Shell-LNG 730AM/LEE/CKNW Feb4/2016

Two of the twenty proposed LNG projects in B.C. could be in danger.

Royal Dutch Shell is postponing the final investment decision on it's LNG Canada proposal in Kitimat after a 44% slump in fourth-quarter earnings.

That, less than a month after Europe's largest oil company secured a permit to build the LNG export facility. CKNW has reached out to LNG Canada for comment.

And it appears the Petronas-led Pacific Northwest LNG project is being threatened.

Financial and advisory service AltaCorp Capital has told James Berkow with BNN that the Lelu Island-based project is "unlikely to proceed".
