Subject: thoughts for BC Climate Council

Hi Merran, Colleen and Jeremy,

I hope you're all managing ok through these very challenging times.

I wanted to share some thoughts on the work the Council could do through this year into 2021. At a high-level, I think the pandemic warrants a rethink of our workplan to make sure we're going to be providing useful advice to govt.

Here are my thoughts on where we could be most useful:

1. Finding ways of moving ahead with phase 1 CleanBC commitments. We already had this topic on our list, but I expect the individual pieces will be more challenging to get across the finish line now and may benefit from some additional time/advice from the Council. The key ones in my mind are: strengthening the low carbon fuel standard, legislating the renewable gas standard, implementing the regulations for the ZEV Act, and restarting carbon tax increases. For something like the renewable gas standard, we might benefit by emphasizing the economic development benefits that would be mostly distributed to agriculture and forestry sectors that we could be doing more to emphasize. For something like the carbon tax increase, it may be more successful to link together with some of the ideas in #2 below.
2. Figuring out a package of phase 2 CleanBC actions that are central/complementary to covid19 recovery plans. My expectation is that managing through the crisis and then managing the recovery will be govt's top priorities for the foreseeable future. To be successful with phase 2 CleanBC, I think the best approach is to fit into that context. Here are my thoughts on where I think we can be successful with phase 2 CleanBC:
 - a. I expect there will be a need for a significant stimulus package after we make it through the lock-down phase, and I think we should be trying to put as strong a climate lens on that as possible. This could include: $ for zero emissions wooden affordable housing, $'s to support industrial decarbonization projects, $ for transit and active transportation expansion, $ for adaptation, $ for EV charging infrastructure, $ to transition BC film sector to zero emissions, etc.

- b. I think we should be trying to help the government package up a some initiatives that make it easier and more affordable for British Columbians to switch to renewable energy and use that energy more efficiently. Some of the ideas in the BC Hydro phase 2 review could easily fit into such a package (e.g. voluntary EV/heatpump rates), as could some of the ideas that Technical Safety BC is considering.
 - c. I think we should be trying to help the government package up a set of initiatives that set some expectations that the most well off British Columbians transition to renewable energy faster. I think there's a sweet spot here where we could get some additional tonnes, without running up against competitiveness or affordability constraints. An example would be a vehicle feebate that is limited to higher-end vehicles where people have more disposable income and EVs are more readily available.
 - d. 2a, 2b, and 2c could all fit well with the interest of collaborating more with local governments on CleanBC. For 2a, stimulus programs could be set up with options for local government top-ups. For 2b, there's lots of local government red tape we could remove to make zero emissions options easier/more affordable (heat pump permits are my favorite Vancouver example). For 2c, this would need more thought, but there would be a lot of local govt interest at least in MV and CRD – a good example would be Vancouver's carbon pollution cap on new large homes, which sets a higher expectation for environmental performance if you're lucky enough to be building a new large home in the city.
3. Suggesting some areas that could be de-emphasized in the workplan. I expect much of this year is likely to be crisis management and I think our key priority should be doing what we can to have climate action momentum in BC as we make our way out of the crisis. We can't afford another 5 year stall in action like we had after the last recession. With that in mind, it is probably worth some consideration if some elements in the workplan should be de-emphasized to enable govt to put greater emphasis on #1 and #2 above. From my perspective, I think we should consider putting a lighter touch on the accountability report, interim targets and sector targets. They're all required by legislation, but I think the end products are fairly flexible. For example, instead of trying to solve the quagmire of industry/building/transportation targets, the first pass targets could be focused on the carbon intensity of electricity, nat gas, and gasoline/diesel.

Hopefully this is helpful. Please let me know what you're thinking re workplan and if I can be of help at all.

Be safe,

Matt

Hi Neil

I've attached a document with the highlights of what I found today, as well as some that I had saved from last week. Unfortunately, there is not much coming out of the individuals/organizations you identified. Which is a bit surprising - at the least, I would have thought CEC, Pembina and Mark J. would have had a post or op-ed on greening stimulus packages.

I can keep a watch daily if you have asked, and send a quick synopsis each day. I can compile for a weekly list if you think there is value in sharing with CAS Exec/managers.

Hi Neil

I've attached a document with the highlights of what I found today, as well as some that I had saved from last week. Unfortunately, there is not much coming out of the individuals/organizations you identified. Which is a bit surprising - at the least, I would have thought CEC, Pembina and Mark J. would have had a post or op-ed on greening stimulus packages.

I can keep a watch daily if you have asked, and send a quick synopsis each day. I can compile for a weekly list if you think there is value in sharing with CAS Exec/managers.

Cheers,
Jesse

Hi Neil

Last batch from me. Lots of articles online, all basically making the same argument – don't waste this moment, and use the stimulus packages being designed globally to make the transition to a low-carbon economy. I didn't include most of the articles that I found, as they are not saying anything new. If I come across any articles that provide specific policy insight, I'll pass it along.

Good morning Neil,

I hope this email finds you well during these uncertain times.

I wanted to share with you the first blog posts in a new series from the Canadian Institute for Climate Choices that explores implications of the pandemic and economic crisis for Canada's climate policy choices.

"Climate policy in the long shadow of COVID-19," by chief economist Dave Sawyer,

Copyright

Another blog in the series, "Climate change vs. economic growth in a time of crisis" explores why and how Canada's longer-term economic recovery should incorporate policies to effectively address climate change. The blog is written by Clean Growth Program Director Rachel Samson and Richard G. Lipsey, Professor Emeritus at Simon Fraser University and one of Canada's foremost experts on economic policy.

We hope you find this content of interest. If you prefer not to receive updates like these, please don't hesitate to let me know.

Bonjour,

Je souhaitais partager avec vous les premiers blogues d'une nouvelle série de l'Institut canadien pour les choix climatiques qui explore les implications de la pandémie actuelle et de la crise économique qui s'en découle sur la politique canadienne en matière de choix climatiques.

«La politique climatique à l'ombre de la COVID-19», par l'économiste en chef Dave Sawyer, examine comment la réponse à la pandémie vient changer le paysage et le contexte des priorités immédiates et à plus long terme du Canada en matière de politique climatique.

Un autre blogue de la série, «Politiques climatiques contre croissance économique en temps de crise», explique pourquoi et comment le Canada devrait mettre en place des politiques pour lutter efficacement contre les changements climatiques. Ce blog est signé par la directrice du programme de Croissance Propre, Rachel Samson et par le professeur émérite à l'Université Simon Fraser, Richard G. Lipsey, l'un des spécialistes les plus éminent du pays sur les questions de politiques économiques.

Nous espérons que le contenu de cette nouvelle série suscitera votre intérêt. Si vous préférez ne pas recevoir de mises à jour comme celle-ci n'hésitez pas à me le laisser savoir.

Au plaisir,
Rebecca

Hi Neil,

Totally forgot (don't tell my team :) to point you to our green building jobs map that has job numbers. Retrofits provide a lot of jobs. Also coincidentally talked to my heat pump contractor who told me in 2009, with EcoAction, his little company did $4 million in heat pump installations alone because of the fed incentives.

And here's the German approach to hydrogen that I mentioned as well. They only providing incentives for green H2 in industry (no support for blue H2 or H2 use for building heat).

Hi everyone,

The news release is now live <https://pm.gc.ca/en/news/news-releases/2020/04/17/prime-minister-announces-new-support-protect-canadian-jobs>. Caitlin and I are interested to know your initial views on this or if you have any questions about how it will work. Also, any thoughts on how it could/will interact with our current initiatives?

Highlights are:

- provide up to $1.72 billion, including funding to the governments of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia, and the Alberta Orphan Well Association, to clean up orphan and/or inactive oil and gas wells – creating thousands of jobs and having lasting environmental benefits.
 - up to $1 billion to the Government of Alberta
 - up to $400 million to the Government of Saskatchewan
 - up to $120 million to the Government of British Columbia
 - $200 million to the Alberta Orphan Well Association. The Association will fully repay this amount.
- provide up to $750 million to create a new proposed Emissions Reduction Fund to reduce emissions in Canada's oil and gas sector, with a focus on methane. This fund will provide primarily repayable contributions to conventional and offshore oil and gas firms to support their investments to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Of this amount, $75 million will be allocated to the offshore sector.

- expand eligibility for the new Business Credit Availability Program announced on March 13, 2020, to help Canadian businesses get the financing they need during this period of uncertainty. The support will be available to medium-sized businesses with larger financing needs, beginning with companies in Canada's energy sector, to help them maintain operations and keep their employees on the job.

The news release also highlights further support to small businesses through community futures and Western Economic Development.

Thanks and look forward to your response,
Avril

Hi Chris

The initial "list 1" of TRAN rehab type work developed by our highways department includes $4M for this sort of work, so that is already being captured. Anything beyond that would have to be built into 2021 and beyond. I'll investigate internally what makes sense to include for this sort of work on "list 2."

BC Stimulus Why Hydrogen - April 2020 (2).pdf

Hi Niel,

Here it is. Can we schedule time to discuss?

Common themes across the country for stimulus:

1. H2 blending in NG
2. Buses
3. Industrial processing

I'd also like to discuss the final page: hydrogen infrastructure. It is hard for people to wrap their minds around hydrogen as a utility and why that is critical to achieving net-zero 2050. But it is the reality. 50 years ago, BC put in place a low cost power grid – which has served us very well. Now we need to do the same for hydrogen – the oil of the future.

Subject: RE: Update on the Decarbonization Workshop

Thanks Bryan,

A quick update on hydrogen initiatives for you all...

1. We have had two call with Minister Ralston and staff at his request to discuss "shovel-ready" hydrogen stimulus initiatives. We prepared a summary document with a list of potential projects. He is very positive and has requested further details. Many of your organizations are partners in one or more project. I can provide a copy of the document to those interested.
2. There is support for a national insore marine working group in the CHFCA to cooperate on hydrogen energy applications in marine: codes, storage, hydrogen supply, advocacy, training, workshops, funding, etc. Particular interest among the marine engineering groups. Some debate whether this should be integrated with Ports, but the applications are quite different. Possible link with Maritime Centre? If you would like more information, please contact me.

Regarding "Demand Aggregation", the leading shovel ready project is a hydrogen production facility. It is baseloaded on gas blending in NG lines, but will also supply transportation and industrial applications. It will initially be relatively small capacity, but the plan is to scale to a liquid plant on the North Shore that will supply emerging applications in marine, trucking, buses, etc. – plus export to the Pacific Northwest and AB. Demand aggregation will be essential!

Similar hydrogen energy stimulus plans are being developed in AB, ON and QC. Regional differences, but common themes: hydrogen blending in NG lines and buses as the leading applications, with a mix of transportation demos.

Thank you!

Regards,

Mark Kirby

Subject: Update on the Decarbonization Workshop

Hello everyone,

We wanted to provide this group a quick update on where we are with the Decarbonization workshop project. Having recognized the challenging new situations and priorities we all face, the work is being extended until May 31 to allow more time for follow-up with the broad group of stakeholders having expressed interest. In terms of the joint initiatives identified, summarized below is the plan to move these into action based on the new circumstances we all face. We've included an image with these noted priorities at the bottom of the email.

There are clear overlaps across all three of these initiatives and we will continue to keep you informed as each progresses. Of course, immediate priorities may have shifted for your organization, please let us know if you are no longer available or wish to be included in the follow-on discussions and reach out if you have any additional thoughts or comments.

Wishing you good health and resilience during these challenging times,

Bryan, John and the Accenture Clean Innovation team

Jeremey,

Hope you are keeping well. As a reminder, we met briefly at Globe this year. I work for ChargePoint, a global leader in electric vehicle charging solutions.

As you can imagine, our operating context and that of our sector have and continue to change significantly, impacting a number of job functions related to electric vehicle charging deployment (e.g. civil and electrical contractors, engineers, electricians, project managers) and e-mobility more generally (e.g. e-vehicle sales, components, services).

We understand and appreciate that the government's current focus is on relief and support for individuals and businesses. When the time comes to shift from urgent relief to stimulus and recovery, we hope to contribute to putting people back to work while building a cleaner, electrified transportation system.

In light of that, we have been working closely with our industry association, Electric Mobility Canada, to propose both short-term and medium-term measures that will both stimulate near-term investment and support economic recovery so we can put folks in our sector back to work when it is safe to do so. Attached is the submission sent to the Premier and Minister Hayman.

Happy to answer any questions or facilitate a discussion with the EMC policy committee.

I can keep a watch daily if you have asked, and send a quick synopsis each day. I can compile for a weekly list if you think there is value in sharing with CAS Exec/managers.

Last batch from me. Lots of articles online, all basically making the same argument – don't waste this moment, and use the stimulus packages being designed globally to make the transition to a low-carbon economy. I didn't include most of the articles that I found, as they are not saying anything new. If I come across any articles that provide specific policy insight, I'll pass it along.

Hello,

Attached is a framework that we (Clean Energy Canada) put together with principles, vision, goals, and a framework for actions to guide a Resilient Economic Recovery stimulus package for Canada. While this was done for the federal government I think it may be useful for B.C. as well, and in particular for the framing for the recovery task force that you've created.

Let us know if you have any questions or would like to discuss. If you've interest in this framework, we could modify it for B.C. and send that tomorrow.

Hope you're all healthy and holding up during this crazy time.

Merran

Good morning Neil,

I hope this email finds you well during these uncertain times.

I wanted to share with you the first blog posts in a new series from the Canadian Institute for Climate Choices that explores implications of the pandemic and economic crisis for Canada's climate policy choices.

"Climate policy in the long shadow of COVID-19," by chief economist Dave Sawyer,

Copyright

Another blog in the series, "Climate change vs. economic growth in a time of crisis" explores why and how Canada's longer-term economic recovery should incorporate policies to effectively address climate change. The blog is written by Clean Growth Program Director Rachel Samson and Richard G. Lipsey, Professor Emeritus at Simon Fraser University and one of Canada's foremost experts on economic policy.

We hope you find this content of interest. If you prefer not to receive updates like these, please don't hesitate to let me know.

Bonjour,

Je souhaitais partager avec vous les premiers blogues d'une nouvelle série de l'Institut canadien pour les choix climatiques qui explore les implications de la pandémie actuelle et de la crise économique qui s'en découle sur la politique canadienne en matière de choix climatiques.

«La politique climatique à l'ombre de la COVID-19», par l'économiste en chef Dave Sawyer, examine comment la réponse à la pandémie vient changer le paysage et le contexte des priorités immédiates et à plus long terme du Canada en matière de politique climatique.

Un autre blogue de la série, «Politiques climatiques contre croissance économique en temps de crise», explique pourquoi et comment le Canada devrait mettre en place des politiques pour lutter efficacement contre les changements climatiques. Ce blog est signé par la directrice du programme de Croissance Propre, Rachel Samson et par le professeur émérite à l'Université Simon Fraser, Richard G. Lipsey, l'un des spécialistes les plus éminent du pays sur les questions de politiques économiques.

Nous espérons que le contenu de cette nouvelle série suscitera votre intérêt. Si vous préférez ne pas recevoir de mises à jour comme celle-ci n'hésitez pas à me le laisser savoir.

Au plaisir,
Rebecca

Hi Neil,

Totally forgot (don't tell my team :) to point you to our green building jobs map that has job numbers. Retrofits provide a lot of jobs. Also coincidentally talked to my heat pump contractor who told me in 2009, with EcoAction, his little company did $4 million in heat pump installations alone because of the fed incentives.

And here's the German approach to hydrogen that I mentioned as well. They only providing incentives for green H2 in industry (no support for blue H2 or H2 use for building heat).

I looked at this and it's good thinking.

My challenge with it is that all these good ideas require money and investment and there is no part that looks at the relative affordability or ROI . I keep thinking about how Don will challenge us and ask "what's the business case" for each of these ideas. It's also true that our ability to invest depends upon our fiscal health. I think this thinking goes very nicely with the big ideas ec-dev stuff I have been thinking about. AS a way to have a fully rounded story we can argue that (clean/green) industrial projects (like more LNG) can drive revenues that can be invested in these kind of good things.

Anyhow that y 2 cents.

Hi Jeremy and Neil,

Please see the update from Katie below – the emerging PCC discussions appear to be another effort underway at merging COVID recovery efforts with climate change considerations.

- As the Premier's Office (Craig) is involved in the PCC discussions, I suggest that we have a quick call to make sure that required alignments are in place with the other similar initiatives and thinking at play (i.e., Neil's "Build Back Better paper").

Let me know if you would like to have a quick call on this and I will follow-up to make it happen – depending on how that goes, a follow-up call with Craig may be warranted.

Subject: Update on PCC Resilience Framework Drafting

Hi Archie,

I thought I would give you an update from the PCC Resilience Drafting Team call today. You might want to pass this along to Jeremy, as Craig from the Premier's Office does sit on those calls. Craig seems to be in conversations with the Governors around recovery efforts and building the low carbon economy into those.

The discussion shifted a bit from previous calls and there was a desire to do some framing around COVID stimulus / economic recovery and advancing climate resilience as part of that. The question was then around the timelines to release the framework, with some suggesting that we release it sooner to try and take advantage of opportunities that could come from that. There were no decisions made, but it's on the list for further discussion as to is there perhaps an internal version that could be done now and then a full version later for public consumption.

The European Recovery Plans were seen to have quite a bit of a climate flavour that isn't seen so far in the United States.

In previous calls we had split up sections of the framework to draft, and B.C. received a "gold star" because we were the only ones to have completed our section.

As a next step we could set up a call with Craig for us as another way into the recovery efforts, and to have more detailed information for Jeremy.

Thanks,
Katie

Subject: RE: Federal Announcement

Hi everyone,

The news release is now live <https://pm.gc.ca/en/news/news-releases/2020/04/17/prime-minister-announces-new-support-protect-canadian-jobs>. Caitlin and I are interested to know your initial views on this or if you have any questions about how it will work. Also, any thoughts on how it could/will interact with our current initiatives?

Highlights are:

- provide up to $1.72 billion, including funding to the governments of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia, and the Alberta Orphan Well Association, to clean up orphan and/or inactive oil and gas wells – creating thousands of jobs and having lasting environmental benefits.
 - up to $1 billion to the Government of Alberta
 - up to $400 million to the Government of Saskatchewan
 - up to $120 million to the Government of British Columbia
 - $200 million to the Alberta Orphan Well Association. The Association will fully repay this amount.
- provide up to $750 million to create a new proposed Emissions Reduction Fund to reduce emissions in Canada's oil and gas sector, with a focus on methane. This fund will provide primarily repayable contributions to conventional and offshore oil and gas firms to support their investments to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Of this amount, $75 million will be allocated to the offshore sector.

- expand eligibility for the new Business Credit Availability Program announced on March 13, 2020, to help Canadian businesses get the financing they need during this period of uncertainty. The support will be available to medium-sized businesses with larger financing needs, beginning with companies in Canada's energy sector, to help them maintain operations and keep their employees on the job.

The news release also highlights further support to small businesses through community futures and Western Economic Development.

Thanks and look forward to your response,
Avril

Subject: Federal Announcement

Morning everyone,

The federal government announced various measures this morning. Details are currently limited but we have already reached out to the government for the news release. I will send an update and more analysis once we know more.

- $750 million Emission Reduction Fund, with a focus on methane and to create jobs through efforts to cut pollution. $75 million of the fund is specific for the offshore oil industry Newfoundland and Labrador to cut emissions.
- $1.7B investment to clean up orphaned and inactive wells in Alberta, Saskatchewan and B.C.

To note, response from Alberta has been positive to the announcement.

<https://twitter.com/jkenney/status/1251174614245404676>

In regards to support for small business, it is also worth noting $962 million will be made available to regional development agencies to help more businesses, particularly those that don't have relationships with traditional financial institutions.

More to come,

Avril

Hi all,

As discussed at Expanded Executive this morning, please find attached a draft deck that suggests how government's economic recovery can support B.C.'s climate/clean growth and climate preparedness priorities. The ideas in the deck are meant to be one component of economic stimulus/recovery and could be combined/integrated with a more comprehensive framework. Please do not distribute this further.

For P&A, ADMCSSP, etc.

Next Steps for Both:

- We have a meeting with Mark on Monday, April 27 and with MGH on Wednesday April 29 (Jennifer please make sure Neil is invited to both). They were originally arranged to go over DMCCSP materials but we should keep the time to discuss both BBB and the P&A approach.
- Let's have, by Friday for our meeting with Mark on Monday, a:
 - Revised ADMCCSP Deck; and
 - Revised BBB Deck or Paper (or both). Up to you.
- After our discussion with Mark on Monday morning we'll incorporate his comments and send these materials over to MO for our Wednesday meeting.
- Jennifer could you let DMO know of the plan above.

The Minister has been effusive in his praise of this work. Thank you!

Happy to discuss.

The initial "list 1" of TRAN rehab type work developed by our highways department includes $4M for this sort of work, so that is already being captured. Anything beyond that would have to be built into 2021 and beyond. I'll investigate internally what makes sense to include for this sort of work on "list 2."

Jeremey,

Hope you are keeping well. As a reminder, we met briefly at Globe this year. I work for ChargePoint, a global leader in electric vehicle charging solutions.

As you can imagine, our operating context and that of our sector have and continue to change significantly, impacting a number of job functions related to electric vehicle charging deployment (e.g. civil and electrical contractors, engineers, electricians, project managers) and e-mobility more generally (e.g. e-vehicle sales, components, services).

We understand and appreciate that the government's current focus is on relief and support for individuals and businesses. When the time comes to shift from urgent relief to stimulus and recovery, we hope to contribute to putting people back to work while building a cleaner, electrified transportation system.

In light of that, we have been working closely with our industry association, Electric Mobility Canada, to propose both short-term and medium-term measures that will both stimulate near-term investment and support economic recovery so we can put folks in our sector back to work when it is safe to do so. Attached is the submission sent to the Premier and Minister Hayman.

Happy to answer any questions or facilitate a discussion with the EMC policy committee.

Subject: URGENT CleanBC stimulus matrix ideas

Hi all,

As you know things are moving fast and change all the time. I have now been asked to populate the attached matrix with the 'most ready' CleanBC-supporting recovery ideas. This was originally just supposed to be a list of things from the ministries themselves and I know EMPR and ENV at least have already sent up versions with regulatory and other options relating to our own ministries. Now ENV wants to add CleanBC items to our list regardless of the ministry responsible. I pushed back because I didn't think we were ready but have been overruled.

According to the above news article Trudeau has asked ministers Guilbeault (Heritage), McKenna and Wilkinson to look into a green economic recovery plan, with a focus on clean energy/GHG emission reductions. The three might also consider national supply chains, in particular for medical equipment, and food security.

Please see attached the spreadsheet of recovery items that would be ready to start in a shortish timeframe. The items we've added from a resilience perspective are marked in green so it's clear what is new. We've collected input from other partner ministries and can follow up if more detail is required on those items.

We will continue working on the longer term items that can also fit under the Build Back Better framework.

Hi Neil

Please see attached additional entries for EPD at this time. Laurel has reviewed. With respect to “most ready” these ideas need more work but we have put them forward to ensure they get on the table.

- Yellow items are existing CAS entries that we have made corrections to
- Green items are new

At last weeks ED meeting did you give timeframes for when the working groups need to put together the proposals coming out of the working group process?

Ones that come to mind for me that would be more short-term:

ICE Fund Reinvigoration – likely already covered from EMRP.

Clean Tech Challenges – Foresight examples and/or with CleanBC Industry Program – Matt to send more on this.

Others would JEDC related items?

- More Alacrity type supports – Tim L is supportive of this too
- More Export Navigator supports – perhaps with a focus on Clean Tech Exports and Capacity
- Amp up the Clean Growth Hub awareness and support
- Supports for high growth firms – could build out on the pilot that Francois' team is leading.

Clean Tech sector would like to see more VC supports and project financing for higher-growth firms – they are advocating this at the federal recovery lever – most supports are federal in nature -- EDC, BDC etc.

It wasn't so much about ideas you had as you being the co-chair of the Ec dev/clean tech working group for CleanBC. Is there really nothing JEDC is working on on the innovations or tech files that has a CleanBC angle to it that we would want to push forwards through this channel? We should likely talk so I will set something up for the 3 of us for later in the week.

Hi Neil,

I don't have any suggestions for specific ideas at this time.

I suspect that government will have multiple priorities for recovery. I know you're already thinking about this; that the ideas most likely to be funded will be collaborations between ministries checking multiple priority boxes.

I also wonder if there are opportunities to think about how BC capitalizes on the changes to workplaces/life in BC that may come over the next few years. I haven't done much thinking about this, but was listening to Dr. Tam's interview on CBC today where she talked about things like remote work; and these things would have GHG co-benefits. And more generally, I think we'll have a better chance when GHGs are a co-benefit rather than the primary objective.

For my work - I'll continue to be full on economic restart work for the foreseeable future.

I'm not sure if the ZEV regs one needs to stay in given it is just continuing our plans, but have left in for now. Mary had also made updates directly into Neil's template, I have attached it here if helpful to share as well...it just seems to reorder some of the columns, all the same info in both documents from our end. Subject: URGENT CleanBC stimulus matrix ideas

Hi all,

As you know things are moving fast and change all the time. I have now been asked to populate the attached matrix with the 'most ready' CleanBC-supporting recovery ideas. This was originally just supposed to be a list of things from the ministries themselves and I know EMPR and ENV at least have already sent up versions with regulatory and other options relating to our own ministries. Now ENV wants to add CleanBC items to our list regardless of the ministry responsible. I pushed back because I didn't think we were ready but have been overruled.

Sorry to do this to you all but I really need the answers back today, or by 10am tomorrow absolute latest. We will do all the compilation and come back with questions if you just want to fire your top few ideas at me. The appendix attached as a reminder was the original brain dump I did.

Nat/Zac – anything else on buildings not already on the EMPR list?

s.12; s.13

James/Chris – any Clean Tech focused pieces I should put on for now?

This does not replace the more thoughtful work the working groups are doing, so we will as you know have another opportunity to do this better but I do need whatever we can put down now in the format attached in the next 24 hours. Sorry again. I have left the CAS ones on there so you can all see what we have put forward for now.

Thanks

Neil

Dear Council Members,

Thanks for a good discussion on the call. I'm writing with two things:

- The key message from the meeting: The Council had a good discussion on aligning stimulus spending with CleanBC and will be moving forward on more advice for government on this. The Council also had a good discussion on adaptation and will be discussing how to prepare further advice on the province's adaptation strategy.
- Please let me know by email if you'd like to be involved in the follow-up call on adaptation. I saw some people put up their hands in the chat box but this got deleted so I don't know who that was.

Best wishes,

Elaine

Hi Neil and Elaine

I've taken a crack at drafting language for the BBB paper that addresses Archie's comment – including a reconciliation lens/Indigenous nations considerations. I'm happy to revise further if needed. I wanted to get a draft to you both sooner rather than later, so we have as much time to revise as needed before this goes back to JH on Monday.

Government Attendees: Kevin Jardine, Jeremy Hewitt, Les MacLaren, Neil Dobson, Archie Riddell, Tina Neale, Katie Olthius, Elaine Cross, Jesse Baltutis

Welcome and Opening

- Welcome to Kevin Jardine, new Deputy Minister of Environment and Climate Change Strategy.
- Opening from Co-Chairs and review of agenda.

Debrief call with Premier and Minister

- The Council debriefed the April 24th call with Premier John Horgan, Minister Carole James, and Minister George Heyman, with agreement that the Council has been invited to provide further advice on climate and stimulus.
- The Co-Chairs requested volunteers to work on framing further advice by sector (buildings, transportation, industry) as well as First Nations and adaptation.
- ACTION: CAS to compile examples of pre-existing, publicly-available polling on public attitudes towards green stimulus to share with the Council.
- ACTION: Co-Chairs to set up follow-up meeting with volunteers to develop further advice.

Maintain Momentum on CleanBC Phase 1 Implementation

- The Council discussed key CleanBC initiatives that it will be important to continue, as well as initiatives that could be adjusted or expanded to realize economic benefits as part of stimulus.
- CAS provided some examples to inform the Council's thinking on this.
- ACTION: The Council will include existing CleanBC initiatives in its further advice to government on stimulus.

Climate Preparedness and Adaptation Strategy (CPAS)

- CAS provided an update on the CPAS, including engagement approach and early thinking on possible initiatives for the strategy, grouped into seven themes.
- ACTION: Council members to send any ideas on Adaptation-related stimulus to the Co-Chairs.
- ACTION: Matt Horne to follow-up with Tina and Archie to connect them with a local government community of practice on climate.
- ACTION: CAS to set up another meeting on adaptation to provide Council members the opportunity to dive deeper into the various initiatives being proposed.

Council Workplan

- The Council reviewed the revised 2020 Council Workplan, which will be a living document subject to change.
- ACTION: Council members to send any feedback on the workplan to the Co-Chairs.
- ACTION: CAS to bring a dashboard that shows tracking on the CleanBC plan and climate targets to the Technical Sub-Committee for feedback.

Wrap the Meeting

- Key message from the meeting:
 - The Council had a good discussion on aligning stimulus spending with CleanBC and will be moving forward on more advice for government on this. The Council also had a good discussion on adaptation and will be discussing how to prepare further advice on the province's adaptation strategy.

The Honourable John Horgan
Premier of British Columbia
Government of British Columbia

The Honourable George Heyman
Minister, Environment & Climate Change
Government of British Columbia

April 15, 2020

Government planning of economic stimulus and recovery measures in response to the COVID-19 pandemic

Dear Premier Horgan and Minister Heyman,

We, members of the Climate Solutions Council, would like to recognize the hard work of the B.C. Government during the COVID-19 global crisis and thank you for your efforts to protect the health and safety of British Columbians. The COVID-19 pandemic is having a significant impact on our province's communities and economy, and we recognize the need to alleviate the short-term economic impacts from this crisis by supporting communities, businesses, and individuals who are, and will be, most affected.

Once immediate relief is in place, the government will put forward an economic stimulus package designed for job creation and rebuilding the economy. We believe this is a critical opportunity to follow recent advice from the International Energy Agency, the UN and influential publications like The Economist, which have all advocated using stimulus to help rebuild a resilient, low-carbon economy. Economic growth and our strong climate policies go hand in hand and B.C.'s long history of climate action has built an enviable foundation for the province's low-carbon industries and strong clean energy sector that will serve it well in recovering from the impacts of the pandemic.

Therefore, we urge the Province to apply a climate and equity lens to all stimulus programs implemented to ensure that we promote the growth of a cleaner and more just economy, building on the objectives, values, and actions in CleanBC. This includes ensuring short-term actions are consistent with our longer-term transition to a sustainable low-carbon society and economy. B.C. has an opportunity to be among leading jurisdictions including the EU, Germany and South Korea, which have all made public commitments to link economic stimulus to innovation and decarbonization goals. This leadership—demonstrated by governments, businesses, Indigenous nations and citizens—positions B.C. well to develop COVID-19 recovery policies that spur innovation, create secure jobs and continue the province on a path to decarbonization

CleanBC provides the ideal strategic framework for stimulus investment

B.C. has benefited from climate leadership in the past and would benefit from continued leadership in the future. The economic crisis arising from the pandemic is creating a significant decline in greenhouse gas emissions. But as the economy recovers from the crisis, these emissions will rise again. Now is not the time to reverse our strong climate policies and plans to transition to a low-carbon economy.

B.C.'s prominent natural resource industries can all be part of economic recovery along with the clean energy and clean technology sectors. Independent research has found the province's clean energy sector employs 32,000 British Columbians, from hydro dam workers in the north, to cleantech engineers in Vancouver, to home insulators in the Fraser Valley.

CleanBC provides the ideal strategic blueprint within which to direct a significant portion of stimulus investment to cost-effective (in terms of emissions reduced per dollar spent) near- and mid-term projects, programs, and training, recognizing that some capital investments for infrastructure will take a longer time to come to fruition. CleanBC provides many initiatives that will help restore economic health, reduce carbon pollution, and generate sustainable economic growth.

Specific aspects of CleanBC that are relevant to short-term stimulus might include:

Buildings: Funds to build zero-emission affordable housing, built using B.C. wood products, and funds for heat pump and other energy upgrades for homes and buildings.

Industry: Funds to accelerate and incent large and small businesses to adopt technology to reduce emissions, industrial decarbonization projects including CCS or air capture, and to support grid infrastructure required to advance electrification.

Transportation: Funds for zero-emission transit and active transportation expansion.

We also encourage the government to include stimulus programs that make it easier and more affordable for businesses and households to switch to renewable energy and use energy more efficiently. Doing so provides more opportunity to make investments quickly and can also leverage private sector investments. For example, many of the ideas in the BC Hydro Phase 2 Review Interim Report would make it more affordable for British Columbians and B.C. businesses to switch from fossil fuels to clean electricity with solutions such as electric vehicles and heat pumps.

We strongly encourage you to work with the federal government and B.C. local governments to align stimulus efforts to ensure that they have the maximum impact on jobs, the economy and carbon pollution reduction.

Move forward with Phase 1 Clean BC programs, policies, and regulations

In addition to stimulus measures, we recommend that the government continue moving ahead, to the fullest extent practicable, with programs, policies, and regulations that have been committed to under Phase 1 of the CleanBC plan as well as delivering on other commitments made by government, including the development and integration of low carbon industrial strategy work with CleanBC. Announcements and progress to date on these measures have already sent a clear market signal, shaping business and investment decisions. As you know, these efforts are supporting the transition to clean energy across the economy and can ensure there is ongoing and increasing private sector investment in climate solutions. Key actions from Phase 1 of CleanBC include strengthening the low-carbon fuel standard, zero-emission vehicle regulations, continuing with carbon price increases, and funding CleanBC programs that have been oversubscribed in the past.

Role of the Climate Solutions Council

The intent of this letter is to highlight to the Province this critical opportunity during these exceptionally challenging times. The Climate Solutions Council would like to offer our collective expertise and mandate to support the government's efforts to align economic stimulus and recovery with CleanBC, including its climate targets for 2030 and beyond.

We recommend that the Minister of the Environment and his Deputy Minister be added to the recently announced Premier's Economic Recovery Task Force as well as representation from the BC Climate Solutions Council.

Again, thank you for the leadership your government is taking at this time to 'flatten the curve' and provide relief for B.C. families and businesses. Should you have any questions or wish to discuss these issues further, please do not hesitate to call us.

Yours sincerely,

Hi folks,

Attached a spreadsheet of ideas that is being lead by Jennifer McGuire and Marian Weber in the ENV Econ Team within the Knowledge Management Branch. Ryan and I have been leading for CAS up to this point and the work was only directly ENV related and was only about regulatory measures (Ryan was checking in with your teams Archie), but now the ask has changed s.12; s.13

I think it makes sense for Ryan to still coordinate and act as link to Marian, so if you could get back to him by end of tomorrow with things you want to add to the list that would be great, and I will do the same, then he can compile and get to Marian Wednesday morning. We can keep improving the list after that, but I believe we do need another final draft by end of Wednesday so Marian will need time to pull together the pieces coming from other parts of ENV too.

Does that all make sense?

Hi Archie,

This is a little different. This is just stuff we are ready(ish) now on, needs to be in the format on the spreadsheet and is due tomorrow. This does not replace the wider BBB conversation we had, it is a connected but separate ask to make sure things are being seen in each place so we can cover off all bases.

Thanks
Neil

Thanks Neil for the update – this request builds upon the discussion we had last week, and the one pager we are going to put together of adaptation ideas.

- When is the information required?
- Should we use the same categories as those set out in BBB?

Subject: URGENT(ish): ENV recovery list

Hi folks,

Attached a spreadsheet of ideas that is being lead by Jennifer McGuire and Marian Weber in the ENV Econ Team within the Knowledge Management Branch. Ryan and I have been leading for CAS up to this point and the work was only directly ENV related and was only about regulatory measures (Ryan was checking in with your teams Archie), but now the ask has changed^{s.12; s.13}

I think it makes sense for Ryan to still coordinate and act as link to Marian, so if you could get back to him by end of tomorrow with things you want to add to the list that would be great, and I will do the same, then he can compile and get to Marian Wednesday morning. We can keep improving the list after that, but I believe we do need another final draft by end of Wednesday so Marian will need time to pull together the pieces coming from other parts of ENV too.

Does that all make sense?

Hi Archie, I just read this again and note the sentence highlighted. So, unlike what we just discussed, it looks like we need to include anything we know about.

As we discussed, we will include the CAS and ENV led items in our policies list. I suggest we also include the MOTI culverts program and projects from EMBC. Other than those, I don't think we have anything else "worked up" to a sufficient level at this time.

Katie, can you think of any others?

Hi Neil,

Please see attached the spreadsheet of recovery items that would be ready to start in a shortish timeframe. The items we've added from a resilience perspective are marked in green so it's clear what is new. We've collected input from other partner ministries and can follow up if more detail is required on those items.

We will continue working on the longer term items that can also fit under the Build Back Better framework.

Thanks,

Looking good. A few suggested edits in red mainly to the front end such that this can go directly to PO/DMs once MGH has input his ideas. Let's aim to get this to MGH at EOD. This way it can go with the other two pieces in a single email.

Looking good. A few suggested edits in red mainly to the front end such that this can go directly to PO/DMs once MGH has input his ideas. Let's aim to get this to MGH at EOD. This way it can go with the other two pieces in a single email.

Minister: There is a 20 page accompanying document to this deck showing the math that will be ready shortly. The idea is that once you've reviewed and commented I would circulate to DMs and upstairs and you would do the same for downstairs.

Karla will find a few mins to discuss in the next 48 hours.

Hi Mark,

BCBC said that during their April 6th call with MGH it was decided that a one our follow-up meeting was required (via Microsoft Teams) to include Jeff Booth and Charles Levigne from Llamazoo. They did not provide an agenda beyond this, but I can ask the MO to reach out and inquire about one if that would be helpful!

It would be good to get details on the committee Glen mentioned yesterday. I think ENV should be represented.

I saw your text about the companion doc. I thought we were downing tools on that piece so will need some time to put that together.

Good morning Don and Christine:

As promised, please find attached a draft deck that provides initial concepts for how government's economic recovery can support B.C.'s clean growth and climate preparedness priorities. There is a longer companion document that supports the deck that will be ready soon.

The ideas in the deck are meant to be one component of economic stimulus/recovery and could be combined/integrated with a more comprehensive presentation at some point. These ideas tie to the LCIS work and what we're hearing from Canada on how they may structure their stimulus. Dave and Fazil also have this deck, as does MGH who intends to discuss with GM.

I looked at this and it's good thinking.

My challenge with it is that all these good ideas require money and investment and there is no part that looks at the relative affordability or ROI. I keep thinking about how Don will challenge us and ask "what's the business case" for each of these ideas. It's also true that our ability to invest depends upon our fiscal health. I think this thinking goes very nicely with the big ideas ec-dev stuff I have been thinking about. AS a way to have a fully rounded story we can argue that (clean/green) industrial projects (like more LNG) can drive revenues that can be invested in these kind of good things.

Anyhow that y 2 cents.

Mark and Jennifer:

In case of interest, here is a doc that shows how CAS is thinking about COVID and our operations. It's a draft working document.

In short we've:

- Identified key deliverables milestones for this year
- Outlined a contingency plan for each essential or critical service/priority
- Have considered key policy areas that may need a course correction
- Taken stock of key personnel/HR challenges we are hearing
- Tracked stakeholder requests and our responses

This will feed into a revised formal BCP that we will keep up to date. And we are of course feeding into the corporate initiatives led by Jennifer.

The above is probably more info that you need but I did want you to have a sense of how CAS is planning during this event and (hopefully) be given some comfort that we are prepared.

Happy to discuss.

Good morning Kevin:

s.13

We can discuss this today at our check-in.

Finally, I want to recognize Neil as the brains behind much of this work.

Thanks,

Jeremy
