Hi everyone,

I just came across something that I thought I'd share with you, in case you weren't already informed.

There is a "No Pipelines! Action Training for Climate Justice" workshop/ training event taking place in Vancouver on April 4, 5, and 6, 2014. This event is supported and will be attended by the Unis'tot'en (Frida Huson).

Weekend event highlights include (as identified on the website noted below):

- Workshops and trainings include: strategic planning: tools for resistance, blockades training, direct action 101 102, know your rights, false solutions: offsetting resistance (panel), anti-oppression, anti-capitalism: connecting struggles (panel), workers and direct action, decolonization: unsettling ourselves, unlearning transphobia, creating cultures of resistance, being allies in imperfect solidarity, facilitated discussion for queers and allies, know your enemy: security culture & counter surveillance, radical media, arizona direct action camp: report back, mapping resistance, anarchist solidarity, action planning, scouting, tripods and tree-sits, mega loads resistance with RT Portland.
- Presentations by grassroots community leaders; (Likely Unis'tot'en)
- Building a coalition to stop resource extraction;
- Planning collaborative mass direct actions and protests for 2014

Location: the weekend's events will take place at the Russian Hall, The Dogwood Centre and the Grandview Calvary Baptist Church in East Vancouver.

According to the event's Facebook page, 4300 people were invited, 658 responded that they will attend, and 255 responded that they will maybe attend.
