Hello team,

Hope you had a great long weekend.

s.22

Nicole will be covering for me Tuesday.

Tuesday is Titanic Tuesday (I just learned this term). We have fully prepared for this. No Work from Homes we given for Tuesday. We have already assigned registry staff to TBA's. And we are all hoping that a few matters settle this weekend.

As it stands we have 6 people going to court. We were able to get help from Main Street and the Justice Centre. We have pulled heavily from Civil so any assistance is greatly appreciated. This is one tough day before the Judges conference.

Good luck! I know it is going to be a stressful morning but a great afternoon.

and am available through email or phone the rest of the day.

Happy long weekend Karie,

I hope you had a relaxing time off. It really is well deserved.

There wasn't much to report from Friday.

Power Outage

There was a scheduled power outage for this weekend. Manj sent out the email to all staff. At the end of the day we ensured all the computers were turned off (including yours).

This weekend our on call DDR had to go in on a matter both Saturday and Sunday which was affected by the power outage. Luckily our Supreme Court rooms (301, 302, 303) on the Robson side still had power. I suggested to Winnie to have the security guard escort her over to Robson and enter through that way (it is the easiest way). Winnie was able to access the after hours court room key, and security was able to assist in escorting Winnie to the court rooms. The matters were heard both days.

I know in the past we have had power outages that have affected both VLC and Robson. Manj and I started talking about having a laptop with DARS access on it, similar to what is done in Circuit Court. This may be the best backup solution.

Documents found in Trash

I sent an email to the staff and cc'd the sheriff's regarding the importance of properly disposing of documents. I discussed with Alvin Lau my next steps. He asked me to file an IRIS report and he was going to file a report to the Judiciary. I updated Michelle on this (I sent the email to you as well). Michelle was going to update Angela and I will create the IRIS report when I return.

Court Tuesday

Tuesday we have all court rooms being utilized. We were able to get help from VTC (Charmaine), Main Street, and the Justice Centre. From the registry we tentatively have 6 people going to court with another on stand by. At this point we will be tight in the registry but we won't have to close any counters. There are no WFH assigned for Tuesday.

Coverage for Scott

I have Nicole covering for me on Tuesday.

Karie, if you need anything I am always available.^{s.22}

Hi Ange,

It was brought to VLC Court Admin's attention on Thursday May 20th, 2021 that an individual had opened some of our garbage bags in the loading dock and dumped out the contents which appeared to be court related documents. Scott reviewed the documents that were found in the garbage dumpster and a couple of documents contained private/confidential information. We took the following action:

1. Emailed the janitorial services manager to ensure all blue recycle bins are not emptied by the cleaners and if they are contents should be placed in secure recycling – email attached
2. Email reminder to staff to ensure document recycling procedures are followed due to the confidential material we deal with – email attached
3. Scott reviewed to documents and contacted Alvin Lau pursuant to the Court Records Incident Management Policy. An IRIS report is being initiated – email attached.
4. Alvin will share the details of this incident at the executive as it may be an issue that has/is occurring at other court locations.

Please let us know if you have any questions or comments.

Please find attached my email to the VLC staff in regards to document shredding. It is a reminder for all employees to ensure they are following the proper process for document destruction.

Karie spoke with Tammy Fry regarding the cleaners putting our blue bin recycling in the garbage. The attached email is Tammy's response that this is something the cleaners are not suppose to do. This will be reiterated to the cleaners. I have attached this email exchange.

I have connected with Alvin Lau in regards to the documents being placed in the garbage. He has asked me to file an IRIS report. He has indicated that he also needs to file a report with the Judiciary.

I will complete the IRIS report on Wednesday when I return.

Good afternoon team,

Recently we became aware that some court documents that had been placed in individual recycle bins had been emptied into our trash bin rather than the confidential shredding bins. We are following up with our janitorial services to ensure the contents of individual recycle bin are emptied into the appropriate confidential recycle bins.

As a reminder, it is critical, that when you're disposing court documents that you ensure anything with confidential/personal information is placed in the secured shredding bin. Please also continue to be cognisant of leaving documents containing personal information in public view.

Please let me know if you have any questions,

Hi Tammy,

It has come to our attention that the cleaners at Vancouver Law Courts when emptying garbage receptacles in offices may also be emptying the blue paper recycle bins into the garbage. As the recycle bins often contain information that should be shredded not placed in the garbage, we would ask that the recycle bins not be emptied.

Thanks so much!

Hi Alvin,

Hope you are well and thank you for your support with this. I wanted to mention that obviously we were surprised that our janitorial services would empty our recycle bins and not place the material in the larger Shred-it bin but rather in the garbage. We have addressed this as it relates to VLC but I have to wondering if this might be happening in other locations and a more global communication to CSB's janitorial services should be considered. The obvious concerns are confidentiality associated to the type of documentation we deal with as well as throwing paper in the garbage isn't consistent with our recycling policy/commitment.

Just felt I should mention it as I can't image it would only happen at VLC.

Have a great long weekend my friend.

Hi Alvin,

How are you doing?

I am hoping to get some direction from you.

Yesterday an individual had ripped open some of our garbage bags in our loading dock and dumped it out around the garbage can. I was called down to take a look as their appeared to be court related documents. When I inspected the documents, they were public court lists, blank forms, old CLE pages (these are public – mostly about proper wording of orders), two sticky notes that contained an employee's first name and a note (the note did not contain client information), a photocopy of a marriage certificate, and a court list that had counsel work email addresses (which can be searched via an internet search).

It appears that that some court documents that had been placed in individual recycle bins had been emptied into our trash bin rather than the confidential shredding bins. We have followed up with our janitorial services to ensure the contents of individual recycle bin are not emptied and the staff will be reminded that they must ensure documents are placed in the secured shredding.

We have spoken with the janitorial group and we will be addressing this with the staff. Alvin are there any other steps that I should be taking?

Thank you again,

Scott

I just wanted to bring Darryl Greer's response to the attached letter to your attention. Hello,

Thank you for the reply. I am intimately familiar with the media table at the Vancouver law courts.^{s.22}

^{s.22} Lately, the access to new lawsuits has been delayed by up to three weeks, which is extremely concerning. What used to be a routine, basic, daily event allowing next-day access to the court's daily business, the delays have been getting worse and worse. The "small fee" is not small when we're talking about hundreds of files that are being arbitrarily withheld from the media for weeks at a time, subject to the registry's whim, or "operational constraints." My company, Courthouse News, has run into similar issues in other courts, including in California, where we've litigated the issue of "no-access-before-process" policies. A ruling from the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals can be read here:

I'm aware that the pandemic has created a number of challenges for court registries, but mitigation efforts should not come at the expense of timely, routine disclosure of public interest information. We're literally talking about moving a stack of files from one side of a room to another, with no operational resources needed other than someone to move them on a daily basis from one desk to another.

I've been in nearly constant communication with registry leadership about the issue, and am happy to share any past correspondence to give the CSB more context about my ongoing struggle to ensure and preserve the court's tradition of access granted to reporters.

Thank you,

Darryl Greer

Dear Darryl Greer:

Thank you for your email of May 12, 2021, addressed to the Honourable David Eby, Attorney General and Minister Responsible for Housing, regarding court delays and facility concerns at the Vancouver Law Courts and the New Westminster registry. I am responding in my capacity as Assistant Deputy Minister of Court Services Branch.

I am sorry to hear that your recent experience at the New Westminster court registry was a negative one. Court Services Branch (CSB) is committed to ensuring barrier-free access to courtrooms and court services across British Columbia. Senior staff at the New Westminster court registry have confirmed that a chair is often present at the location that you have described. Please note that due to COVID-19 protocols seating has been reduced at this registry. Because of this reduction, members of the public do, on occasion, move chairs for their convenience. There are no plans to permanently remove chairs from this section of the New Westminster registry. If you attend this registry in future and find that a chair has been moved, staff will be happy to assist you in locating and moving a replacement.

CSB is committed to ensuring adequate resources to manage the justice system, reduce delays, and improve the timeliness of court matters. As courts gradually increased in-person appearances and opened registry services in the summer of 2020, there was a significant volume of information to be data entered that staff continue to work through. Processes have been put in place to manage this data entry backlog. It is anticipated that the service, and access to information, that you were accustomed to prior to the pandemic will once again be achieved.

Additionally, in order to reduce potential barriers to court access, the Vancouver Law Courts provide a free media table, allowing daily access to new files once they have been created. If a new civil file is no longer available on this table, it can be accessed through the registry's records department for a small legislated search fee. This table operates as a courtesy to members of the media and is subject to operational constraints. Please rest

Hi all,

Corrections reached out to share the information below.

There are approximately 10 defendants @NFPC with bail orders containing terms to be picked up by New Visions.

New Visions does not anticipate being in a position to pick up the defendants in the near future.

A similar issue is also effecting Surrey Pre Trial.

Take care.

Hi Ange,

The VLC Incident debrief was held from 12:45pm to 1:15pm at the Law Courts Inn. Approximately 30 court admin staff attended, the majority being court clerks. Steve did an excellent debrief which covered the following:

- Incident review – timeline of events
- Update on impacted CSB employees and resources provided – CISM team
- Review of emergency procedures
 - Panic button procedures
 - Flagging of files
 - Communicating concerns or observations
- Answered questions from staff related to:
 - Search gates
s.15
 - # of sheriff rover positions
 - Civil courts –s.15
 - Emergency procedures training – Steve and Karie will work together to ensure training continues to be provided to new employees
 - This is generally scheduled over the Judge's conferences and the high employee turnover does make this challenging
- Resources will be provided to all staff including EFAP, CISM, WorkSafe has additional services.
 - The court clerk and sheriffs staff that were directly involved in the situation will also receive support from VPD Victims Services, if they choose.

Several staff indicated they were very appreciative of the opportunity to have a debrief within hours of the incident. Having Steve deliver a timeline of the events within hours of the incident will minimize some of the inaccurate information that may be circulating.

Appreciate your email Karie, and I will certainly discuss with Jenny and Dan. Concerns have been raised before from the court clerks at VLC and obviously there is still concern even after providing them information that our safety protocols in place should prevent any transmission of COVID in the CR.

Jenny, Dan, I don't want this escalated through the clerks to judiciary, fuelled by the union. Can we discuss how we should address, me to Heidi or in your discussions with Heidi?

Subject: For Discussion/Direction: VLC Court Clerk Concerns over new COVID transmission data and re-evaluating safety protocols

Hi Angela,

The court clerks have brought the below email to our attention. In reading the email it appears their main concern is judges allowing parties to remove their masks in the courtrooms. I feel their concerns were probably amplified with the email they received from the union (below) concerning airborne particles. The court clerks are also asking for an opportunity to have an open discussion with the judiciary about requiring masks in the courtrooms. I have reached out to Brad Buck, Director of Safety, to see if he had any recent comments or insight into the information the union sent out to employees regarding airborne transmissions.

Brad was aware of the union email and indicated that the information around aerosols and airborne particles has not really changed since last year and that all our safety protocols in place should prevent any transmission of COVID in the CR. Brad suggested however, I speak to David Hay from PSA who is very involved with COVID health and safety in the workplace.

In speaking to David, he provided me with a lot of information around airborne transmission and re-assured me that in addition to all of our safety measures in place -health checks, distancing, plexi, handwashing, masks, and ventilation, the clerks are at a low risk of contracting the virus and should be protected even if someone removes their mask. He did say however, that unless there is a valid reason to remove the mask they should remain on in the CR. David has had considerable involvement with the courts and judiciary around COVID health and safety protocols and he added that being a clerk can be stressful and to have to worry about someone not wearing a mask is adding stress to their day. I can say that recently we had an incident where masks were not always being worn by parties in the CR and one of the parties tested positive for COVID. Another recent occurrence was in a CR where masks are not always worn and one of the counsel was informed in the morning their sibling who they are in close contact with tested positive for COVID. Instead of standing the case down, the judge allowed the counsel to remain and had them sit in a separate area. These are just a few recent incidents that the clerks have brought to our attention.

David also referred me to the recently updated FAQ's. In particular #25 and #26 which speak to airborne transmissions and ventilation. I have attached these above.

I am not sure what the next steps should be regarding the court clerks request to meet with the judiciary and wanted to seek your input as this maybe something you want to discuss at the executive table or with the ADM. I am prepared to meet with the clerks to discuss the information provided by PSA on airborne transmissions however, I don't know if it will completely alleviate their concerns about judges allowing parties to remove their masks. I do not have numbers on how many judges are allowing mask removal however, I can say we also have a number of judges who are very diligent in ensuring parties keep their masks on when in the CR.

Thanks for your assistance with these concerns.

Karie

PLEASE POST

As the COVID-19 pandemic continues, our understanding of the virus is rapidly evolving. It is now widely recognized that airborne transmission of SARS-CoV-2 can occur under certain conditions. The Public Health Agency of Canada (PHAC) recently updated its guidance to acknowledge that SARS-CoV- 2 is spread through aerosols (smaller droplets that can hang in the air for periods of time).¹ Further, PHAC has updated their guidelines for Long Term Care Facilities² and Home Care settings³ to include guidance on ventilation at these worksites to control for airborne transmission of the virus.

We are in the third wave of the pandemic. While case counts are starting to decline, hospitalizations due to COVID are at an alarming high, largely due to the increase in the presence if variants. In light of these developments, and in keeping with the precautionary principle and best practices, we encourage all workplaces to review your COVID-19 Safety Plan (CSP) with a specific eye to airborne transmission and ventilation needs.

To assure the most up-to-date practices are in place, employers must fully and seriously consider the risk of airborne transmission of COVID-19 in their worksites. This includes re-evaluating processes that require close contact with high-risk individuals. The CSP should be updated as needed, taking into account the variants as a higher risk, with the hierarchy of controls in mind⁴:

- The most effective control is to allow for remote work or other alternative work arrangements that minimize the number of workers and the number of customers and clients at a given workplace, and this should be implemented wherever possible.
- Where workers are required to attend the workplace, the employer must ensure that additional measures are implemented to minimize risk, and that their effectiveness is monitored. This includes looking at:
 - Effectiveness/efficiency of ventilation in enclosed spaces (for best practices click here)⁵;
 - Minimizing occupancy limits in areas where people may congregate;
 - Limits to the duration of close contact with other individuals where possible.
- These measures should also be applied as much as possible where workers are attending clients' homes. Risk assessments and direction from your supervisor must take into account any additional risks due COVID-19.
- Travel between health regions for work should be limited as much as possible. This includes where community health workers are performing home care visits.
- While Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) is the least effective measure to protect workers, following the Hierarchy of Controls, throughout the pandemic BCGEU has consistently advocated for the appropriate usage of masks, both indoors and in public spaces. As such, we recommend that where workers are required to be at the workplace, that:
 - Appropriate, high quality masks, and training on their use be provided to workers by the Employer.
 - Employers should have a policy and safe work procedures for interacting with customers, clients and others that require masks when they are interacting in-person with workers.
 - For interactions with clients who are considered exposed to, or suspected or confirmed to have COVID-19:
 - PPE consistent with a minimum of Droplet and Contact Precautions (e.g., gloves, a gown, a medical mask and eye protection) should be worn.
 - An N95 or equivalent respirator be worn in place of a medical mask where possible.

As a worker, you have rights under the Workers Compensation act⁶:

- The Right to Know about all known or foreseeable health and safety risks;

- The Right to Participate in your workplace OHS program: this applies to all workers, not just OHS representatives;
- The Right to Refuse Unsafe Work: Please see the refusal procedure here⁷;
- And you have the Right to Protection against Prohibited Actions. This means you cannot be punished for raising health and safety issues in the workplace.

For any questions on your workplace COVID-19 safety plan, please contact your OHS committee, OHS rep or local steward. If you have urgent COVID-19 concerns or would like to become an OHS rep, please contact us at ohs@bcgeu.ca.

Hi Ange,

Can you have a discussion with Paul about recognizing/acknowledging the VLC team's response to the serious incident that occurred today. Not sure if a mention in Jenny's email or a letter to the clerk, and sheriff who attend both in the security role and OFA role. Open to any ideas. We are going to do something locally to support the clerk and thank our sheriffs.

Let's talk about this over the next few days, once we have finished dealing with all the aspects related to the incident.

Hi Ange,

The VLC Incident debrief was held from 12:45pm to 1:15pm at the Law Courts Inn. Approximately 30 court admin staff attended, the majority being court clerks. Steve did an excellent debrief which covered the following:

- Incident review – timeline of events
- Update on impacted CSB employees and resources provided – CISM team
- Review of emergency procedures
 - Panic button procedures
 - Flagging of files
 - Communicating concerns or observations to sheriffs
- Answered questions from staff related to:
 - Search gates
 - s.3
 - # of sheriff rover positions
 - Civil courts –s.15
 - Emergency procedures training – Steve and Karie will work together to ensure training continues to be provided to new employees
 - This is generally scheduled over the Judge's conferences and the high employee turnover does make this challenging
- Resources will be provided to all staff including EFAP, CISM, WorkSafe has additional services.
 - The court clerk and sheriffs staff that were directly involved in the situation will also receive support from VPD Victims Services, if they choose.

Several staff indicated they were very appreciative of the opportunity to have a debrief within hours of the incident. Having Steve deliver a timeline of the events within hours of the incident will minimize some of the inaccurate information that may be circulating.

Please let us know if you have any questions or require further information.

Thanks,
m

Subject: Executive Update from Lori Wanamaker: B.C.'s Restart Plan and the BC Public Service

LORI WANAMAKER

Deputy Minister to the Premier,
Cabinet Secretary and
Head of the BC Public Service

B.C.'s Restart Plan and the BC Public Service

Good afternoon.

Today, the Premier announced B.C.'s four-step plan to guide the province out of the pandemic over the months ahead. As we start to see the positive impact of the vaccination campaign, this is an encouraging step and gives us all some confidence that we can look forward to a more positive summer if we all continue to do what's asked of us for just a little longer.

For the BC Public Service, the restart plan does not mean any immediate change in how we are working. While the Provincial Health Officer is lifting the recommendation to work from home, if you have been working remotely you can continue to do so at this time. If you choose to return to the workplace, you can do so. Note that existing safety protocols remain in place and must continue to be followed until further notice.

Assuming the pandemic outlook and the restart plan progress as anticipated, we will look to the start of Step 3 of the plan as a transition point for the public service. The restart plan has July 1 as a target date for Step 3, and at this point we will encourage employees to return at least part-time on a voluntary basis through the summer. We will communicate more about this transition prior to July 1, but to be clear we do not plan to require a return to the workplace at this time. The BC Public Service Agency will work with ministries to ensure workplaces are ready and able to accommodate those who return, adapting our safety measures where needed to remain aligned to updated public health and WorkSafeBC direction in the weeks ahead.

The restart plan for Step 3 anticipates workplace capacity limits being lifted on July 1, meaning we could welcome back everyone to their regular workplace. But we are choosing to take this voluntary approach through the summer while we finalize a new long-term model for how we work.

We have been working during the unique circumstance of a public health emergency since March of last year. While it has been a prolonged experience, it was always temporary and it appears we are finally nearing the end. Along the way, we have learned a great deal about the flexibility and resilience of the public service. The priority for the BC Public Service as an employer now is to draw on those lessons – including the experiences many of you have shared with us – to shape a sustainable model for how we work that effectively balances our obligations to the public, our accountabilities as an employer, and our desire to offer a positive employee experience.

We are aiming to introduce this new model in time for the planned transition to Step 4 of the restart plan in early September. If you haven't already done so, I encourage you to participate in the online engagement activity underway until the end of this week. It has been great to see the level of participation to-date and there are still a few more days to review and rate the many thoughts and ideas shared by colleagues across the public service. This will help inform the approach we take for the fall and, again, you can expect further updates between now and September.

Beyond the impact to how we work, I know the restart plan also has significant implications for so many of you in supporting communities and stakeholders in the months ahead. This is the next step in a remarkable cross-government effort by the entire public service since the onset of the pandemic. Your efforts are deeply appreciated by our entire executive team and by government. Thank you for continuing to demonstrate the true strength, resilience and professionalism of the public service for the benefit of all British Columbians.

Sincerely,
Lori Wanamaker
Deputy Minister to the Premier,
Cabinet Secretary and Head of the BC Public Service

Good afternoon,

The PI Onboarding Workshop for the new PIs in the region is the week of May 31st. We usually invite a PI that is currently part of the team to come and speak and share their experiences and answer any questions the new PIs have.

I just wanted to check and see if it would be possible operationally or if you would be ok with me inviting Charleena to come and speak. The date that we would be looking at is the morning of June 4th, attending virtually.

I can confirm that I have already spoken with Charleena to see if she is interested and she advised that she is.

If you could please respond by the end of day on Friday May 28th.

Thanks,
Michelle
