This is how I would start a throne speech if it was up to me.

Housing

Your government recognizes the challenges with housing affordability—especially in the urban areas of our province. We have already taken steps to cool the market by introducing the Foreign Buyers Tax and increasing the Property Transfer Tax for luxury homes.

Last year we invested $900 million into building new affordable housing across the province—which was the single largest housing investment in provincial history. These new units will begin coming on stream in the coming months and reduce some of the waitlists that exist for affordable housing in BC.

Today, your government is announcing new measures it intends to introduce to improve affordability and home supply.
