgent Primary Care Centres have been opened in Surrey, Langford, Kamloops, Quesnel and Vancouver to help people who have conditions that are not life-threatening, but need to be addressed within 12-24 hours.

Our government is boosting funding for BC Cancer, increasing the number of cancer-related surgeries, diagnostic imaging, expanding PET and CT scans and increased chemotherapy demands. We're increasing supports for the BC Children's and Women's hospitals to provide services for women, children, newborns and families.

And through Fair PharmaCare we're making prescription drugs more affordable to people when they need them. More than 240,000 B.C. families' prescription medication became more affordable this January thanks to an investment of $105 million in the Fair PharmaCare program.

In every community I visit, patients, doctors, nurses and other health-care professionals all say the same thing: Health care delivery must become more patient-centred. We're going to keep working hard to deliver better, faster health care that you and your family need.

Premier's statement on Lunar New Year
(disponible en français en bas de page)

VICTORIA - Premier John Horgan has released the following statement in celebration of Lunar New Year, beginning Tuesday, Feb. 5, 2019:

"On Lunar New Year, people in British Columbia and around the world gather in celebrations to say goodbye to the Year of the Dog and welcome the Year of the Pig.

"The new year is a time to reflect on the past year, prepare for the year ahead, gather with family, relatives and friends, and give thanks to the generations who have come before us.

"This year, we will strengthen our economy and strive for healthier communities. Together, we will make life better for people and provide opportunities for future generations.

"As we join in vibrant parades and community celebrations, exchange lucky red envelopes and share meals, we wish each other good fortune for the year to come.

"To the many British Columbians celebrating Lunar New Year, I wish you all a prosperous Year of the Pig. May the new year bring you good health, good luck and prosperity.

"Kung Hei Fat Choi! Gong Xi Fa Cai!"

« À l'occasion du Nouvel An lunaire, des gens de la Colombie-Britannique et de partout dans le monde se rassemblent et font la fête pour dire au revoir à l'année du Chien et accueillir l'année du Cochon.

Le Nouvel An est un temps propice pour faire un retour sur l'année qui vient de s'écouler, se préparer à l'année qui commence, se rassembler avec la famille, les proches et les amis et remercier les générations qui nous ont précédés.

Cette année, nous renforcerons notre économie et nous aspirerons à la création de communautés plus saines. Ensemble, nous améliorerons la vie des gens et nous offrirons des possibilités aux générations futures.

En prenant part à de dynamiques défilés et célébrations communautaires, en échangeant des enveloppes rouges chanceuses et en partageant des repas, nous nous souhaitons de la chance pour l'année à venir.

Aux nombreux Britanno-Colombiens qui célèbrent le Nouvel An lunaire, je souhaite une prospère année du Cochon.

Que la nouvelle année vous apporte bonne santé, bonne chance et prospérité.

No problem. I like the "Seattle, Olympia" element as an artful way to establish that it's Washington state.

NEWS RELEASE

New St. Paul's Hospital officially moving forward

VANCOUVER - Improved access to life-saving health care is on the way to downtown Vancouver with the approval of the business plan for a new St. Paul's Hospital.

"For over 125 years, people in Vancouver and across British Columbia have benefited from the health care provided by St. Paul's Hospital," said Premier John Horgan. "Today, we are safeguarding these life-saving services by taking action to build a brand new St. Paul's Hospital that will serve more people and offer better access to the specialized care people need."

Doors of the new $1.9-billion St. Paul's are expected to open in 2026 and will be located at 1002 Station St.

"British Columbians have always expressed great confidence, and taken great comfort, in the care delivered by St. Paul's. After more than a decade and a half of stalling, it is exciting to give the green light to a new, state-of-the-art St. Paul's Hospital that will continue this legacy for many years to come," said Adrian Dix, Minister of Health. "Our government has made it a priority to see this project move forward, so that St. Paul's continues to serve people around the province now and in the future."

The new St. Paul's will continue to serve the people of Vancouver and all of B.C. as an internationally renowned, full-service, acute-care hospital and integrated health campus. It will have capacity for up to 548 beds, which includes 115 net new beds. The site will be the home of several leading provincial programs and referral centres, including for heart and lung care, renal, eating disorders and specialty surgeries and transplants.

The hospital will also offer a diverse and long list of general and specialized care, including HIV/AIDS, chronic disease management services, emergency and critical care, mental health and addictions beds and programs, ambulatory services and outpatient clinics, end-of-life care, Indigenous health, maternity, colorectal and gastrointestinal services, and community care and community outreach programs.

Health-care workers, researchers and students will harness the medical tools of the future in the new hospital, with medical projects like immunotherapy, precision medicine, virtual reality, robotics and 3-D printing. Medical records, test results and images will be instantly and securely accessible to patients and their care team no matter where people are in the hospital or the province. This will help patients be empowered to take more control of their own health.

St. Paul's will continue to be a teaching hospital, training hundreds of University of British Columbia medical students, British Columbia Institute of Technology nursing students and hundreds of other health-sector professions. Integration of care, teaching and research - with emphasis on new knowledge rapidly translated into patient care solutions - will continue to be the focus of its research centres and specialized programs.

The project will be delivered using a design-build finance procurement model and will be cost-shared between the provincial government and Providence Health Care. The St. Paul's Foundation campaign fundraising goal for Providence Health Care is anticipated to be in the hundreds of millions of dollars with a portion allocated to the new core hospital. Jim Pattison, chairman and CEO of the Jim Pattison Group, has already donated $75 million to the future of St. Paul's, a historic contribution in Canadian health-care philanthropy. The current St. Paul's Hospital land at 1081 Burrard Street will be sold with funds going toward the project.

Quotes:

Fiona Dalton, president and chief executive officer, Providence Health Care -

"One hundred and twenty five years ago, St. Paul's Hospital was established by the Sisters of Providence, and ever since then it has delivered compassionate care to the most vulnerable patient populations in Vancouver and across British Columbia. The provincial government's visionary commitment and investment into the new St. Paul's will enable us to take this commitment forward for the next 125 years. We will also work with our partners to ensure this amazing project further strengthens B.C.'s position as a global leader in health care, research and teaching."

Dick Vollet, president and chief executive officer, St. Paul's Foundation -

"The new St. Paul's at the Jim Pattison Medical Centre will establish a new standard for health care and for community building. The site offers a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to create a hospital that's purpose built to put people first. A world-class facility for the 21st century that remains true to our core philosophies of compassion, social justice and innovation. It's a place where the best and brightest will work together to heal the sick, collaborate on new discoveries and mentor the next generation of health-care providers. It's truly so much more than a hospital - it's the beginning of a new era in health care for British Columbians."

Mary Ackenhuisen, president and chief executive officer, Vancouver Coastal Health -

"This is an exciting and historic day for health care in British Columbia. The new St. Paul's is a tribute to the extraordinary vision of our partners at Providence Health Care, the commitment of the provincial government and the generosity and support of the community. We look forward with great anticipation to our continued collaboration with Providence Health Care as this 21st-century centre of innovation, patient care, research and education moves forward."

Quick Facts:

- * A business plan confirms scope, cost estimate, procurement and timeline.
- * The first phase of the St. Paul's redevelopment project is building a new core hospital. Phase 2 is expected to include a clinical support and research centre. Future development opportunities will be confirmed upon completion of the Station Street rezoning.
- * All new hospitals in B.C. are planned to a Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Gold standard.
- * Opened in 1894, St. Paul's Hospital offers medical and surgical programs, including cardiac services, HIV/AIDS and kidney care for people around British Columbia.
- * All existing services currently offered by Vancouver Coastal Health in the West End and downtown will remain after St. Paul's Hospital relocates.
- * Vancouver Coastal Health and Providence Health Care are working collaboratively with people in the West End/downtown so they continue to have access to health-care services. This will be done through existing services, while expanding, enhancing and improving access to primary, home and community services.

Hi there – just making sure the comments about Carol Todd are contextualized elsewhere?
It isn't clear from his SN what she went through or why the audience should be sympathetic.
(I understand she's Amanda Todd's mom, just want to make sure she or someone else is telling Amanda's story before PJH speaks.)
Otherwise, good. Thx.

Hi Sage,

I just received updates from EDUC. The new online safety sessions will actually reach 19,000 students, which is now reflected in the SN and BG.

They also confirmed that Central Middle School will do the third performance. They do not know yet who the Central student receiving the proclamation will be, which is now TBD and highlighted in the SN.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thank you,

Okay, here's the graph with changed line bolded. George had minor change:

As the phase one review of BC Hydro nears completion, government is determined to fix the problems and make sure that BC Hydro can deliver affordable, clean and reliable power to its customers. And government is undertaking the most significant reforms to car insurance in a generation, after the old government ignored the worsening situation at ICBC - leaving the crown corporation with losses of more than $2 billion in the last two years. Government will continue to consider further measures to make sure that ICBC can deliver high-quality public auto insurance coverage at the lowest possible cost.

We are committed to act jointly together to fight climate change, increase connectivity and transportation links, grow the innovation economy and tech sector, grow mutually beneficial trade, and work to make life more affordable for people."

Good morning,

My name is Courtney, and I am writing a brief news release in preparation of the Premier's visit to the Washington State Capitol next week. I was hoping to get a quick quote from the office regarding the main focus of the speech he will be giving, so that I can include it into my news release. I left a voicemail message at your office number, but feel free to contact me here via email if that is an easier option for you.
