A message from Kevin Jardine
Deputy Minister
Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy

Good morning,

I hope you had a good B.C. day weekend last week and are continuing to enjoy your summer.

As you will recall, we recently ran a survey of all staff concerning remote work sustainability and office building reintegration. It asked you to, broadly speaking, compare your circumstances before and after COVID-19 restrictions coming into place. This allowed us to create a “before and after” picture of your work-related experiences.

We have now finished reviewing the results of that survey, and I am pleased to share a few highlights with you. Amongst other things, the results of the survey reinforce our understanding that flexible work arrangements and workplace safety protocols are important to you.

Attached to this email is a set of slides presenting some of those key findings. I have also noted some of those findings below. A more detailed analysis of the data was also sent previously to your division leadership.

When considering the changes in staff responses from “in the 30 days prior to COVID-19 restrictions” to “in the last 30 days:”

- Overwhelmingly, staff reported a much easier time maintaining a healthy work/life balance (see slide 2).
- Generally, most staff who transitioned from full-time office work to full-time remote work found it easier to complete work related tasks, though a small percentage of the ministry did find it more difficult (see slide 3).
- About a third of staff reported having some negative experiences working remotely, including technical issues, distractions at home, ergonomic issues and lack of social interaction (see slide 4).
- Over 80% of staff reported positive experiences working remotely, including shorter commutes, fewer interruptions, improved work-life balance, and improved communication (see slide 5).
- Lastly, when asked for additional comments or concerns, staff expressed the importance of flexible work arrangements, concerns about their work environment, and concerns about work-life balance, mental health and stress (see slide 6).

With respect to building reintegration planning and next steps, workplace building leads are now in place for all 100+ ENV workplaces throughout the province. For workplaces where ENV is not the building lead, divisions have been working to identify an ENV building representative for each work location. The building leads and representatives are working collaboratively with building occupants, JOHS representatives, CSNR facilities and others to develop building workplace reintegration plans, safe work procedures and building specific orientation. While some buildings have moved to stage 2 or 3 of the guidelines, our goal is to have all ENV offices assessed, with control measures in place and individual office plans developed by end of summer. As we move forward, divisions will continue to play an integral role in building specific decisions and ongoing monitoring to ensure the established guidelines and control measures continue to be followed.

As clearly noted in the survey results, flexible work arrangements continue to be an important factor for many staff and as part of our discussions, the executive team will continue to explore how we can support remote work on a ongoing basis.

Whether you are working in the office or working from home or some other location, your safety and physical and mental health and well-being are of the upmost importance and I encourage you to raise any issues or concerns with your manager and/or supervisor.

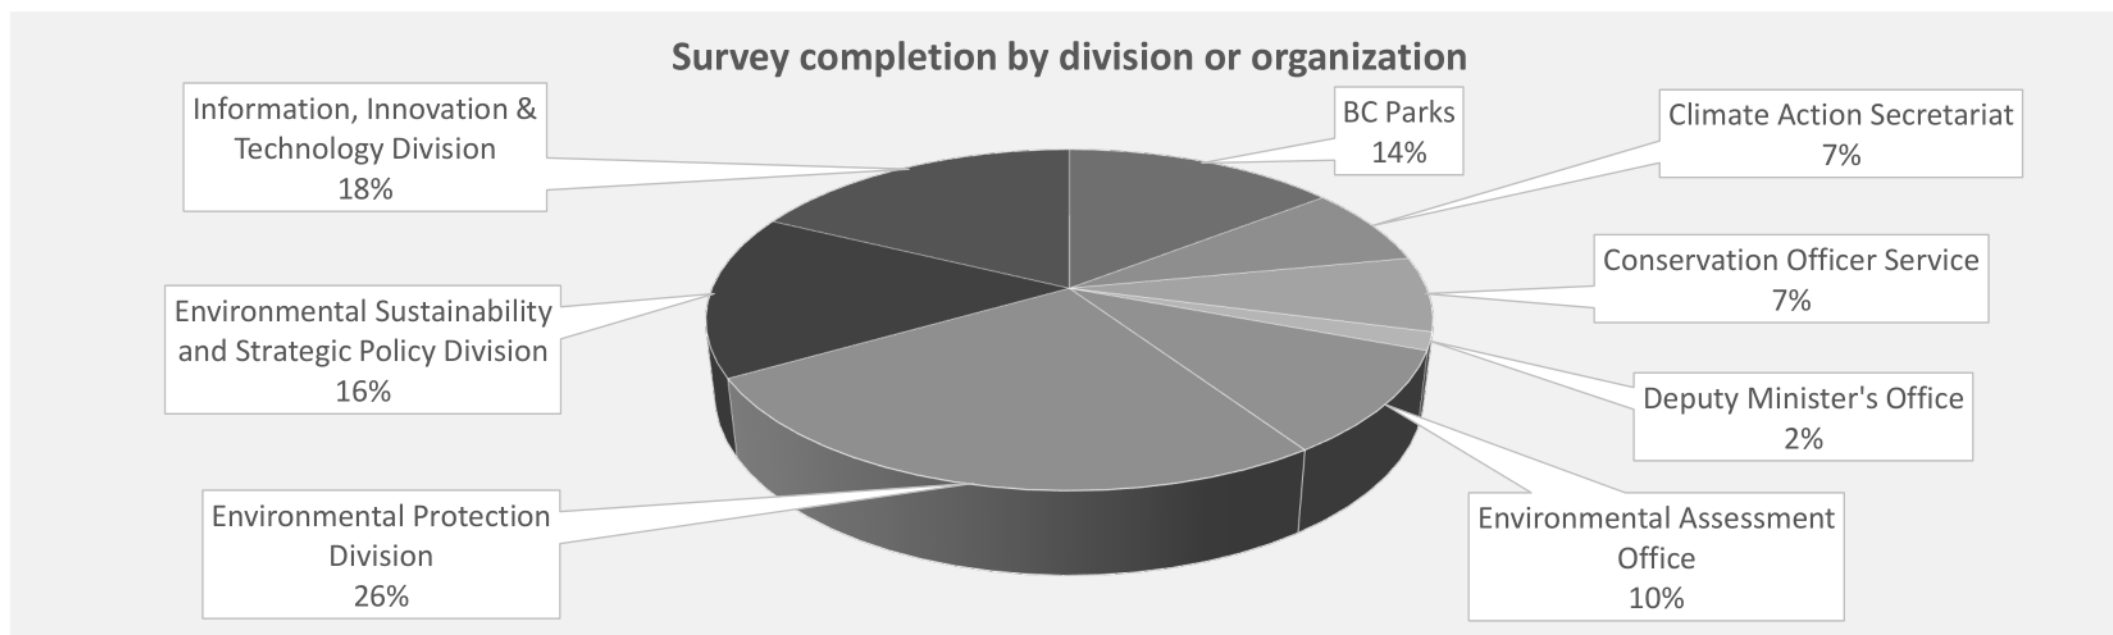

I would like to once again thank you for your participation in this survey. Your responses will help to ensure our actions moving forward will be as responsive to your needs and concerns as possible.

With best regards,

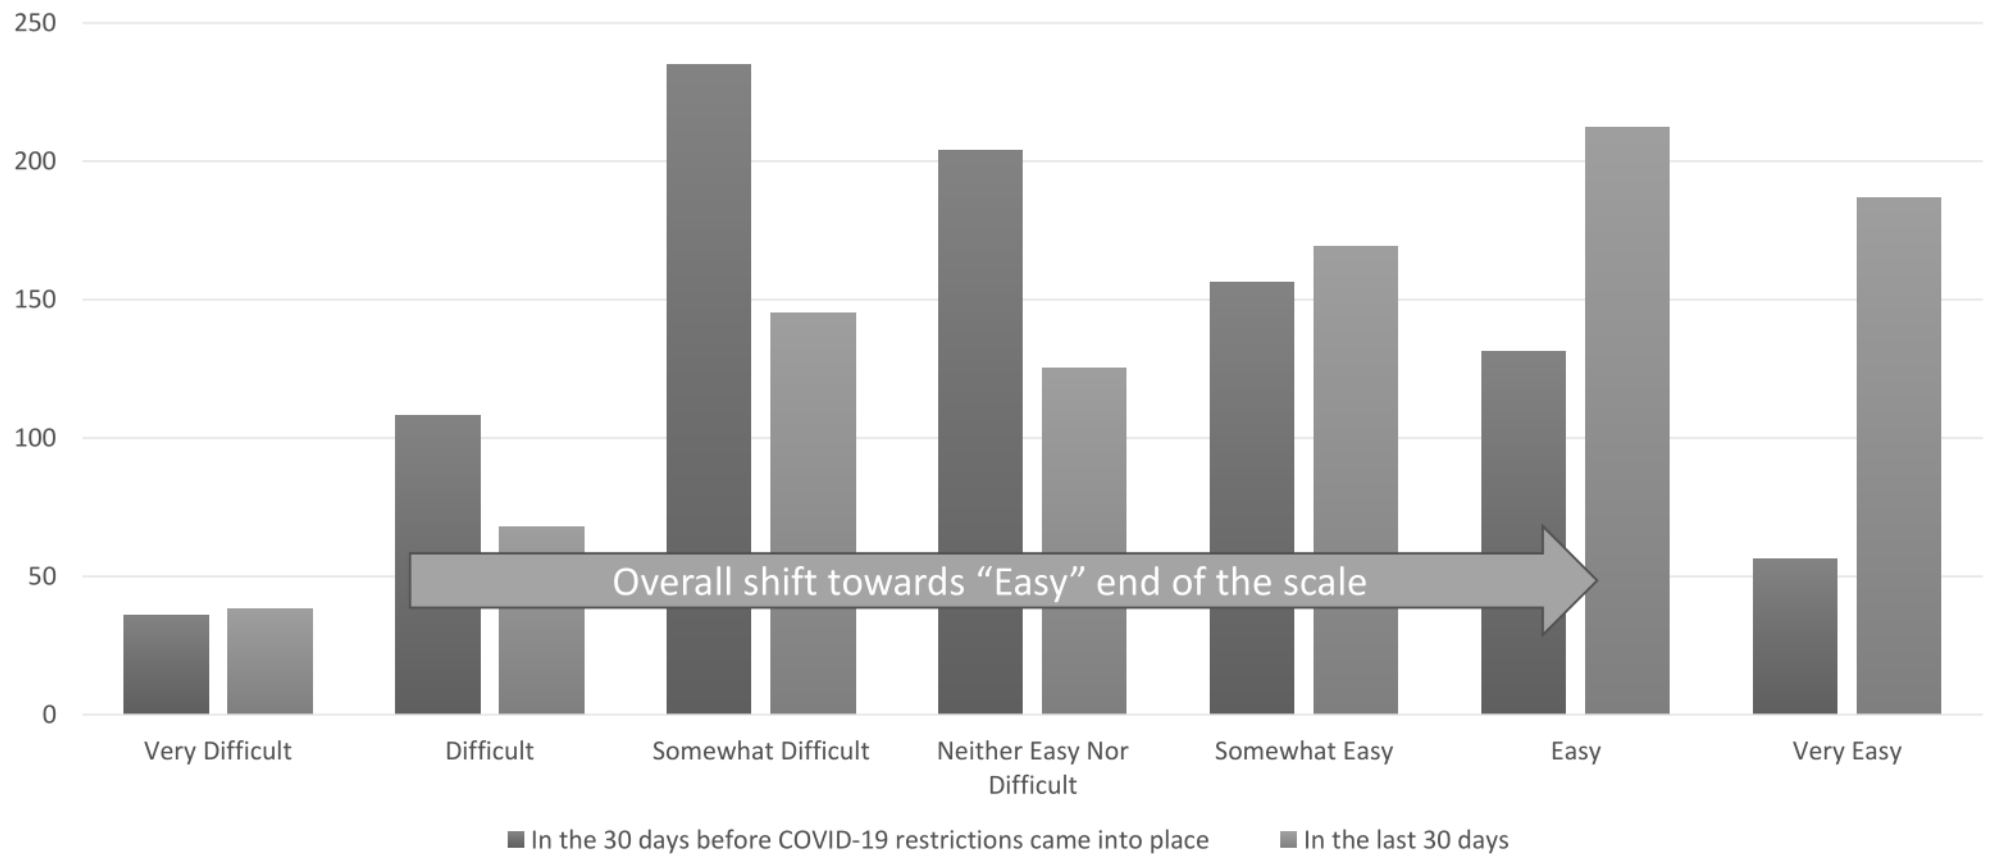

K.

Key Indicators

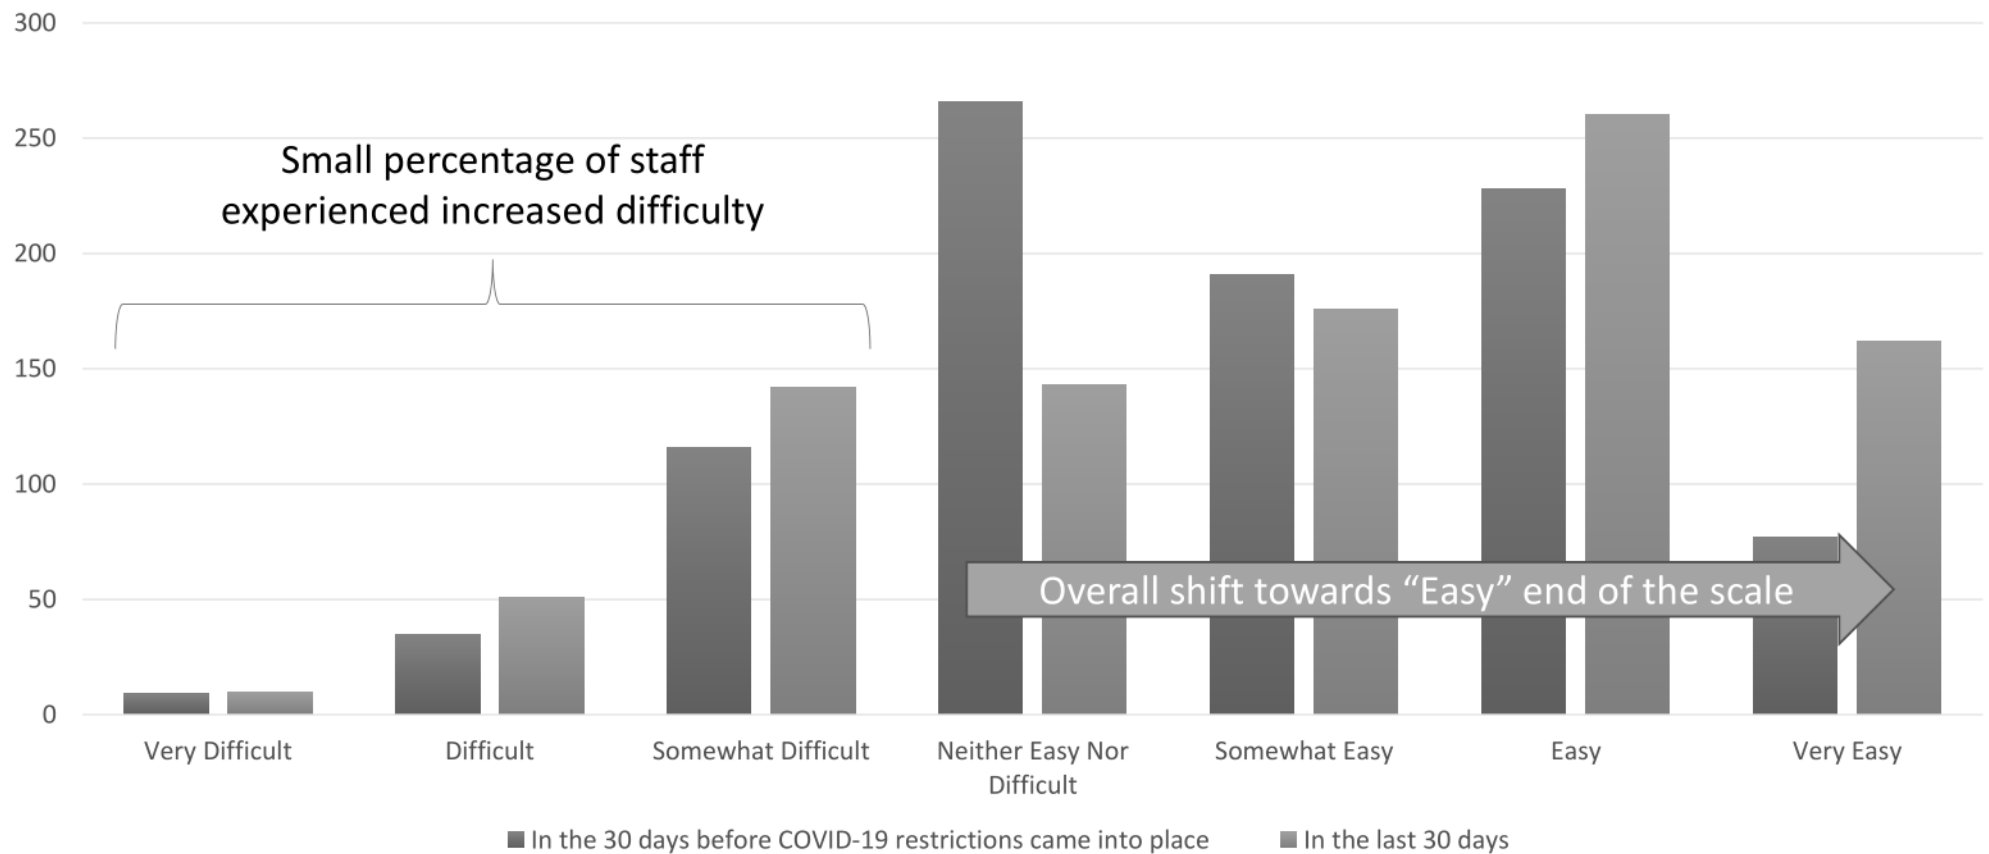

Number of responses	Response rate	# of days open
946	65.7%	14

Difficulty maintaining healthy work/life balance (from “before COVID-19 restrictions” to “the last 30 days”)

Difficulty completing work-related tasks (from “before COVID-19 restrictions” to “the last 30 days”)

Q12: What were the most significant things you experienced that negatively affected your ability to work effectively when working remotely over the last 30 days?

A total of 333 respondents (35%) commented on this question. In addition to the main themes noted below, comments also mentioned, lack of access to supplies and files, fatigue, cost, longer hours, more work and health issues.

Top Themes

1. Technical and equipment issues (48%)²
2. Distractions at home (39%)
3. Set up of home office and ergonomic issues (27%)
4. Communication issues with colleagues and lack of social interaction (20%)

Sample Comments

"Needing to use multiple video communication platforms sometimes three or four in a single day with little to no training. Connections through VPN to government networks including file storage was often slow or interrupted. Lack of a printer at my home office was often cause for delay or sometimes inefficient work."

"Network connections, slow internet speed, available equipment (dual monitors, keyboard, keyboard tray, etc.)."

"With the daycares and schools closed, it was difficult to work and look after young children at the same time."

"Difficulty with internet connection (needed to increase our internet speed); distractions at home; need to care for and support my children; less than ideal workspace (no proper desk, chair or spare room)."

"Ergonomics at home not optimal. Server issues with summer.gov.bc.ca (having to log off and log back on multiple times a day). Noise/distraction issues with family at home. Harder to arrange informal meetings/discussion with colleagues. Lack of access to hard copy reference documents and files."

"Software or computer crashing or trouble with equipment (mic, headset). Availability of other colleagues at the same time as me (differing work schedules due to childcare, etc.)."

"The social disconnection with the team; specifically, the ability to collaborate in the same physical space."

Q14: What were the most significant positive experiences you had over the last 30 days that resulted from working remotely that you would not have had working in a physical government office or in the field?

This question elicited the most responses with 767 (81%) of respondents commenting. Note: the top themes for this question were determined using topic modelling.

Top Themes

- 1. Less commute time, more time with family (48%)
- 2. Less interruptions, easier to focus (23%)
- 3. Work-life balance, healthier lifestyle (21%)
- 4. Better communication, increased work efficiency (9%)

Sample Comments
"More time to spend with my family before and after work; time I would have spent commuting."
"Not commuting a long distance and decreasing my carbon footprint..."
"It's quiet. I can focus on my work instead of being distracted by the constant conversation in an open space setting..."
"I was able to work earlier and work later in the day. There was no traffic or parking to worry about and I was able to get more physical activity in. I ate better as I was not eating out as much."
"Increased productivity as a result of not having to commute to work and easier to focus on specific tasks when working from home."
"My team now connects once a day, and my work unit twice weekly. Before my work unit never met, and my team would meet once a month. We are more connected than ever now, and I hope that continues even when we transition back to working in the office."
"Conference calls are easier. Pre-COVID, if you are not in the room you felt left out of the conversation. Teams is an excellent addition to the workplace. We're able to collaborate better than before."
"... I am not as tired and ultimately more productive during work hours at home. I can move my workstation around, so I am not limited to sitting at my desk. Easier to maintain work-life balance with shorter commute."

Did you have any other concerns, comments or questions that were not otherwise addressed elsewhere in the survey? If so, what are they?

As the final question in the survey, this question elicited a variety of responses from the 452 respondents who provided comments. In addition to the top themes below there were also comments that spoke to the communication and support provided during this pandemic, preference for the office environment, and the survey itself. Note: 98 (or 22%) of the commenters noted they had nothing further to add. Therefore, the themes and percentages below reflect the answers from the remaining 354 commenters.

Top Themes

- 1. Keep remote work as an option / provide resources (47%)⁸
- 2. Concerns about work environment / suggested changes (38%)
- 3. Flexible work schedules / childcare / family commitments (15%)
- 4. Work-life balance/ mental health / stress (8%)

Sample Comments

"I have found working from home to be a very positive, productive experience with no down-sides other than minor inconveniences such as not having my standing desk (I've had to be creative) and a good office chair (which I could bring home from the office but haven't yet). I feel I'm being more productive with fewer interruptions and spending break times as I choose and in ways that enhance my work-life balance. I hope the option to work remotely continues!"

"I believe we should be moving to a partially mobile workforce across government in any location where the public is not being directly served. This work arrangement promotes productive work, better work-life balance and is more sustainable financially and more environmentally responsible."

"A key issue will be to ensure that staff who have family obligations or serious personal health risks have the flexibility to continue to work remotely."

"I appreciate our Ministry's willingness to allow employees to work from home and accepting that people are working varied hours due to family and home responsibilities."

"No matter how many checks and safety measures are put into place, COVID-19 remains active in our community and can be spread by asymptomatic people, therefore there remains a (slight) risk of infection once we return to government offices. It will be extremely important to understand what measures will be in place if/when COVID-19 enters the workplace."

A Note from Kevin Jardine, Deputy Minister
Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy

Good afternoon,

Over the last year, we've seen a change in the way many of us work across the BC Public Service. This has allowed many of us to experience both the benefits and the challenges of sustained remote work. While flexible work arrangements allowed us to continue providing services to the citizens of B.C. during this unique situation, we need to plan for a more sustainable, longer-term approach. With this in mind, the Deputy Ministers' Committee on Public Service Renewal is exploring ways to refresh and build on the flexible work model we had in place before the pandemic.

On May 17, you will receive an invitation from Lori Wanamaker to share your perspectives through an online ThoughtExchange activity. Whether you have been working remotely or not during the pandemic, I encourage you to participate so we can benefit from your perspective and experience to help us shape how we work in the future. The results of this engagement activity will be shared with the public service and your input will also inform further discussions how we might apply different ways of working within our ministry context later this summer.

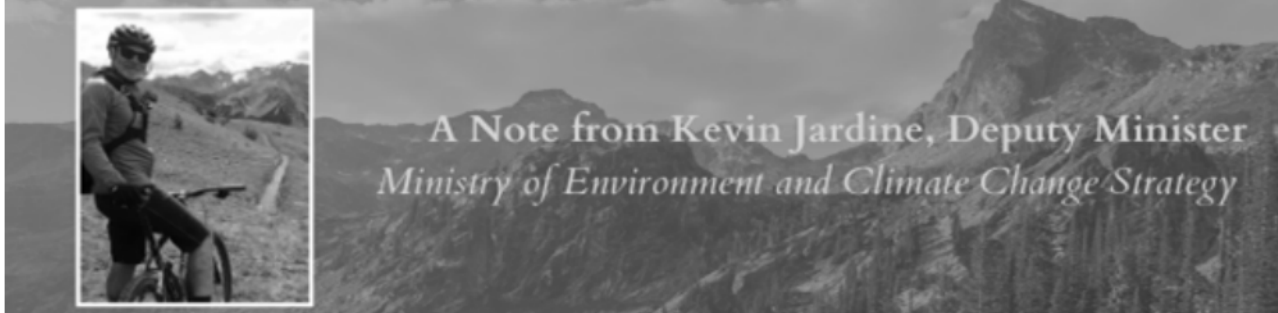

I recognize that our ministry has unique considerations, given that we conduct field work in our operations across the province. I also want to highlight the potential for a reviewed work model to reduce emissions from commuting and business travel, which supports one of our key ministry mandates.

Thank you once again for your continued dedication to the public service during our COVID-19 pandemic response.

With best regards,
K.

DM Message: Nature of Work Engagement

Good morning,

Lori Wanamaker yesterday shared the results of the May online engagement survey related to the experience of BC Public Service employees working from home during the pandemic. Participants in that engagement sent a clear message of their preference for continued access to flexible work arrangements after the pandemic.

As Lori's message noted, BC Public Service policies supported flexible work options before the pandemic and will continue to do so in the future. Further decisions will be made in the next few weeks on the details of how we will apply that policy approach, before we get to the transition to Step 4 of the provincial restart plan in early September. The goal going into the fall is to transition to a more sustainable approach that balances our shared obligations to British Columbians, employee preferences, and the BC Public Service's responsibilities as an employer.

It's important to note the approach to flexible work during the pandemic reflected the unique context of a prolonged public health emergency. It was always temporary. We adopted widespread remote work where operationally feasible as a public health measure. In the process, we relaxed some of the usual requirements expected to support flexible work arrangements.

I would like to acknowledge the many ministry staff who have been working in the field throughout the pandemic, and those who have been coming into the office on a regular basis. We recognize that flexible work arrangements may not be relevant for some positions. We also understand that not everyone can or wants to work remotely, and this will also be taken into consideration when analysing the impact on our organizational performance, culture and working relationships.

I anticipate being able to share a similar report with you in late July that shows the results specific to our ministry. Once we have clear direction on the BC Public Service's refreshed approach to flexible work, we will then explore how we will adopt that within the context of our ministry and its operational needs.

Thank you for your commitment and continued care and professionalism.

With best regards,

K.

DM Message: ENV Flexible Work Model

A Note from Kevin Jardine, Deputy Minister Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy

Good afternoon,

This morning, Lori Wanamaker announced the overall direction the BC Public Service is taking on continuing flexible work options after the pandemic. Your continued resiliency and adaptability to change over this past year and a half is appreciated, and your dedication has been recognized.

If you would like to continue working remotely over the remaining summer months, you may do so until the anticipated transition to Step 4 of BC's Restart Plan on September 7. To continue working remotely beyond that date, you will be required to have an approved telework agreement in place using the template provided by the BC Public Service Agency (PSA). It will still be possible to establish a flexible work arrangement after September 7, but if you do not have an approved agreement in place by then you will be expected to return to your regular workplace on your regular schedule on that date.

The new telework agreement template is very similar to the one used prior to the pandemic, with just three updated criteria to be aware of:

1. Mandatory Training: All mandatory corporate training required by the PSA must be completed before a telework agreement can be approved. Right now, this includes IM 117, and The Annual Review of the Standards of Conduct and the Oath of Employment.
2. Executive Approval: Requests for remote work three days or more a week require approval by your Assistant Deputy Minister (ADM) or delegate, in addition to your supervisor's approval.
3. Workspace: If you are approved to work remotely three or more days per week, you may no longer have a dedicated desk or workspace in your regular workplace. However, you will always have access to a workspace in the office, via a shared or mobile location.

If you already have an approved telework agreement in place and it uses the required template, you still need to have a conversation with your supervisor to confirm that they agree with the continuation of the existing arrangement, and that you have met all required criteria. Consistent with the new criteria, your supervisor may also need to confirm ADM support. If your existing agreement does not utilize the required template or needs amendments, you will need to work with your supervisor to complete a new agreement. More information on the criteria for flexible work arrangements and supporting resources are available on the MyHR website.

Within the Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy, we will approach support for flexible work in a way that effectively supports our organizational effectiveness, our obligations to the public, our culture, and is fair and equitable across the ministry.

Our new ministry flexible work model will allow employees the opportunity to work from home up to three days per week and be present in the office at least two days per week. However, I do understand that this new work model may not be applicable for every position, due to the nature of the work. This model may be applied differently across the ministry, which is why we encourage you to have an open dialogue with your supervisor to determine the appropriate adaptation for your position. As noted above, requests for remote work three or more days a week require approval by your ADM or delegate.

I encourage you to maximize your presence when in the office. Take advantage of team meetings, the ability to have in-person conversations, in-person learning, onboarding, and furthering your rapport with ministry colleagues and stakeholders. I understand there is value to working at home and in the office, and I believe this new flexible work model will allow employees to reconnect, collaborate, and further support organizational effectiveness virtually and in person.

As we move towards our new flexible work model, all borrowed office equipment, furniture, and cords will be required to be returned to the office.

I look forward to meeting more of you in person as we move into this next phase.

With best regards,

K.

Dear Andrew:

On behalf of the Honourable George Heyman, Minister of Environment and Climate Change Strategy, thank you for your email of May 26, 2022, regarding climate change and remote work. I am pleased to have this opportunity to respond.

I want to assure you that the Province is taking the steps necessary to achieve B.C.'s climate goals, as well as working to ensure that all sectors do their part in transitioning B.C. to a low-carbon economy.

Regarding your question about climate initiatives, I am pleased to inform you that in October 2021, the Province followed up the 2018 CleanBC climate plan with the release of the CleanBC Roadmap to 2030, a plan with new and strengthened measures designed to fully meet B.C.'s legislated 2030 greenhouse gas reduction target, and to start setting the Province on the path to net-zero emissions by 2050.

The Roadmap builds on progress already made and includes a wide range of actions to reduce carbon pollution and build a cleaner, stronger economy for everyone. It will make polluting more expensive and make shifting from fossil fuels to clean energy easier and more affordable. The Roadmap includes actions such as:

- Increasing the carbon tax to meet or exceed the federal requirement of $170/tCO₂e by 2030;
- A 100 percent clean electricity standard for the BC Hydro grid (electricity generation is currently 98 percent clean in B.C.);
- A cap on emissions for natural gas utilities;
- Stronger methane reduction policies that will reduce methane emissions from the oil and gas sector by 75 percent by 2030;
- An accelerated zero emission vehicle mandate that will require 90 percent of new cars sold to be zero-emissions by 2030 and 100 percent by 2035;
- Increased clean fuel requirements in the transportation sector;
- Requiring that all new buildings be zero-emissions from 2030, and that all heating equipment installed from 2030 be at least 100% efficient; and
- A commitment to develop a workforce readiness framework to ensure people are positioned for good jobs in an inclusive and cleaner economy.

Addressing emissions from the oil and gas sector is a key part of the Province's climate strategy. In March 2021, British Columbia became the first Province in Canada to set sectoral GHG targets. These targets include for the oil and gas sector (including any LNG developments) to reduce its emissions by at least 33 percent by 2030.

Finally, regarding your question about BC Public Service employees working remotely, more than 50 percent of BC Public Service employees now have telework agreements in place. This is a significant increase in remote work adoption from pre pandemic levels. Telework agreements allow remote working where operationally feasible for up to two days per week as standard, or up to full time with executive approval.

While many employees have indicated a preference for working remotely part time rather than full-time, we have recognized the increase in employees' desire to work remotely and with greater flexibility. We know that any future increase in remote work would contribute to positive environmental outcomes such as those envisioned in the CleanBC Roadmap.

Thank you again for taking the time to write. I'd encourage you to review the initial CleanBC plan, the CleanBC Roadmap to 2030, and the Climate Change Accountability Reports published annually since 2019 for more details on B.C.'s climate action, and I would be interested to hear your perspectives after you've reviewed them.

With best regards,

Kevin Jardine

Most employees working from home during the pandemic expressed a desire to continue flexible work on at least a part-time basis. The BC Public Service acknowledges this preference and is committed to a sustainable approach to flexibility work, balancing employee preferences, the responsibilities of the employer and our shared commitment to serving the public. Telework agreements allow remote working where operationally feasible for up to two days per week as standard, or up to full time with executive approval. For more information on the BC Public Service's commitment to flexible work, please see the flexible workplaces website on MyHR.

Yeah, pretty weird. I have no clue why I am receiving this. I was covering for Samantha so I shouldn't be part of her list of colleagues.

We'll leave it at this for now. Thanks for your help Josiah.

Hi Susan,

The CU has no control over who receives eApprovals notification emails. It's not clear to me why you would have received a notification for this particular item, other than that you may have been a colleague for someone related to it at the time it was moved. Either way, this notification shouldn't have anything to do with CPE specifically, as notification emails aren't related to a user's branch.

Sorry we're not able to be more help, but hopefully you should receive less of these emails over time.

Sincerely,

Josiah Snell (He/Him)
