A MESSAGE FROM PREMIER CHRISTY CLARK

As Premier of the Province of British Columbia, I am very pleased to welcome everyone to this wonderful celebration of 60 years of conservation leadership by the British Columbia Wildlife Federation. There will be a variety of special guests and presenters here in Nanaimo at the 60th Annual General Meeting and Convention, speaking to the many members, stakeholders and other delegates who have come here from across the province.

The BCWF has a long and proud history and its efforts have gone a long way in highlighting the importance of protecting, enhancing and promoting the responsible use of our environment. Their presentations to government have helped to put in place some very effective environmental and conservation policies about which British Columbians should feel very proud. I am also pleased to say that their educational programs have helped to raise awareness about the value of our fish, wildlife, parks and recreational resources, and that responsible decision making is key to protecting our environment for generations to come.

Welcome to Nanaimo and I wish you a very successful AGM and Convention, Celebrating 60 Years of Conservation Leadership!

HONOURABLE CHRISTY CLARK

Subject: Continuing the message of Conservation

Shane Mahoney was the keynote speaker at the annual Premier's BC Natural Resource Forum Dinner, Tuesday night, January 19, 2016 in Prince George. His message to the leaders of Industry, First Nations and the politicians was finding the balance between conservation and resource extraction.

Many wildlife populations in British Columbia are out of balance. Stakeholders are very concerned because they are witnessing high predator populations and low ungulate populations. It is important to take proactive action to mend these imbalances rather than allow them to continue and trigger the Species at Risk Act or other extreme regulatory or legislative measures.

Shane Mahoney, CEO of Conservation Visions Inc, is one of the world's leading experts in conservation and wildlife management. If you agree that finding the balance between wildlife conservation and resource extraction is the key then we recommend you watch this video.

Who is Shane Mahoney?

Shane Patrick Mahoney is the President and CEO of Conservation Visions Inc.. A Newfoundland native, he holds both an Honors and a Masters of Science degree in Zoology from Memorial University of Newfoundland. Mahoney has over 30 years experience working primarily as a scientist, wildlife manager, policy innovator and strategic advisor; but also as a filmmaker, writer, narrator, tv and radio personality, and lecturer – all within the scope of the greater conservation world, encompassing both the scientific and professional wildlife communities, as well as NGOs and the hunting and non-hunting public.

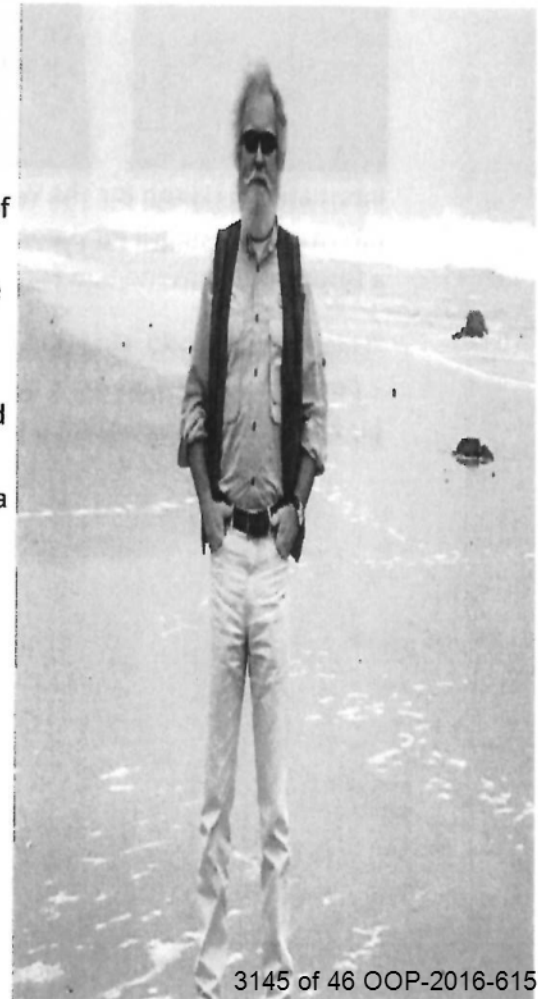

He was employed by the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador from 1979 through 2014, and served in a variety of leadership roles, ranging from Senior Field Researcher to Executive Director of Science/Wildlife and Protected Areas. Most recently, he held the position of Executive Director of Sustainable Development and Strategic Science, where he was also responsible for establishing and launching the Institute for Biodiversity, Ecosystem Science and Sustainability, which has, for the past 14 years, funded graduate student research at numerous universities in North America and Europe.

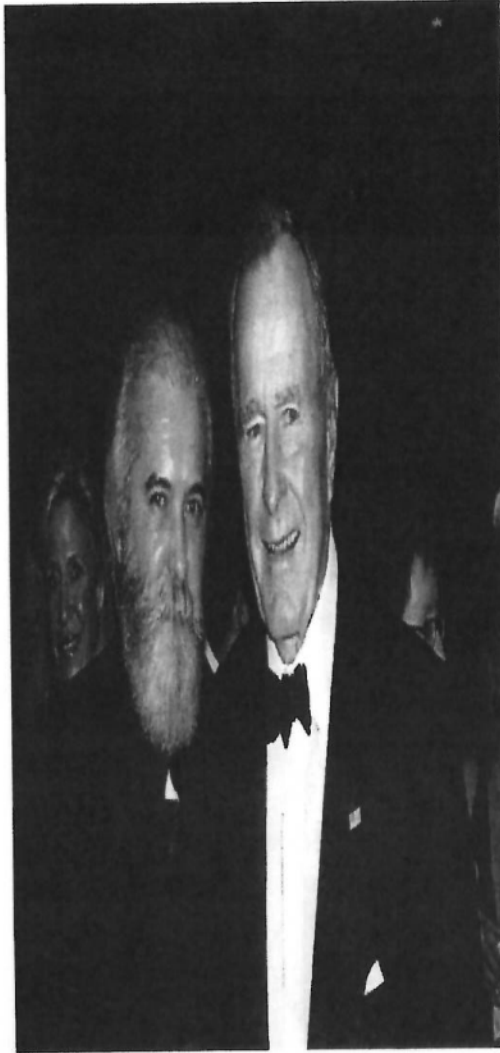

Mahoney's own extensive scientific research, through which he has taken lead roles in both fieldwork and lab work, has been published in over 50 papers, appearing in 18 peer-reviewed journals and 8 published book chapters.

A vocal proponent of sustainable use, and a recognized expert of the North American Model of wildlife conservation, Mahoney has garnered much recognition for his conservation work, receiving awards and accreditations within hunting and academic circles alike. He was awarded the Gold Medal in Wildlife

Science by the Caesar Kleberg Institute, was named International Conservationist of the Year by Safari Club International, was listed as one of North America's 25 Most Influential Conservationists by Outdoor Canada Magazine, and nominated for Person of the Year by Outdoor Life, to name a few accolades among many.

A strong believer in the benefits of communicating about conservation to the general public, Mahoney has written more than 100 popular articles, which have been featured in more than a dozen print magazines, and his work appears regularly in such well-read publications as Sports Afield, North American Hunter, and in the Swedish magazine Big Game. He has appeared as host or narrator for a variety of television and radio efforts, including the Sportsman's Channel's World of Sports Afield, Leupold's Big Game Profiles, and Boone and Crockett Country. He's collaborated with media giants such as the British Broadcasting Corporation and National Geographic to create and produce award-winning films. Mahoney has delivered keynote speeches or plenary addresses on more than 60 occasions; has led dozens of workshops, participated in endowed lectures at a host of conferences around the globe, and has accepted a total of 18 professional appointments.

In addition to his responsibilities to Conservation Visions Inc., Mahoney serves as Vice-Chair of the Sustainable Use and Livelihoods (SULi) Specialist Group for the United Nations' World Conservation Union (IUCN). He also serves as the
