Province steps up with modular housing for the homeless

VANCOUVER – People will soon have access to safe, affordable housing thanks to a provincewide program to help municipalities tackle homelessness. The program will provide hundreds of new modular housing units in communities from Vancouver to Surrey to Smithers, Premier John Horgan announced today.

“People can’t begin to feel safe and secure until they have a place to call home,” said Horgan. “We’re partnering with local governments to help those who don’t have a home, to help them live in dignity and give them a chance at a better life.”

The B.C. government has committed $66 million toward 600 units of modular housing, which will be situated on land provided by the City of Vancouver. The modular units will be staffed 24/7 by non-profit housing providers and will include support services to help people in need stabilize and rebuild their lives.

“There are too many people living on the street in Vancouver and across the province,” said Selina Robinson, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing. “These modular units will provide interim homes in the short term while we act on the more permanent housing solutions that are needed. These are an important first step in developing the comprehensive housing strategy British Columbians need.”

Each building will include approximately 50 self-contained units, complete with individual kitchen and bathrooms, shared laundry, indoor and outdoor amenity spaces, plus programming space.

“The number of people living in poverty and experiencing homelessness has been ignored for far too long,” said Shane Simpson, Minister of Social Development and Poverty Reduction. “That is why we are taking urgent action to provide these supportive modular-housing units to make sure that people in need have a safe place to go.”

Temporary modular housing provides a rapid response to address homelessness. The intention is to have a number of the units up and running by this winter.

“It’s fantastic to see the Province step up to help solve homelessness with support to deliver 600 units of temporary modular housing in Vancouver,” said Gregor Robertson, mayor of Vancouver. “The City is ready to work quickly to make sure these temporary homes are built as soon as possible to get our most vulnerable residents off the streets and into safe, secure housing until more permanent options are available.”

This is part of the Province’s plan to construct 2,000 modular units over two years throughout B.C. by working in partnership with interested communities. The first 1,000 units are expected to be in operation by early 2018.

BC Housing is in discussion with a number of other communities that are in immediate need of modular housing for the homeless, including Surrey and Smithers.

“We are very excited about this initiative and its potential for our community, as it could fill a current gap in our housing spectrum by providing much-needed support for people with multiple barriers,” said Taylor Bachrach, mayor of Smithers. “We are looking forward to working with the Province on this initiative and are hopeful that it will be a good fit for Smithers.”

In addition to modular housing, BC Housing is working with communities to finalize plans to build 1,700 new units of affordable rental housing that were announced in the 2017 Budget Update.

Quick Facts:

- The B.C. government has set a target to build 114,000 new units of affordable housing throughout B.C.
- As part of the 2017 Budget Update, the Province announced that it will invest:
 - $291 million to support the construction of 2,000 modular housing units for people who are homeless and more than $170 million over three years to provide 24/7 staffing and support services.
 - $208 million over four years to support the construction of more than 1,700 new units of affordable rental housing in communities throughout the province.
 - $6.8 million over three years to increase resources in the Residential Tenancy Branch.
- The Province has committed to working with communities to develop a homelessness action plan. As part of the plan, the B.C. government will conduct a provincewide homeless count to gain a better understanding of the situation in communities.

I've prepared the following bullets – anything else you think we should add?

Thanks
Darren

- ? Our government is working on a Comprehensive Housing Plan that will make housing more affordable for people all over British Columbia.
- ? Our budget update took real first steps by investing in projects that will help people get off the streets and into functional, supportive housing as well as low-income housing.
- ? We have allocated $208 million to build 1,700 new units of affordable housing and $291 million to build 2,000 new modular housing units for people experiencing homelessness.
- ? We have also announced $7 million to address delays at the Residential Tenancy Branch.
- ? We have committed to build 114,000 units of affordable housing.

Modular Housing Announcement
Questions & Answers
Sept. 29, 2017

Advice to the Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing

Q1: Where will the 600 units be located?

- BC Housing is working with the City of Vancouver to explore vacant, underutilized sites.
- It will be up to the City to rezone these sites or to provide temporary use permits or licenses for the temporary modular units.
- To date, we have identified 20 potential sites and we are working together on next steps.

Q2: What is the timeline for the modular units in Vancouver? How many units will be ready by this winter?

- Approximately 80-120 temporary modular homes will be up and running by this winter and the remaining units will be in place by early 2018.

Q3: Will any services or supports be offered to residents?

- BC Housing is allocating operating funding to ensure the buildings have a 24/7 staffing and a meal program.
- Staff will connect residents to community-based health care services.

Q4: How will people be identified for this housing?

- BC Housing will work with its non-profit providers and their outreach workers to identify and connect with those who are homeless or at risk of becoming homeless, and refer them to appropriate services and housing.

Q5: How long will people be able to stay in the modular housing?

- This will be a tenant's home for 5-10 years, or until more permanent housing is found.
- The non-profit housing provider will work with each tenant to identify more permanent housing options as they become available.

Q6: Where will the units be coming from? Are they being purchased from a certain manufacturer?

- The modular units are being purchased from a modular housing manufacturer.
- We are currently in negotiations and details have yet to be finalized.

Q7: How much will it cost to build each modular unit?

- The costs will vary depending on site preparation, servicing requirements and specification of the building.

Q8: Will this be temporary housing – how long will the modular housing stay in place?

- It will be located on a specific site between 5-10 years before being relocated to another underutilized site, pending redevelopment.

Q9: What other communities will receive modular housing and when?

- Surrey and Smithers are communities that are getting ready to partner with us.
- Other communities with available land are invited to contact government. Meanwhile, BC Housing is already in discussion with a number of other communities that are in immediate need of modular housing for the homeless.
- We will be excited to share details once other sites are finalized.
- Our goal is to have 1,000 units up and running by 2018 – 2000 over two years.

Q10: What else are you doing to address homelessness in Vancouver?

- Addressing homelessness is a top priority for our new government.
- We have taken the first essential steps by creating new ministries and new mandates that help address some of the underlying reasons for homelessness.
- Work is underway across government to develop a homelessness action plan.
- As part of the plan, we will conduct a province-wide homeless count so that we have a better understanding of the situation in our communities.
- We know that strong partnerships with local governments are essential to addressing homelessness.
- We're encouraged by the discussions we've had with Mayor Gregor Robertson and look forward to our continued dialogue as we advance work on this critical issue.

INTRODUCTION

- Good morning.
- I would like to recognize that we are gathered on the territory of the Coast Salish peoples.
- Most of you know me already – Shane Simpson, Minister of Social Development and Poverty Reduction, and MLA for Vancouver-Hastings.
- Our government has just wrapped up a highly successful annual Union of BC Municipalities Convention with local officials from across the province.
- It was an honour to meet with the people who are dealing with and working on housing solutions on the ground in their communities.
- Today, our government takes a first step in addressing the growing issue of homelessness in Vancouver and communities throughout the province.
- And it's through the efforts of our key partners, such as the City of Vancouver, that make these announcements possible.

- It is my honour to introduce Premier John Horgan.

(Premier makes announcement)

- Thank you, Premier.
- Next I'd like to ask Mayor of Vancouver, Gregor Robertson, to say a few words.
- Mayor Robertson.

(Mayor Robertson provides remarks)

- Thank you Mayor Robertson.
- I'd now like to welcome Minister Selina Robinson to say a few words.

(Minister Robinson provides remarks)

- Thank you, Selina.
- We know that modular housing is only a temporary solution to address homelessness.

- That is why work is underway across government to develop a Homelessness Action Plan.
- This is a priority for our new government.
- I am working closely with Minister Robinson and Minister of Mental Health and Addictions Judy Darcy to ensure we develop a comprehensive, well-informed plan.
- I look forward to sharing progress on this initiative as we continue to work with our community partners – like the cities of Vancouver, Smithers and Surrey to address this critical issue.
- In closing, I'd like to thank everyone for coming – and thanks to the City of Vancouver for hosting us today.
- There will be a media Q and A session following a tour of the modular housing display suite.
- Thank you.

INTRODUCTION

- Thank you, Mayor Robertson.
- We know that immediate action is needed to address the issue of homelessness.
- Minister Simpson and I spent some of our first days in government touring the Downtown Eastside and hearing first-hand from some of those who are struggling beyond what most of us can imagine.
- I also had a chance to tour the City of Vancouver's modular housing project on Terminal Avenue.
- I believe this model of housing can be very successful in providing temporary housing for people who are struggling with homelessness.
- It will not only provide people in need with a roof over their head.
- It will provide them with a chance to stabilize, be connected to community health services and begin to rebuild their lives.

- Our goal is to make sure they can stay off the streets permanently.
- This can only be done through strong partnerships with all levels of government and our community housing partners.
- I would like to thank the City of Vancouver for stepping up with this innovative proposal.
- While work gets underway to build these units in Vancouver, I will continue to work....and BC Housing will continue to work....with communities throughout the province to determine where other modular units are needed.
- I spent this week at UBCM hearing from municipal leaders and understanding what their specific needs are around housing and affordability.
- We look forward to partnering with many other communities on this modular housing initiative.

- I believe today is a great first step, but only a temporary solution.
- There is a lot more work to do.
- We need more permanent housing and services.
- Our government is committed to working with our housing partners from all sectors to develop a Comprehensive Housing Plan to make housing affordable for all British Columbians.
- Thanks again to Mayor Robertson and the City of Vancouver for partnering with the Province on this project.
- Thank you.

Hi from Victoria!

I've reached out to our digital department to make sure we can fit a shoot in by the time of the announcement. I'm hopeful we'll be able to schedule another site visit if needed.

Looking forward to working together,

Daniela

Thanks very much Kevin for your time today. What an excellent project – you all must be very proud of the success and we are excited to be partnering with you on the next phase.

With this email I am connecting you to our new MA, Daniela Gardea. Minister Robinson would like to have our communications team pull together a video on the success of the modular pilot which would help to promote the upcoming announcement of provincial support for 600 more units. Daniela would like to follow up with you on the city's plans for a video to hear what you are thinking.

I will let you two connect when you are available.

Thanks again for today!

Hey Lisa! Is this the Sep 19 draft the latest one for the event on the 29?

MSS's MA is looking for further info on it as he is speaking. I can send her that for now.
