Just a clarification. They haven't said they are cancelling.

They have said that they are suspending all non-essential spending given the uncertainty.

They have indicated a May 31st deadline to decide if the uncertainty is sufficiently addressed to continue

STATEMENT

Premier's statement on Kinder Morgan's decision on the Trans Mountain expansion project

VICTORIA - Premier John Horgan has issued the following statement regarding Kinder Morgan's decision to suspend non-essential spending on the Trans Mountain expansion project:

"British Columbians expect their government to stand up for their interests and our coast, and to do everything we can to protect our land and waters, our coastal communities and our local economies.

"The federal process failed to consider B.C.'s interests and the risk to our province. We joined the federal challenge, started by others, to make that point."

"We believe we need to grow the economy, while protecting the environment. We want to work to address these challenges together. But we will always stand up for British Columbians, our environment and the thousands of jobs that depend on our coast."

What specifically wasn't addressed in environmental assessment during the NEB process?

What more does BC want in terms of environmental reassurances?

Recommendation

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•<!--[endif]-->The Trans Mountain pipeline expansion project significantly impacts British Columbia - with a disproportionate impact on B.C.'s lands and waters and Indigenous peoples.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•<!--[endif]-->British Columbia was granted intervener status in the Federal Court of Appeal to ensure our provincial interests are heard in this matter.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•<!--[endif]-->B.C.'s argument specifically outlined the failure of the federal process to properly consider the profound economic risks associated with a bitumen spill on our land, waterways or coast.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•<!--[endif]-->We are confident in our right to protect B.C.'s environment, economy and coast from the consequences of a diluted bitumen spill.

<!--[if !supportLists]-->•<!--[endif]-->British Columbians can have confidence that we will continue to defend B.C.'s coast and the economic and environmental interests that are so important to us all.

The proceedings in the Federal Court of Appeal in Tsleil-Waututh Nation et al. v. Attorney General of Canada et al. are 15 applications for judicial review brought by First Nations, the Cities of Vancouver and Burnaby and two environmental organisations of the Governor in Council's decision to cause the National Energy Board (NEB) to issue a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity in relation to TMX, and/or in relation to the NEB's report recommending that the Certificate issue for the project. British Columbia was granted intervener status and the proceedings were heard at the Federal Courts in Vancouver in October 2017. Judgment is currently under reserve

In October 2017, Trans Mountain filed a constitutional challenge to Burnaby's zoning and tree bylaws. On December 7th 2017, the NEB issued an order declaring that Trans Mountain was not required to comply with sections of the City of Burnaby's Zoning Bylaw and Tree Bylaw to the extent that they prevent Trans Mountain from proceeding with certain work. Both the City of Burnaby and the Province filed an application for leave to appeal the decision of the NEB to the Federal Court of Appeal. On March 23, 2018, the Federal Court of Appeal refused to grant leave. Burnaby has announced their plan to appeal this decision to the SCC.

The Squamish Nation commenced a judicial review in the BC Supreme Court of the decision of the Ministers of Environment and Natural Gas Development to issue an Environmental Assessment Certificate for the Trans Mountain Expansion Project. The hearing of the Petition took place Nov 6 – 10 in Vancouver. Judgment is currently under reserve.

The City of Vancouver filed a petition seeking an order setting aside the Environmental Assessment Certificate ("EAC") issued for the Trans Mountain Expansion Project. The Province has filed an affidavit with the court documenting the record that was before the Ministers in connection with the EAC decision, and the process employed by the EAO leading up to the Ministers' decision however the province took no position on the merits of the petition itself. Judgment is currently under reserve.

Currently, the provincial government has retained Joseph J. Arvay, OC, QC, as external counsel to government to prepare and present a reference case related to British Columbia's right to protect B.C.'s land, coast and waters.

Caelie:

I'm getting in contact with you at the suggestion of Eric Kristianson who I know well from previous work together. s.22
s.22

Natural resource governance and coastal management are particular interests of mine and I have long felt that BC has not fully exercised its jurisdiction over coastal and marine matters despite the powers and opportunities to do so. s.22 and given recent events, it may be very timely to revisit this idea. If you think it would be useful, I would be happy to discuss this with you. I have a lot of background material on this and have drafted out the basic outline of what such a piece of legislation would look like.s.22

and s.22

As the old bureaucrat in me never dies, I put together a short two page outline, in briefing note format of course, that provides some background and rationale. Please feel free to call or email if you think there would be interest in pursuing this further. Thanks

MINISTRY OF ENVIRONMENT INFORMATION BRIEFING NOTE

PREPARED FOR: Honourable George Heyman, BC Minister of Environment

TITLE: Proposed BC Coastal Management Act

PURPOSE: To brief the Minister on the potential for a BC Coastal Management Act as a means of confirming jurisdiction and establishing the province's interests in managing and protecting our coastlines and marine waters.

BACKGROUND:

The BC coast is perhaps the Province's single most important asset. Home to most of our population, it is also home to some of the most important and productive ecosystems on earth. Today the coast faces unprecedented challenges, including;

- Proposals for new oil ports and marine transportation corridors,
- Threatened fish stocks and marine mammals,
- Increased development and loss of public access to the coastline, and
- The need for emergency programs to deal with earthquakes, tsunamis, and the extreme weather events, storm surges and sea level rise caused by Climate Change.

Response to these challenges often falls short, because the coast is governed by a patchwork of federal, provincial, municipal and aboriginal agencies that largely fail to co-ordinate regulatory efforts. The Province needs a Coastal Zone Management Act to secure the future of the BC coast and demonstrate its willingness to assert its jurisdiction and advance its interests.

Coastal Jurisdiction and Ownership

Currently, management of coastal and marine resources is an area of complex shared jurisdiction between all orders of government, including First Nations and local governments. For example, the federal government has jurisdiction over navigation, fisheries regulation and national defence. Local governments have development, zoning and other powers over local shorelines and some coastal waters.

The Province has broad regulatory jurisdiction over numerous activities in the coastal zone including activities on terrestrial and adjacent freshwater ecosystems which impact on its coast. In addition, BC has jurisdiction and ownership over the foreshore seaward of the high tide mark and all coastal or inland waters within the "jaws of the land", including the seabed. In 1984, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled that the seabed of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Strait of Georgia, Johnstone Strait and Queen Charlotte Strait are the property of British Columbia. Ownership of Hecate Strait and Dixon Entrance has not been legally confirmed, but the province has continuously exercised its ownership of this area as well.

As a consequence, the coastal ecosystem is regulated by a plethora of government agencies. This thwarts effective planning and management – especially due to the absence of effective legislative mechanisms to coordinate the actions of multiple agencies and governments. The Province needs to address this and create a legislative framework to assert jurisdiction and ownership of coastal resources, to secure the future of coastal communities and their economies, and to coordinate with other governments.

Models of Coastal Management Legislation

There are successful models in other jurisdictions around the world. For example, the US Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972 empowered US coastal states to develop some of the most progressive coastal management in the world. Under the Act state level coastal management programs provide for:

- protection of wetlands, floodplains, estuaries, beaches, dunes, barrier islands, and fish and wildlife habitats,
- management of coastal development to minimize the loss of life and property,
- initiatives to improve coastal water quality,

- siting of coastal-dependent uses and restriction of inappropriate development on the coast,
- public access to the coasts for recreation,
- redevelopment of deteriorating urban waterfronts and ports, and preservation of historic and cultural features,
- coordination and simplification of coastal management decision making,
- opportunities for public and local government participation, and
- improved coordination between coastal management agencies.

When it was passed in 1996, Canada's Oceans Act was seen as one of the most progressive oceans management statutes in the world and yet it was never intended to take on all of the issues regarding the management of Canada's coastlines. Despite the criticisms over the failure of Canada to fully implement the Oceans Act, its initial promise remains. The whereas clauses in the preamble are inspiring, and reaffirm in statute law the fundamental importance of conservation, maintaining biological diversity and productivity, and the need to take ecosystem and precautionary approaches to management. There are other provisions in the statute that could form the basis for productive partnerships and for parallel provincial provisions to protect coastal resources that could be reflected in provincial legislation.

Potential Elements of Coastal Management Legislation for BC

Following the models in the Canadian Oceans Act and the US Coastal Zone Management Act, a BC Coastal Management Act could include some or all of the following provisions;

- A preamble to reaffirm BC's commitment to the conservation and sustainable management of estuarine, coastal and marine resources,
- Powers to enter into agreements and to delegate and accept powers from other orders of government,
- Development of a Coastal Management Strategy,
- A legislative basis for coastal and marine spatial planning, including regional management plans for estuarine, coastal and marine ecosystems,
- Strategic assessment of marine transportation corridors, including decision-making processes for coastal infrastructure and port facilities,
- Establishment of a comprehensive network of marine protection areas within provincial waters that link with other networks of MPAs,
- Establishment of a voluntary local government coastal management program to protect and restore coastal ecosystems on private and public property, and to ensure public access,
- Coastal and marine emergency planning and preparedness,
- Climate change adaptation strategies for issues such as extreme weather events, storm surges and sea level rise,
- Programs for the revitalization of coastal communities, and
- Collaboration and partnerships with other orders of government including First Nations.

A Coastal Zone Management Act would signal BC's intent to take coastal management seriously and fully exercise its jurisdiction and ownership. Such an initiative would support and coordinate well with other government priorities and political commitments.
