Minister,

An update to say I'm now told that for reasons of confidentiality it seems they are not able to print the cabinet documents in Vancouver so they would like you to bring your iPad. Dean Andruz from PREM Tech will be on-site. If you ask for him when you arrive (Danny at reception will connect you) and Dean will ensure you're able to access all the materials. Thanks for bearing with me here.

Good morning Minister,

I just wanted to let you know that I've been in touch with PREM and Monica, and we're having materials for the meeting printed for you at VCO. I've asked when they'll be ready, and will let you know as soon as I hear back. I was hoping to find a better solution earlier, but as Brett mentions in his note, whenever you arrive at VCO and connect to the WiFi you should be able to see the materials on your iPad.

Minister,

I wanted to flag a small snag related to the Ministry Briefing on scheduled for February 7. Lorna is unable to find a room in the Legislature large enough to accommodate all the participants.

I'd like to propose 2 possible options:

1. We could do the briefing at the Ministry's Blanchard St. offices in Victoria. You are on OIC duty that day, so we would request leave for you.
2. We could host the meeting in your office in the legislature. I understand the Ministry has 12 people scheduled to participate, so we would likely have to ask people to wait outside your office and come into brief you when their issues come up.

Let me know which option you would prefer and we'll organize accordingly.

Hi everyone,

Here's a draft of the Beijing NR - don't anticipate many more changes from the PO so seeking approvals on MBR's and MoSC's quotes.

"Our robust economy, abundant natural resources and stable business environment offer excellent opportunities for Chinese investors," said Minister of Jobs, Trade and Technology Bruce Ralston. "The groundwork we're laying in China today will help attract investment, promote exports and, most importantly, lead to job creation in B.C."

"Business in China is about building relationships," said Minister of State for Trade George Chow. "Through face-to-face meetings with government and business leaders, we're engaging corporate investors and entrepreneurs to promote B.C. as a competitive destination for trade and investment."

Request

The Jon McComb Show on CKNW would like to have the Minister on for a live interview tomorrow to discuss the Asia Mission (no listener questions). They have two time slots that could work:

8:40-8:47

8:48-8:56

Questions are: What is the provincial government hoping to achieve from the trip? What (what industries, perhaps) is the trip looking to promote? Who will the government be meeting with? Will the future of NAFTA be up for discussion?

Background

Recommendation: recommend the minister do the interview. Latest QA attached.

NEWS RELEASE

Government to fund engineering programs for students in Prince George

PRINCE GEORGE - Students can look forward to the addition of hundreds of tech-related seats in engineering coming to Prince George, providing more educational and training opportunities needed for 21st-century jobs.

The provincial funding is a historic investment for residents of northern British Columbia, who were previously unable to complete their entire undergraduate engineering program in their region.

"Our government is opening the doors of opportunity to students in Prince George who want to pursue an exciting career in the rapidly growing tech sector," said Melanie Mark, Minister of Advanced Education, Skills and Training. "The addition of these engineering programs in the North means local students will soon be able to study and obtain good-paying jobs close to home - strengthening individuals, families and communities throughout the North."

The University of Northern British Columbia (UNBC) will receive $400,000 of startup funding in 2017-18 for new civil and environmental engineering degree programs. This funding will ramp up to support a total of 280 spaces by 2022-23, with 70 graduates per year expected by 2023.

"These new engineering programs will bring tremendous value to the North, while strengthening UNBC's presence in the science, technology, engineering and mathematics fields," said Daniel Weeks, president of UNBC. "We know that when we train students in the North, they stay in the North, further enhancing our capacity as knowledge leaders, while helping spur tremendous economic activity and collaboration with other post-secondary institutions. Students, industry and communities across the North have been asking for, and working towards, a full engineering-degree program for a considerable time and we are finally able to provide it, which is reason for celebration in northern B.C. and around the province."

The College of New Caledonia (CNC) will receive $250,000 in 2017-18 to develop a new civil-engineering technologist program. The program will support a total of 50 spaces by 2021-22, and is expected to produce 25 graduates per year by 2022. This will be the first engineering technologist program in B.C. to be offered north of Kamloops.

"We are thrilled to receive this funding for the new technologist program, thanks to the B.C. government," said Henry Reiser, president of CNC. "This program will play a crucial role in filling the talent gap for technologist jobs in the North."

Of the 83,400 job openings in tech-related fields in the next decade, 2,200 are expected to be in northern B.C. This provides opportunities closer to home for graduates of the new tech programs at UNBC and CNC, should they choose to stay.

"Engineering and tech-related careers are the stable, well-paying jobs of the future," said Will Cadell, board chair of Innovation Central Society and Sparkgeo.com CEO. "We need access to a talent pool which can support the growth of our tech sector. Training and educating tech talent here in the North is critical to ensuring that employers can continue to grow with the support of homegrown talent. Additionally, tech professionals have the potential to work remotely, increasing work-life balance options in the North."

These spaces are part of the investment in approximately 2,900 additional seats in tech programs at colleges, universities and institutes throughout the province. Total startup funding this year is $4.4 million and is expected to increase to $42 million by 2023.

Quick Facts:

- * About 83,400 tech-related job openings in B.C. are expected by 2027. Of those, 2,200 will be in northern B.C. - jobs like computer programmers, information system analysts and civil engineers.
- * The tech sector in B.C. is one of the fastest-growing sectors of the economy, generating approximately $29 billion in revenue and providing 106,000 good-paying jobs. It is home to more than 10,200 businesses.
- * Tech-sector workers earn weekly average salaries almost 85% higher than the average wage in B.C.
- * Post-secondary institutions in B.C. award more than 10,000 credentials annually in programs that support the tech sector: science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

We have almost finalized all the materials for next week's natural resources forum. All the items are attached and listed below. We opted (as discussed) to do a top QA for MosC and MBR for their panels, and have provided a very comprehensive KM document for anything not included in the QA. It's indexed and arranged by topic, so it should be easy for the ministers to quickly flip to the appropriate page for their messaging when questions come from the floor.

Hi Minister,

So it's a bit late but I just received the plan for the Modular Housing announcement in Surrey this Friday. Full details attached.

I'm cc'ing Amanda so she can work out calendar / scheduling adjustments.
