What happens with the reference case on regulating bitumen?

- We have retained expert legal counsel and are preparing a reference case as we have said we would.
- This isn't about any one project, it is about ensuring that the government of BC is able to stand up for British Columbians' interests.
- We have an obligation to protect our land, air and water and the tens of thousands of jobs that depend on them.

Request

The reporter would like to know if the Ministry of Attorney General has any comment about the RFP by the Liquor

Distribution Branch to develop online liquor sales, similar to the LCBO in Ontario, and the move by BCLC to hire a company to develop virtual reality gambling products?

The reporter would also like to know if the ministry will be directly involved in advising and monitoring either program, as both may have adverse impacts on vulnerable people.

Background – the online solution being developed by LDB may be used for online cannabis sales, should the Province direct this. The BCLC virtual reality games are in very early stages and have not been approved by the AG.

Recommendation – provide background

Government is committed to introducing legislation to address lawsuits that unduly limit expression on matters of public interest. We are currently considering the means of ensuring that such legislation will be as fair and effective as possible. I appreciate hearing from leaders in the legal community who have shared their support on this important matter.”

Sam Cooper - Province

ISSUE: AML software

STATUS: Provided Background

- • Upon request from the Attorney General, Dr. Peter German is investigating SAS as part of his independent and thorough review of British Columbia’s anti-money-laundering policies and practices in relation to B.C. casinos. He has been asked specifically to identify issues of money laundering in Lower Mainland casinos and to advise government on connections, if any, to other areas of B.C.’s economy.
  - Dr. German has since provided two interim recommendations that I have reviewed and approved.
  - The goal of these recommendations and those that will follow in the coming months is to ensure, as soon as possible, that B.C. casinos are meeting high anti-money laundering standards, that these standards are consistently enforced, and that criminals are kept out of casinos.
  - I expect Dr. German’s full report by the end of March.

Hi team AG (and hi Shawn, look forward to working together),

Our team is working on drafting/updating QP notes in preparation for the return of session. I've prepared a short list of topics for the AG portfolio and would appreciate your thoughts on any additions or key information to flag on the topics.

- ICBC finances
- ICBC product reform
- Liquor enforcement (drafted – could use some detail on the Mark Hicken review process/timelines)
- Electoral reform engagement and referendum

To the MO folks – would you be able to review the Minister’s current folder and flag any notes that you think need updating or that we could remove?

Happy to chat through any questions with anyone.

Liquor Enforcement

Highlights:

- There was significant public interest to media reports of enforcement action by the Liquor Distribution Branch in January to confiscate whisky that had not been purchased through the proper legal process.

s.13

Solution:

- The Liquor Control and Licensing Branch operates at arms-length, and enforcement decisions cannot be directed by the Attorney General.
- That said, we recognize that the system has to change.
- Bars or restaurants that specialize in exotic products should be able to access that product legally.
- This is one of the reasons that we appointed Mark Hicken as a Liquor Policy Advisor to reach out to the alcohol manufacturing, retail and hospitality industry.
- Mark is meeting with these stakeholders now and will put forward recommendations to an industry panel about how we can improve the system.
- We recognize the significant contribution to our economy and to our communities from the hospitality sector and we are committed to ensuring liquor regulations work for all British Columbians.

Background:

- Media reports that officials from the Liquor Control and Licensing Branch (LCLB) seized products from four bars: the Grand Hotel Nanaimo, the Union Club, and Little Jumbo Restaurant in Victoria, and Fets Whisky Kitchen in Vancouver.
- Media reports suggest that agents seized 242 bottles of whisky worth about $40,000 from Fets Whisky Kitchen.
- Licensees who have had product seized may apply to LCLB to have their product returned or to be compensated for seized product provided they can demonstrate they were legally entitled to possess the liquor.
- All liquor products sold by a hospitality customer (bars and restaurants) must be purchased through the Liquor Distribution Branch and must be documented in the establishment's liquor register.
- Hospitality customers must make all their purchases through either the LDB's Wholesale Customer Centre, in a BC Liquor Store, or via direct delivery by an authorized manufacturer.
- Where products are sold via direct delivery, the manufacturer acts as the LDB's agent in selling the product. These products must also be clearly documented in the liquor register.
- The Liquor Control and Licensing Branch (LCLB) does not release private information about any licensee and cannot comment on compliance measures taken against establishments.
- As part of its regular operations, the LCLB performs inspections and follows up on complaints received about establishments.
- An inspector may seize product in an establishment if the inspector believes that it was unlawfully obtained or kept for an unlawful purpose.

Electoral Reform Process

Highlights:

- The Opposition has claimed a referendum threshold of 50% + 1 is too low and that electoral reform will disadvantage rural regions.

s.13

Solution:

---

- Our government believes it is time for all British Columbians to have a say in the fundamental question of how we elect our MLAs.
- We will hold a referendum by November 2018 to give people the opportunity to vote on whether to adopt a more proportional system of government.
- We will ensure that British Columbians are presented with a clear question.
- We will ensure that every British Columbian has an equal voice.
- We believe that British Columbians deserve to have a say on how we conduct elections in this province.

Page 55

Withheld pursuant to/removed as

s.13

Validators:

---

- The Member for Vancouver – False Creek:
  - “The other issue is about electoral reform. I know that we’ve had referendums in 2005 and 2009, but there will be another one.”
- The Member for Kamloops – South Thompson:
  - “we are committed to enabling a third referendum with a clear question...”
- The Member for Richmond – Steveston:
  - “The discussion around electoral reform is a key facet of our democracy, and renewing a healthy debate on our system is important. That’s why we have committed to a third referendum on electoral reform.”
- The Member for Vancouver Langara:
  - “For many, it’s important that we conduct a third referendum on electoral reform to give British Columbians an opportunity to consider once again what is the best electoral system for this province and its people. Again, we listened, and we’ve acted.”

ICBC

Highlights:

- ICBC posted a net loss of $935 million for the first nine months of fiscal 2017/18 and projects a net loss of $1.3 billion for the full year.
- There has been significant media coverage of the previous government redacting a 2014 independent report to remove recommendations to fix financial problems at ICBC.

s.13

Solution:

---

- ICBC must become financially sustainable to keep rates affordable for British Columbians.
- We are implementing some of the very solutions that the old government was told could have avoided the current financial crisis at ICBC.
- People shouldn't be paying ever higher premiums to pay for ever rising legal costs.
- We are going to focus ICBC resources on providing more care for those hurt in crashes by doubling maximum medical and rehabilitation benefits to help people get better faster.
- And introducing Alternative Dispute Resolution for the majority of minor claims in order to get faster results for people at lower costs.

Withheld pursuant to/removed as

Background:

- Figures for the first nine months of the 2017/18 fiscal year show a net loss of $943 million at ICBC with full year losses expected to reach $1.3 billion.
- Postmedia has reported that
- The Attorney General announced changes to the Basic Insurance product:
  - $5,500 cap on general damages for pain and suffering resulting from legally defined minor injuries, with the option to purchase additional coverage;
  - Substantial increases to wage loss, funeral and death benefits;
  - A doubling of the upper limit for medical and rehabilitation costs;
  - Alternative Dispute Resolution for the majority of injury claims through the Civil Resolution Tribunal;
  - Payment of wage loss and medical expenses as they occur rather than lump cash settlements, and ICBC becomes second payer on tort wage loss and medical costs;
- Increases to medical benefits are retroactive to January 1, 2018 with other changes anticipated to take effect April 1 2019.

Accident benefit details:

- Doubling the lifetime allowance for medical care and recovery costs for those catastrophically injured in a car accident from $150,000 to $300,000. Legislation will be introduced with the intention of making this benefit retroactive to Jan. 1, 2018, in order to start immediately helping seriously injured British Columbians.
- Covering a greater variety of treatment services.
- Significantly increasing the amount covered for treatments, so customers don't have to pay out-of-pocket.
- More than doubling wage loss payments to $740 per week, almost doubling home support benefits to $280 per week, tripling funeral cost coverage to $7,500, and increasing death benefits to $30,000.

Alternative dispute resolution:

- Use of the CRT for minor injury dispute resolution means claimants who don't use a lawyer will get to keep their entire settlement, rather than paying a portion of it to lawyer fees.
- The use of the CRT for these disputes will also reduce ICBC's legal costs, which account for 24% of the corporation's total annual costs. These costs are greater than the cost of running ICBC.

Below is a note on the Comeau Decision and suggested lines. s.13

s.13

Comeau Decision from Supreme Court of Canada

Background:

- In a unanimous ruling, the Supreme Court found that provincial liquor laws do not conflict with constitutional protections for the flow of trade.
- Gerard Comeau is a New Brunswick man who was ticketed for bringing alcohol from Quebec in excess of New Brunswick limits.
- He launched a court challenge based on section 121 of the Constitution, which states that goods that are grown, produced or manufactured in any province shall be “admitted free into each of the other Provinces.”
- The Attorney General of BC intervened in the case to argue that NB's provincial liquor laws should be upheld as they have a legitimate policy purpose.
- In their ruling the Court notes that provincial regulations may impact trade so long as they have some other primary purpose (e.g. public health) and are not intended to block trade.
- The BC Wine Institute expressed disappointment with the ruling and said they will continue to work with industry partners and federal and provincial governments to remove barriers to allow direct to consumer shipping of wine.
- The Court stated that provincial governments have the autonomy "to develop their societies within their respective spheres of jurisdiction."
- However, the case did not deal with competing federal and provincial jurisdiction and so does not impact directly on BC's effort to affirm it's jurisdiction to regulate environmental impacts of federally regulated projects.
- The Court made a point of underlining that provincial measures cannot be used to punish another province which signals trouble for Alberta's proposed gas restrictions.

Message:

- We are taking the time to review the decision.

The Attorney General noted that the ruling seems to have a message for Alberta with the Court stating that provinces can't block trade in an attempt to punish other provinces.

- We're committed to expanding markets for BC wine, beer and spirits, and that's why we showcased BC wines on our trade mission this past January in Japan and Korea.
- Our government is working to helping all BC businesses diversify and expand into new markets worldwide, so they can grow and create jobs in BC.

Can you check with AG that he is ok with the middle line being added to AB legislation note?

The Premier asked for language on that aspect of the Comeau case.

- Section 92 of the Constitution is clear. Laws “may not authorize or provide for discrimination in prices or in supplies exported to another province of Canada.”
- The Supreme Court of Canada went out of their way last week to warn that attempts to punish other provinces through trade measures are not allowed.
- Any attempt to restrict gasoline shipments to BC would not only violate the Constitution, but also the North West Partnership Agreement and the Canadian Free Trade Agreement.

SK Minister of Energy is to table Bill 126 The Energy Export Act today following question period (which is about to begin).

Global News reports that the SK Premier said the legislation would only be used if Alberta acted first.

Previous comments from SK Premier Moe:

“We will be asking for the opposition’s support on this legislation. We’d like to pass it this session; as quickly as possible. So in the event Alberta moves on their legislation and does turn off the taps, if you will, to British Columbia, Saskatchewan won’t be filling those fuel tanks up,” Moe said.

“We hope we don’t have to use this legislation. It’s our true and sincere hope that the federal government uses the tools in their toolbox and have been willing to use in areas where they don’t have jurisdiction in this case,” Moe said.

ICBC – Product Reform

Highlights:

- ICBC posted a net loss of $935 million for the first nine months of fiscal 2017/18 and projects a net loss of $1.3 billion for the full year.
- The Attorney General introduced legislation to implement product reform including increasing medical benefits while capping awards for pain and suffering from minor injuries at $5,500.
- Columnists have suggested it is a form of “no fault lite” and that there may be legal challenges to the cap on damages.

s.13

Solution:

---

- ICBC must become financially sustainable to keep rates affordable for British Columbians.
- We are implementing some of the very solutions that the old government was told could have avoided the current financial crisis at ICBC.
- People shouldn't be paying ever higher premiums just to pay for ever rising legal costs.
- We are going to focus ICBC resources on providing more care for those hurt in crashes by doubling maximum medical and rehabilitation benefits to help people get better faster.
- Introducing Alternative Dispute Resolution for minor claims will mean faster results for people at lower costs.
- We are working to address this unnecessary crisis created by the old government, while keeping rates affordable and making ICBC work for people again.

Background:

- Figures for the first nine months of the 2017/18 fiscal year show a net loss of $943 million at ICBC with full year losses expected to reach $1.3 billion.
- The Attorney General announced changes to the Basic Insurance product:
  - $5,500 cap on general damages for pain and suffering resulting from legally defined minor injuries, with the option to purchase additional coverage;
  - Substantial increases to wage loss, funeral and death benefits;
  - A doubling of the upper limit for medical and rehabilitation costs;
  - Alternative Dispute Resolution for the majority of injury claims through the Civil Resolution Tribunal;
  - Payment of wage loss and medical expenses as they occur rather than lump cash settlements, and ICBC becomes second payer on tort wage loss and medical costs;
- Increases to medical benefits are retroactive to January 1, 2018 with other changes anticipated to take effect April 1 2019.
- British Columbia is the last province to have completely uncapped damages.

Accident benefit details:

- Doubling the lifetime allowance for medical care and recovery costs for those catastrophically injured in a car accident from $150,000 to $300,000. Benefit will be retroactive to Jan. 1, 2018, in order to start immediately helping seriously injured British Columbians.
- Covering a greater variety of treatment services.
- Significantly increasing the amount covered for treatments, so customers don't have to pay out-of-pocket.
- More than doubling wage loss payments to $740 per week, almost doubling home support benefits to $280 per week, tripling funeral cost coverage to $7,500, and increasing death benefits to $30,000.

Alternative dispute resolution:

- Use of the Civil Resolution Tribunal for minor injury dispute resolution means claimants who don't use a lawyer will get to keep their entire settlement, rather than paying a portion of it to lawyer fees.
- The use of the CRT for these disputes will also reduce ICBC's legal costs, which account for 24% of the corporation's total annual costs. These costs are greater than the cost of running ICBC.
