Does the op-ed always come from the Premier or is it shared around with other Ministers? The latter approach could be helpful for promoting specific announcements we're making (for example, next week HRC or ESL/ELL tuition elimination).

On a similar note - does NW still do the weekly Leaders' Address?

Hello,

This is Petrina D'Souza from DARPAN Magazine, a South Asian lifestyle magazine based in Surrey.

In our September/October issue, we would like to include an exclusive interview with Premier John Horgan and talk about his new role, future plans, and top BC issues.

We would need to do an interview via phone or email before August 15 and will need some hi-res images for the article.

We recently featured Green Party leader Andrew Weaver in our DARPAN's 10 column in the July/August issue.

Please direct me to the right person to take this request forward.

Kindly acknowledge this email.

Hi all,

"Human rights advocates" is good.

We can add "South Side" to Jim Deva plaza but it's all outside and not that big. It will be easy to find folks.

Please ensure Robin Perelle from Xtra West receives the advisory.

Media contact can stay with the Ministry.

Megan, I've added Marlene here as she's been in touch with Spencer's office.

They say they have a list of human rights stakeholders they can invite as well.

I don't think it's a bad thing if there is some cross over / cross posting between the AG's list and Spencer's office.

But I wanted to connect you both to ensure we all know where invites are coming from.

Hi Sage,

I've revised the speaking notes for COFI – attached.

I've put a new front-end on, and brought it back to people and communities. I've scaled back on some of the detail. My sense is that it may still be too granular, however I don't know the context so kept the back-end largely intact

I'd recommend someone with familiar with the finer points of messaging on this file review the copy before it goes over to the Premier.

Let me know if you'd like me to do anything else on this file.

I had occasion to speak with the premier this morning concerning the DC trip and he was very pleased with the support he had received and the meetings themselves.

With respect to an outline for his presentation, in speaking with Don Wright, let's keep it simple. I think what you have provided is good – although perhaps we could break it into chronological chunks.

i.e. In Ottawa I met with x and y...here's what we heard, and here's what I had to say.

In DC - met first with Canada's Ambassador - here's what he shared with me.

Met with USWU Leo Gerrard...(need some content here)

Subsequently met with Ambassador Lighthizer – (notes on that)

Met with Commerce Sec Wilbur Ross – here's what I learned and what we had to say.

Then ask them for advice and any questions

Subject: Advice on messaging to minister on LNG

From last week's petronas decision - could use slight tweaks

Key Messages – British Columbia:

- British Columbia's new government supports LNG development. We will ensure any LNG development guarantees jobs and training opportunities for British Columbians, gets a fair profit for BC for our resources, benefits and includes First Nations in a meaningful way, protects our air, land and water, and lives up to our climate-change commitments.
- Our government is committed to working with the LNG industry to ensure our fiscal policies address competitiveness issues and the changing market conditions, ensuring we are a globally competitive jurisdiction.
- over the last few years, the global downturn in the energy marketplace has created economic challenges for the LNG industry.
- The marketplace is challenging everywhere, not just in B.C.
- Despite Petronas' decision, we know British Columbia has long-term future in natural gas supply, and exporting is still possible.
- Many analysts project a continued rising demand for LNG which would support further development of 'greenfield' locations – like Pacific NorthWest LNG.
- British Columbia is well positioned to maintain a competitive natural gas sector. This is a province with some of the world's most prolific natural gas plays and an opportunity for growth.

Questions and Answers - British Columbia:

Q: Does this announcement by PETRONAS signal the LNG industry in British Columbia is dead?

It's time British Columbian's heard the facts about LNG – it's an opportunity to help economic growth, but it's not the only opportunity.

There are economic challenges in the energy marketplace right now, and that's been clear for the last few years. Today's news from PETRONAS reflects the economic reality of the marketplace world-wide.

Many analysts project a continued rising demand for LNG which would support further development of 'greenfield' locations – like Pacific NorthWest LNG.

British Columbia's new government will connect with industry proponents directly in the weeks ahead. These proponents know we support the LNG opportunity and we will discuss the status of their projects so we can get a clear picture of how sincere these proponents are about moving forward in British Columbia.

Q: PETRONAS has said the PNWLNG project is not economical, would this be the case with future projects?

To attract investment, BC recognizes that a positive investment climate, strong regulatory regime and a competitive fiscal framework will be of paramount importance in capturing our market share.

Our government is committed to working with the LNG industry to ensure our fiscal policies address competitiveness issues and the changing market conditions, ensuring we are a globally competitive jurisdiction.

Many analysts project a continued rising demand for LNG which would support further development of 'greenfield' locations – like Pacific NorthWest LNG.

Q: Does the recent change in government in BC have anything to do with PETRONAS's decision?

No. The company connected with us directly earlier today and told us about their decision. This was a decision they made after reviewing the economics of their proposal and the energy marketplace.

One of our key commitments was to create good-paying family-supporting jobs in every community across BC – and we will continue to work to do that.

Q: What about other companies? Have you heard if other companies are planning to walk away from their projects as well?

At this time we have not heard from other companies about their plans.

We have multiple LNG proposals still on the table in British Columbia, demonstrating a continued interest in our province's export potential. This includes LNG Canada, Kitimat LNG, Aurora LNG and WCC LNG. These are in addition to Fortis BC's expansion of the Tilbury facility and Woodfibre LNG's commitment to move forward with their project. We will continue to support the prospects of the industry as long as it meets our four conditions to ensure British Columbia benefits.

Q: Does your government support the industry or not?

Our government has never opposed LNG development in B.C. – we only have four conditions to ensure B.C. benefits. We will ensure any LNG development guarantees jobs and training opportunities for British Columbians, gets a fair profit for BC for our resources, benefits and includes First Nations in a meaningful way, protects our air, land and water, and lives up to our climate-change commitments.

Q: What are your government's conditions for the LNG industry?

There are four conditions:

- 1. LNG projects must offer jobs and training for British Columbians, especially jobs for local people.
- 2. The people of BC must get a fair return for our resources.
- 3. LNG projects must secure full partnerships with local First Nations.
- 4. LNG projects must complete a made-in-BC environmental assessment and respect our commitments to combating climate change.

Q: Had any infrastructure been put in place to support this plant?

PETRONAS and their partners had been reviewing every element of their proposal before making a final investment decision. There was no infrastructure built because a final investment decision was never finalized by the company and their partners.

Q: What about Progress Energy who is owned by PETRONAS? Does today's announcement signal the end of Progress Energy in British Columbia?

Progress Energy has been an active player in British Columbia's natural gas sector and that is expected to continue. <PETRONAS has told us directly they are seeking opportunities for Progress Energy in British Columbia's upstream sector and we know opportunities will open up as the marketplace improves and value-added production increases.>

Q: How many jobs could be lost?

Pacific NorthWest LNG had not started construction, so job losses at this time were minimal.

According to Pacific NorthWest LNG, the project could have created 4,500 new construction jobs and close to 350 permanent positions.

We are optimistic new job opportunities will be realized through Progress Energy's involvement British Columbia's upstream natural gas sector. One of our key commitments was to create good-paying family-supporting jobs in every community across BC — and we will continue to work to do that.

Q: What impact does today's development have on First Nations and those who signed benefits agreements linked to Pacific NorthWest LNG?

The agreements were contingent on Pacific NorthWest LNG being built and operating. Any up-front funds allocated to First Nations as part of signing an agreement will support future business opportunities.

Q: Did PETRONAS's decision have anything to do with the concerns around Lelu Island and the desire by some First Nations to relocate Pacific NorthWest LNG?

No, this was not an issue about the location. PETRONAS and their partners had been reviewing every element of their proposal before making a final investment decision and determined Pacific NorthWest LNG was uneconomical to move forward.

Q: Did NDP MLA opposition to the location of Pacific NorthWest LNG have any influence on the decision made by PETRONAS?

No, the company was very clear when they contacted us directly that this was a decision made because of economic factors. PETRONAS and their partners had been reviewing every element of their proposal before making a final investment decision and determined Pacific NorthWest LNG was uneconomical in today's global market to move forward.

Q: Does PETRONAS's decision have any impact on the Government of Canada and their outlook on LNG?

We have multiple LNG proposals still on the table in British Columbia, demonstrating a continued interest in our province's export potential. This includes LNG Canada, Kitimat LNG, Aurora LNG and WCC LNG. We don't believe today's announcement has changed the Government of Canada's perspective on British Columbia's natural gas industry.

With that said, it is best to contact the Government of Canada for their comment on today's events.

Q: Will today's development have any impact on federal-provincial relations?

No. In fact, the Prime Minister of Canada and the Premier of British Columbia met earlier today to discuss multiple topics.

ONLY IF NEEDED

The company suggested their plan was made as a result of the uncertainty created with a new government – how do you respond?

We have always been clear that we support LNG development as long as it benefits British Columbians and moved forward responsibly. That hasn't changed. It is unfortunate PETRONAS/Pacific NorthWest LNG acted on an assumption otherwise.

Heads-up on this one... CTV may try and grab the minister in the halls or at the event this afternoon. Sounds like from TI Corp that CTV has heard from someone who received a bill in error, as the license plate reader may have misread a plate.

This happens from time-to-time but is very rare and TI Corp customer service folks follow up on these types of concerns and will reverse charges if they were applied in error. TI corp is sending us their lines.

CTV is using the piece as a hook on tolling issues and the commitment to remove tolls.

Hello Jen,

I seem not to be on your distribution list for media releases. Can you tell me how I'd go about getting on it? Or perhaps you can put me there?

Please let me know and thank you.

I wonder if there should be an area for who is notified when requests are received – ie. Other offices, issues management when needed – or would that be covered by the Hub?

Let me know if you think this hits the mark or needs more work.

I'd like to run it by a couple of CDs as well to confirm it meets their expectations, but wanted to get your feedback first.

Hi,

I've finally had an opportunity to get acquainted with the Hub and it appears I don't have security permissions to access. Are you able to help me with this in Robyn's absence?

Thanks! Jen

Hi ladies, here are the links to the Hub per today's demo. If they don't work for you, let me know as it may only be Sage who has been added to the security groups and permissions so we won't be able to update that til tomorrow.

I will circulate an end of day Look Ahead though to you three and the executive team here tonight so you can have a look at that report. Thinking of just doing a 10 Day tonight but if you'd like one run for a longer range just let me know. I'll send along a copy of the current 30/60/90 and Planning report as well so you can have a closer look at those as well, as per demo.

Thanks, Robyn Croft

The Right Honourable Justin Trudeau, PC, MP

Prime Minister of Canada

House of Commons

Ottawa, Ontario

K1A 0A6

Dear Prime Minister:

I'd like to offer my sincere gratitude for your recent visit to the area affected by the wildfire crisis in British Columbia. Your support for the communities and emergency services battling the fires was greatly appreciated. It is in times like these that we Canadians show how we truly pull together and help one another.

As you saw on your recent visit to the City of Williams Lake, this wildfire season has been unprecedented both in the number of impacted communities and wildfires on the landscape. As of August 7, 2017, 904 wildfires have been reported in British Columbia, covering over 578,000 hectares (a larger area of land than the entire province of PEI). $235 million in suppression costs alone and thus far untallied millions in evacuation and disaster response costs have been incurred to date and, on average over the past three weeks, over 3,750 personnel have been engaged, including as many as close to 750 out-of-province personnel. At our peak capacity, over 4,700* personnel had been engaged (*on July 29), and close to 1,200 out of province resources had been utilized (on July 25). In comparison, the 10-year average for hectares affected by wildfire by August 7 is 91,176 hectares, with 1,095 wildfires reported.

These events coupled with the catastrophic wildfire in Fort McMurray last year, signal a serious increase in extreme wildfire behaviour and wildland—urban interface events. Canada is experiencing increases in both how frequently wildland fires occur and how intensely they burn, resulting in increased threats to life, property, and economic sustainability. This trend is expected to continue to increase as a result of climate change and the urban and industrial expansion into forested areas.

This is not just a forestry issue. It is an issue that has major impacts on the economy, First Nations, local communities, climate change, and public health and safety. All levels of government will need to work across many portfolios to develop and implement a strategy that equips us to face this challenge. On June 8, 2016, the Canadian Council of Forest Ministers reaffirmed its commitment to a vision for wildland fire management in Canada, which focuses on fostering resilient communities, empowering the public, developing healthy and productive forest ecosystems and incorporating modern business practices by releasing the Canadian Wildland Fire Strategy: A 10-Year Review and Renewed Call to Action (the Strategy). Successful implementation of the Strategy requires engagement and collaboration by the federal government and the governments of the provinces and territories.

As detailed in the Strategy, federal support is sought to:

- Establish a formal, sustainable structure for collaboration and coordinated landscape level fire management planning;
- Establish a national, dedicated research program;
- Establish a baseline methodology and principles for risk assessments and undertake provincial and territorial risk assessments;
- Reinvigorate FireSmart and undertake a national public education campaign; and,
- Develop and implement a comprehensive program to increase capacity, including personnel, training, systems, assessing and renewing critical assets, equipment, and new infrastructure.

Now is the time to act on this strategy and to make a commitment to be partners in moving us further beyond the cycle of supressing fires and recovering communities from season to season and into a nation-wide commitment to long-term prevention and mitigation of wildfire risks for communities.

We remain strongly committed to supporting implementation of the Strategy and look to the federal, provincial, and territorial governments for engagement and collaboration on this priority issue, particularly given the current wildfire situation in British Columbia.

Again, we must act swiftly and look to your leadership to champion a response.

Sincerely, John Horgan Premier

Hi Amber – as discussed, attached is the draft letter for John to send to the PM. It still needs to be formatted for the Premier's letterhead.

This originated with the cabinet task force struck to deal with the wildfires (Ministers Donaldson & Farnworth are co-chairs). They agreed last week that this letter should be sent by the Premier, so the FNR correspondence branch drafted it.

It's received sign-off from FNR (MDD has approved), but I wanted to be sure it was seen by folks in your office before sending.

And, if you're able to confirm direction for the signature, that would also be much appreciated.

Thanks,

Hi Jen – I was speaking with Amber about this last night, further to Romeo's email below.

"Welcome to the BC" messages aren't really the norm for what's been done here. For that reason & because this woman is so notable in the Iranian community, Amber thought we should quickly run things past you.

NOTE: This greeting needs to be finalized & sent out today.

At this point, we have NOT been in touch with Bowinn's office to confirm her attendance & discuss her presenting the message on behalf of the Premier. Nor do we really know if there's really an opportunity in the agenda for the presentation to take place... or exactly how that would happen. I'm going to see if I can get further details on that via Romeo.

KAYLA – can you pls forward the message that's been drafted?

Hi,

I'm told that Bowinn Ma will be in attendance. I'm also told that the message should be a welcome message also celebrating and reflecting on the contributions the actress has made to Iranian cinema since she is a big icon in the Iranian community. Let me know if you have further questions and I'll try my best to get the answers to them.

I've also not aware of any invite to this event – do you know if any MLAs are attending?

Thanks Veeno

Greetings from the B.C. Premier

On behalf of the B.C. New Democrat Government Caucus, I am pleased to send our warmest greetings to the management, staff and readers of the Sach Di Awaaz newspaper's 1000th edition.

For many years, Sach Di Awaaz has been a vital source of community to Vancouver's South Asian Community, providing an important news coverage. It has always been an excellent bridge between different communities, businesses and local/provincial politics.

The newspaper is a great ambassador for South Asian culture and has always aimed to be inclusive. In changing times, we recognize the unique work that local media does in connecting their communities. This work is crucial and important as we move towards a more just, equal and multicultural society.

Local media with specialized audiences have focuses and understanding that we all need to respect and honor.

We value the dedication and hard work of Sach Di Awaaz newspaper's editor and staff in enriching Canada's diverse society, and look forward to many more years of continued growth and prosperity.

Yours sincerely,

Hi Jen,

I would like to bounce off you the idea of pushing the grizzly announcement to Monday for two reasons:

- 1. There is a lack of clarity on the extent of the decision/announcement, and what happens (or ends) when.
- 2. There is considerable concern in the ministry about putting it out, and having the weekend for stakeholders to go nuts when they can't contact the ministry re questions/clarifications. That would not be good.

Thoughts?

We could do it after, not ideal though. Let me know if an hour does free up for him in the next few weeks before $.22

We have stuff set up with Marie, Carole and Bob.

I also think it would be likely more worthwhile, if you're looking at platform and campaign to talk with Bob Dewar, Carole James and Marie Della Mattia, as they were more involved than Geoff in these things. Let me know and I can help facilitate that.

It is all on background. I was hoping to speak to John in the next few weeks, I am worried that if we wait until in September he will get too busy. It can be in whatever setting he wants. I will send you the formal blurb we have been sending people. I need about an hour with Geoff. Premier will be hopefully a few hour or two hour sessions if he can afford the time.

My colleague Rob Shaw and I are writing a book about the last few years in B.C. politics, and we were hoping to schedule some time to chat with you.

The book will cover the HST, Christy Clark¹s leadership, the recent election, and the confidence vote that led to the new NDP government. So far, Clark, John Horgan, Andrew Weaver and numerous other politicians, staff and political officials have agreed to participate in interviews.

Your interview would be on background, which means we would not be quoting what you say by name. We are interested in speaking to you about the time period between xxxxx.

The book won1t come out until March, but the manuscript needs to be completed by October

That means we need to get the substantive interviews done in August and early September.

Hopefully, you could schedule aside some time for us in the coming days over the phone. We'd likely need 30-60 minutes, with the possibility of additional questions/clarifications in the future.

John Horgan and your New Democrat government Hard at work building a better B.C.

VICTORIA – Premier John Horgan and your New Democrat government have been working hard over these first few weeks, making a better B.C., following 16 years of a B.C. Liberal government that only cared about their wealthy friends and supporters.

Since July 18, when Premier Horgan and his cabinet were sworn in, the new B.C. government has been working to make life more affordable for British Columbians, create good jobs and opportunities across our great province, and restore and strengthen important services.

Here are just a few things Premier Horgan and your New Democrat government have already done within a few short weeks:

Supports for people affected by the wildfires

Immediately following the swearing-in of the new government, Premier John Horgan and the new B.C. government made addressing the wildfires and supporting people and businesses affected by them the most urgent priority. Within 24 hours, a task force was established that immediately went to the front lines to determine the scope of the problem, and determine what was needed. Our new government also pledged ongoing financial support for people forced to evacuate their communities until they are allowed to return home.

Restoring the Human Rights Commission

Under the BC Liberal government, B.C. was the only province without a Human Right Commission, and British Columbians deserve better. That's why John Horgan and the New Democrat government announced they will re-establish a human rights commission to fight inequality and discrimination in all its forms.

Eliminated tuition fees on Adult Basic Education and English Language Learning programs Premier John Horgan wants to make it easier for all British Columbians to get ahead, and removing roadblocks like these fees was a long-overdue and important step, and is a good investment in our economy that includes everyone.

Sending the Site C project for an independent review

The B.C. Liberal government refused to allow our independent energy watchdog to examine the Site C project. Instead, the B.C. Liberals just wanted to "get it past the point of no return" unscrutinised, and regardless of whether there was a massive financial impact on people across the province. As promised, the New Democrat government is finally sending the project to review, so the best informed decisions can be made in the interests of B.C. families.

Increased income assistance and disability payments by $100

The previous B.C. Liberal government were only looking out for their wealthy friends, while everyone else was left to fend for themselves.

The New Democrat government is there for people, and this immediate increase was an important part of our government's commitment to create a comprehensive poverty reduction plan.

A review of the Hullcar Aquifer to ensure drinking water is safe

As concerns mounted about the safety of drinking water, people in the Hullcar Valley were hitting brick walls with the previous B.C. Liberal government who seemed mostly unconcerned. Our new government has announced a new review to ensure agricultural practices are consistent with ensuring safe drinking water.

Purchasing the Waneta Dam through BC Hydro

Owning the Waneta Dam and generating station is expected to help keep rates affordable for British Columbians, and will support local jobs for many years.

There is much more to come, as Premier John Horgan and your New Democrat government get to work preparing for the fall session of the legislature which will be about making life better for British Columbians, and something the B.C. Liberal government took for granted and called "busy work."

Ok, here's what I found out: The Premier is going to be and in meetings for the next couple weeks. Can we set up some time on Aug 28/29 to start? An hour to start and go from there?

I also think it would be likely more worthwhile, if you're looking at platform and campaign to talk with Bob Dewar, Carole James and Marie Della Mattia, as they were more involved than Geoff in these things. Let me know and I can help facilitate that.

It is all on background. I was hoping to speak to John in the next few weeks, I am worried that if we wait until in September he will get too busy. It can be in whatever setting he wants. I will send you the formal blurb we have been sending people. I need about an hour with Geoff. Premier will be hopefully a few hour or two hour sessions if he can afford the time.

My colleague Rob Shaw and I are writing a book about the last few years in B.C. politics, and we were hoping to schedule some time to chat with you.

The book will cover the HST, Christy Clark's leadership, the recent election, and the confidence vote that led to the new NDP government. So far, Clark, John Horgan, Andrew Weaver and numerous other politicians, staff and political officials have agreed to participate in interviews.

Your interview would be on background, which means we would not be quoting what you say by name. We are interested in speaking to you about the time period between xxxxx.

The book won't come out until March, but the manuscript needs to be completed by October

That means we need to get the substantive interviews done in August and early September.

Hopefully, you could schedule aside some time for us in the coming days over the phone. We'd likely need 30-60 minutes, with the possibility of additional questions/clarifications in the future.

Good morning Jen,

Elizabeth McSheffrey here from the National Observer. I hope you're well.

I'm writing to ask if Premier Horgan may be available to comment on a news story I've written about CAPP's previous attempts (successful) to influence and weaken B.C.'s climate action policies - particularly last year, ahead of the release of the B.C. climate leadership plan.

I have the letter CAPP sent the B.C. government outlining their response to the B.C. CLT's recommendations. Some of their suggestions came to pass under the Clark government a few months later.

My question is: How will this government receive lobbying efforts from industry? Will it be receptive? Will it be firmer than the previous government?

Thank you for your time and consideration. I have to publish this story in an hour (but I had sent a media request more than a week ago asking for comment). Just wanted to give another opportunity to weigh in before I send it out.

Very best, Elizabeth

Hi Roseanne,

My name is Amir and I assist the Government caucus with the outreach to the Iranian community in BC. I got your contact from Matt Djonlic.

Last week I sent an invitation for the Premier to the following event: https://www.facebook.com/events/1881096742143006

TIRGAN, is the Persian summer festival. It has been celebrated by Iranians in Canada for years. However, this is the second time we have it in Coquitlam, BC.

I was informed that the Premier is unable to attend. While it is unfortunate that we cannot have him there, I was wondering if we can get a video message from the Premier. The festival already received one from Prime Minister (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=J7XN5YTlZJw). Just like before, I can help drafting a message. I'm hoping to get it ready by early to mid next week.

For more information regarding the event, please feel free to contact me at $^{\circ}$

Hello Sheena.

I am with BNN and work on the show Commodities. I have booked Mr. Emerson for our channel before to talk about softwood lumber.

Just checking in and wondering what Mr. Emerson's availability will be like this week and next week? We are tracking NAFTA and I know that the Foreign Affairs Minister has said that "I do think a softwood agreement is absolutely possible and achievable and I can see the outlines of that agreement already."

Just want to be prepared for any possible news that might emerge leading up to NAFTA talks

Look forward to hearing back Amanda

Subject: New questions for Horgan

Hey mate, scrap the softwood lumber questions.

Can you get the photog to ask Horgan this? (only if they are able of course)

Horgan Question:

It's been more than 6 months since the death of Baby Mac at an unlicensed East Van daycare. Mac's parents - Chris and Shelley - say they still officially do not know how their son died. It's not clear if this is because of a backlog in the coroners office, because they won't talk about it.

How is this acceptable? What will you do now to make sure they are notified as soon as possible?

And if we get a FOLO opportunity:

If Chris and Shelley had had access to unlicensed daycare complaints and inspection records, they would have found a paper trail with this particular care provider, and would have been better informed.

Ontario now has these records available online for parents to search - so why doesn't BC?

Thanks mate!

> Premier Horgan expands tuition-waiver for former youth in care
> NANAIMO - Young people leaving foster care now will have access to free tuition at all 25 of British Columbia's public post-secondary institutions, Premier John Horgan announced today.
> "We want youth in our care system to know we are looking out for them and that we believe in their potential.
That's why we are expanding access to post-secondary education for youth aging out of care so they can thrive, not just survive," said Premier Horgan.
> This program - previously only available at 11 public post-secondary institutions - provides tuition waivers to former kids in care, who are less likely to access to post-secondary education or training than young people who grew up with family supports.
> "We're in a position to make life better for young people who grew up without family stability," said Premier Horgan. "By bringing down barriers to opportunity, and making advanced education more accessible, we can clear the path to success for these young people."
> Students accessing the program must be:
> * from British Columbia;
> * aged between 19 to 26 years; and > * have been in care for a minimum of 24 months.
> "Education can mean the difference between a life in poverty or a life of prosperity. It's an important equalizer because when we lift people up, all our communities benefit," said Melanie Mark, Advanced Education, Skills and Training Minister. "Giving former youth in care the opportunity to access post-secondary education and skills training along with the tools needed to complete their studies will empower them to thrive."
> "Young people who have been in care should have the same level of support as other young adults do - that's why we are providing a stronger foundation for them to achieve their goals through the tuition waiver program," said their children after they reach 19. Youth in care need to know that we are looking out for them, too. That is why we are committed to further enhancing supports so we can be sure we're helping all youth who age out, not just a few."

> The expanded tuition waiver program is the first of a number of improved supports government is developing for young people who have aged out of care.

Hey Jen, thanks for getting back to me. I've CC'd Sheena on this (thanks for the new email) so hopefully between the three of us we can get the Premier back in the studio (I have a bubble hockey score to settle).

Thanks again!

Hey Scott!

Also, Sheena is now reachable at she's still John's press secretary - just has a new email!

Hey Jen, I've been emailing back and forth with Sheena McConnell the past few months to get Premier Horgan back on our show and we were aiming for the last couple of weeks of August (any Monday to Friday at 9am in our studio) but I just emailed Sheena and got a bounceback that she's no longer doing what she was doing. Hope she is OK. Are you able to help us out with our John Horgan interview or can you point me in the right direction of who I should contact?

Let me know what you know.

Tiffany,

Below is the statement from MDE that we can use if there are media requests for him today (on the OIC). This has his approval.

Five weeks ago British Columbians found out that the last government had left behind deep and profound financial problems at ICBC. The Premier has directed me to address these problems urgently. The financial situation at ICBC is so serious that a report by Ernst and Young commissioned by the previous Minister recommended a basic rate increase of 30% for 2018 alone. I am taking steps to ensure those dramatic rate increases will not happen, and that ICBC becomes financially stable again. I will bring forward our plan, along with any proposed rate increase, before the Sept. 15 rate hearing start date.

Hi all,

The original request went to the Premiers office, which then routed it through to us here in education. We made ourselves available, but were told that they didn't want to talk to us... only the Premier.

After about five days, the reporter then came back to us asking for comment after they were told the premier would not be available. This was on their deadline day. MRF was unavailable due to caucus and Cabinet commitments, and any moment in between was already committed to media.

We provided the following bullet comment to the Reporter:

- There has been an increase in the number of portables in BC schools this fall as we increase class spaces to comply with the Memorandum of Agreement with the BCTF.
- We are committed to making sure that the use of portables to address growth pressures is not a long-term solution.
- We want to see the number of portables reduced as quickly as possible across the province.
- We are planning to make higher investments in school capital over the life of this government.
- It's important that with enrollment in Surrey growing by about 1,000 new kids every year that we get ahead of the curve and then start to reduce portables within a couple of years' time. We are making this a serious priority

Hello to you both,

I would like to find time to discuss having a town hall in the chamber in the legislature. The first big decision is whether we do this on the weekend between Throne and Budget, as was the original idea, or not.

I think we still could, but we would need to move on it soon. I will be away for the first half to twothirds of Friday to attend the Premier's announcement in Nanaimo. Any chance you have time to discuss this afternoon or tomorrow at some point?

I could come to you (I'm back over at GCPE right now)

Let me know, Thanks Rick

Protocol & stat guests are 16 in total? Leaving 6 seats for PO?

Or is our 15 on top of the 194? (Does anyone remember where the 15 number came from?)

Additionally, I was told no one except ex-MLAs could be on the floor. Should we have separate counts for floor and galleries?

I am definitely in favour of an earlier meeting.

Subject: Throne Speech Questions`

I'm basically resurrecting the questions I aimed at Amber earlier. At her request I am sending her a list of notable British Columbians who have passed away since the House last sat – she will provide that information to Cara McGregor for possible inclusion in the Throne Speech.

Here are the questions for consideration:

- Will the Premier's office be recommending an individual for the Prayer in the afternoon?
- Will the Premier's office be recommending an individual for the Prayer in the afternoon?

I would suggest that we can do this, but don't know

• Is there the intent to have a sign language interpreter on the Floor? (We do have closed captioning and the interpreter position takes away 2 guest seats on the Floor).

I have already told her that we want to continue to provide this – let me know if that is incorrect.

- Will the Premier's office provide a list of guests for individual invites – separate from MLA guests?
 I expect we will, between the validators we bring in and the others
- I expect we will, between the validators we bring in and the others we wish to invite
- Do you have an indication of how many guests might be on the Premier's guest list?

My understanding is that it is 15 we can invite.

- MLAs historically have had the ability to invite 2 guests ergo possible 172 names. Only 194 seats in galleries and on floor, hence need to determine number of Premier special guests They want to send out the note to all MLA's about their each having two invites. Any issue with that happening now?
- May need to limit MLA guest entitlement to accommodate special guests but need direction on that score
- Protocol want to invite 8 guests (consular corps, judges, RCMP Municipal etc) Statutory Officers are usually invited as well and that is another 8. If there was a Speaker I would get direction from there But

I'm guessing that the instruction for guests that would normally come from the Premier's office in the absence of a Speaker

A logistics meeting with Protocol & others working on the day's events has been scheduled for September 5 at 10:30. Hoping you have been advised of that. I think it might be better for an earlier meeting given that this is the Government's first Throne Speech but I will take your advice on that score.

There was a draft roll-out for the morning and afternoon events that was circulated by protocol this afternoon. If you do not have this please let me know and I will forward it to you.

Indigenous Relations & Reconciliation

Subject: Clarification: Indigenous vs Aboriginal

Good afternoon,

Just a short note to clarify when to use Indigenous peoples, Aboriginal peoples and First Nations given the ministry name change and government's commitment to adopt and implement the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP).

Indigenous vs. Aboriginal

Indigenous peoples should be used when referring to all three groups - First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples. It will replace 'Aboriginal' in most instances.

First Nations should be used when there are no Métis or Inuit people affected.

Aboriginal should continue to be used when referring to Aboriginal rights and title, or in the context of Aboriginal rights enshrined in the Constitution of Canada.

Some examples:

Indigenous peoples are overrepresented in the justice system.

- Correct, includes First Nations, Métis and Inuit, but does not reference a constitutional right.

The Ministry of Forests, Lands, Natural Resource Operations and Rural Development recognizes the rights of Aboriginal peoples to hunt for food, social and ceremonial purposes.

- Correct, includes all three groups and references a constitutional right.

The First Nations Health Authority serves Indigenous peoples.

- Incorrect, because the FNHA does not have a mandate to serve Métis or Inuit.

Indigenous rights are an important part of Canada's constitutional framework.

Incorrect, as it is reference to the constitutional language. Should use term the 'Aboriginal'.

If your ministry has a program, service or division which currently includes the word 'Aboriginal' in the title, it is best that the program consult with any Indigenous stakeholders prior to proceeding with rebranding. It is important that government respects how Indigenous peoples self-identify.

Traditional territories

Also, speeches by provincial elected officials should acknowledge the traditional territory of the local First Nations.

Often in B.C., there may be overlapping territories. This can occur in both rural and urban areas. It's best to check with MIRR GCPE to be certain. Please email Cale Cowan and cc Sharon Pocock and Leanne Ritchie when requesting a traditional territory.

In some cases, the answer is not simple and the MIRR team will need to confirm with program staff so as much lead time is possible is appreciated. It's also helpful to know if there are Indigenous people attending the event which can change the acknowledgement.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Cheers, Chris

I have attached some examples of past messages from former premier Christy Clark so you can get a better example of what we've published in the past. Basically they are just outlooks on what the government is doing in terms of oil and gas development. Since Premier Horgan is new, we think this would be a wonderful opportunity.

The deadline is on August 25 as we head to layout on the 29th. Let me know if you have any other questions, as well as if the premier is interested in this opportunity.

Subject: Darpan magazine questions

Does PJH want to see stuff like this?

You created a gender-balanced BC Cabinet. Did the inspiration come from Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's cabinet? How has this decision encouraged gender equality in the country?

I've always believed that BC needs a government that not only works for everyone, but also reflects the values and diversity of our province. And for the first time in history, we now have an equal number of women and men in cabinet. Equity is at the core of my values, and having a gender balanced cabinet is just a first step in helping encourage gender equity in BC and Canada. Your BC government will also be making important changes that help women, including raising the minimum wage, reducing poverty and child poverty and bringing in affordable childcare.

How was your recent meeting with PM Trudeau? What were the crucial BC issues discussed? What kind of support has the Prime Minister promised for these issues?

The Prime Minister and I have had a few opportunities to meet in the past weeks and we've developed a positive and productive relationship. We've talked about some of the urgent issues facing people in BC – from childcare to affordable housing to public infrastructure to the opioid crisis. The federal government very quickly stepped up to help with the wildfire crisis in BC. I even joined the Prime Minister a tour of some of the hardest hit areas. We've also spoken about the softwood lumber dispute and I commended the federal government on their efforts to date. BC is ready to do our part to fight for Canadian interests and I made it clear to the Prime Minister that I will fight for the thousands of British Columbians whose jobs depend on softwood and on trade.

The B.C. government announced the increase of the minimum wage from $10.85 to $11.35 per hour in September and to $15 by 2021. There are concerns that small businesses will be impacted by the wage hike. What obstacles do you see yourself facing to meet the four-year deadline?

British Columbia's lowest-paid workers need a raise and moving over time to a $15 minimum wage is long overdue in making life more affordable for British Columbians. The action we're taking will make life better for working parents, seniors, new Canadians, student and more — these are people struggling to get by. We've listened to business owners, who have told us gradual, predictable increases are the way to go to minimize the impact on their businesses. And they recognize that the move to a $15 minimum wage is good for retention for their businesses, and good for the B.C. economy. I know that there will still be concerns out there in the business community, which is why we will be bringing in a Fair Wages Commission to get BC to $15 along a planned, responsible path.

Do you have any specific plans to reduce unemployment or create more jobs?

For 16 years, we had a BC Liberal government that wasn't working for people. British Columbians were working harder but falling behind while costs went up and wages were stagnant. But because the wealthiest British Columbians were doing just fine, the BC Liberals said that we had a strong economy. That's not what I believe. I believe a strong economy is when everyone is doing better. Where life gets a little easier each month, not harder. And I'm going to work hard to make sure our economy works for everyone.

We'll follow through on our plans to create 96,000 construction jobs while building hospitals, housing, schools, roads and public transit. We're going to work to build a sustainable economy and protect our environment while creating jobs in the tech, energy, manufacturing and tourism sectors. We're going to help small businesses succeed and grow by reducing the small business tax rate and creating a small business task force. And we're going to fight to bring back and protect the 30,000 good, family-supporting jobs in the forestry industry lost under the BC Liberals.

NDP and Green Party are against the expansion of the Kinder Morgan Trans Mountain pipeline, yet Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has declared his support to the project. How will you be maintaining your stand against the federal government?

A seven-fold increase in heavy oil tankers in the Vancouver harbour is not in B.C.'s best interests for our economy, our environment, or thousands of existing BC jobs. And we will use all available tools to protect our coastal waters and our province's future. With the federal government's approval of the project, we know the path forward will be challenging but we're committed to stepping up and fighting for BC's interests. We made a commitment to use every tool available to defend BC's coast in the face of this threat, and that's what we're doing.

Affordable housing is still a prominent issue, especially in Vancouver and surrounding regions. What measures will the BC government implement to curb this issue?

Everyone knows BC is a great place to live, work and raise a family, but so many people are struggling with housing costs that were ignored for so long they became a crisis under the BC Liberals. There are some great ideas out there about how to fix this, but there has been a missing piece at the provincial level. I've tasked the new minister of housing to take that leadership step and follow through on our promises to make housing more affordable for people. Your new government will build 114,000 units of affordable market rental, non-profit, co-op, supported social housing and owner-purchase housing. We'll amend the Residential Tenancy Act to provide stronger protections for renters, and provide additional resources to the Residential Tenancy Branch. We're going to give renters a break with an annual renter's rebate of $400 dollars. We're going to address speculation, tax fraud and money laundering in the housing market. And we will develop a homelessness action plan to reduce the homeless population through permanent housing and services.

The NDP campaigned on a promise to eliminate health-care premiums. What will be your next step towards this goal? How do you plan to replace that money?

In 2015, the BC Liberals doubled MSP fees for regular families, while giving tax breaks to the wealthiest. We promised to eliminate MSP fees and make sure low and middle income families come out ahead. We'll go ahead with the 2017 budget's 50 per cent reduction and completely eliminate MSP fees within four years, saving families as much as $1,800 a year. A non-partisan MSP Elimination task force will advise us on how to protect healthcare funding while phasing out this unfair flat tax.

How do you plan on dealing with the differences that arise between the NDP and Green Party over the four-year period?

People in British Columbia voted for a change in government and we and the BC Green Party wanted to make sure that happened. We signed the Confidence and Supply Agreement, which gives BC voters the stable and secure government they want, and allows both of our parties to focus on the things we promised in our campaign - making life more affordable for all British Columbians, improving the services we all count on, making sure the economy works for everybody, and fixing our broken electoral system. We are not always going to agree on everything. But we have an open dialogue that includes consultation and a firm agreement so our government can get to work on the issues that matter to people.

Which issue do you see the Greens and NDP disagreeing upon during the partnership?

We've found that we have more in common than that which divides us when it comes right down to it. We may disagree on certain things, but we have a respectful relationship and an open dialogue and are both committed to a government that works for people.

What is the most challenging task for you at the moment?

The wildfires raging in BC's interior have been devastating this summer. I made it my first priority as premier to take action to help the people who have had to leave their homes and to support the incredible emergency responders. It's been an uphill battle for everyone involved. I've been to the interior three times meeting with the people and communities affected. Through all of this challenging time, what I've learned from British Columbians is this: When people are in trouble, communities come forward to help. We're grateful to everyone who is donating to the Red Cross and opening their homes to their neighbours.

The crisis is still going on and we will do what we can to help evacuees and small businesses affected, and then look ahead to how we can help communities rebuild. When the crisis passes, it's more important than ever to help people and communities recover.

What changes do you believe will have the biggest impact on the future of the province?

After 16 years of BC Liberals working for their friends at the top, many British Columbians are struggling to keep up. We are going to work to make life more affordable for people here again. By eliminating unfair tolls and fees, by bringing in affordable childcare, by addressing the cost of housing – we're going to make sure people have more money in their pockets and more opportunities in front of them. I think this is going to make a huge difference for families in BC.

What is your message to the residents of BC? What can they expect from the BC government in the coming years?

This is your government. The BC Liberals only cared about their wealthy friends and you paid the price. it's time you got a break. We are ready to work for everyone in BC. We are going to take real action to make your life more affordable. We're going to work hard to improve the services you count on. We'll deliver quality health care where you need it, when you need it. And we'll fix our education system, investing in student success from kindergarten to graduate school. And finally, we're going to build a sustainable economy, with good jobs, that works for everyone.

Hey guys!

I've been chatting with bhinder about doing a ten minute one on one before the session starts. Zussman will be wanting one as well (this could be the Facebook live).

Can you guys look to see what day would be good for these? Bhinder is hoping for a day we won't have a big announcement, so that her story doesn't get bumped.

If you figure out a day, jen can you let bhinder know?

Good Afternoon Jen....

(and aren't YOU a psychic wonder....!!!!) Yes, had been offering the opinion that since the Premier was finishing his tour here,... it was unfortunate he wasn't overnighting, would have loved to have welcomed him to the studio. I'll take a morning call in a heart beat.

You clearly know where the audience is... between 7:30A and 8:00A. If we can put it all together, I will clear my 7:50A to 8:00A for Premier Horgan. As per, our studio line is 250.862-2525,... my producer is Daniel O'Hara, who will answer. If the Premier could call at approx. 7:48A... t'would be a wonderful thing.

Clearly, the subject matter is already defined, ... but if we can try to save a little time towards the end, would like to go to protection of BC farmland, from foreign speculators And, if there's anything left of our limited time, ... as you're aware, the speculation begins as to the seeming division between the Premier and Green Party Leader Andrew Weaver, who at every turn seems to be needing to be offering critique and opposition to a number of government initiatives.

In advance... hope this can come together,... and I appreciate the assist. Best....

Hello,

I've put together a draft proposal for the FNLG joint press conference (see below). Let me know what you think.

Also, what do you think of the idea of having two podiums, side by side? One for the FNLC, and one for PJH and Minister Fraser.

This has not gone to Ministry staff, I've only run it by Rick and Stephanie on this end.

Let me know what you think. I can have Ministry staff propose it to FNLC comms staff if you agree with the approach.

Thank you,

Danielle

8:33 am: Welcome by PJH & Grand Chief Edward John

8:35 am: Premier John Horgan (5 Mins)

8:40am: Grand Chief Edward John - FNS (5 Mins)

How are you?

Please find below the questions for Premier Horgan for the interview on August 28. How much time do I have for the interview?

Also, please send some images we can use with the interview - solo images, Premier interacting with people, Premier giving a speech etc.

QUESTIONS:

You created a gender-balanced BC Cabinet. Did the inspiration come from Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's cabinet? How has this decision encouraged gender equality in the country?

How was your recent meeting with PM Trudeau? What were the crucial BC issues discussed? What kind of support has the Prime Minister promised for these issues?

The B.C. government announced the increase of the minimum wage from $10.85 to $11.35 per hour in September and to $15 by 2021. There are concerns that small businesses will be impacted by the wage hike. What obstacles do you see yourself facing to meet the four-year deadline?

Do you have any specific plans to reduce unemployment or create more jobs?

NDP and Green Party are against the expansion of the Kinder Morgan Trans Mountain pipeline, yet Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has declared his support to the project. How will you be maintaining your stand against the federal government?

Affordable housing is still a prominent issue, especially in Vancouver and surrounding regions. What measures will the BC government implement to curb this issue?

The NDP campaigned on a promise to eliminate health-care premiums. What will be your next step towards this goal? How do you plan to replace that money?

How do you plan on dealing with the differences that arise between the NDP and Green Party over the four-year period?

Which issue do you see the Greens and NDP disagreeing upon during the partnership?

What is the most challenging task for you at the moment?

What changes do you believe will have the biggest impact on the future of the province?

What is your message to the residents of BC? What can they expect from the BC government in the coming years?

Kindly acknowledge this email.

Mr Horgan,

We've met in Chilliwack a couple of times at Decades Coffee House. Just a couple of quick questions:

1. Do you have any comment regarding a rent freeze?

Most renters are being being squeezed by unscrupulous building owners theyy have free reigns on rental fees which outpace the economy especially when the econmy is fine or doing better than the previous year. Renters, especially low-income renters, are hit with increases of 2.3% annually, which means that on average it's a $20/mo. annual increase. So, after 5 years, long-term renters, disabled and fixed income people are paying $100 more for the same thing. This seems to outpace the actual economy. As an example, BC Hydro rates are very similar year to year. Are the low-oncome benefit increases just fiat money and more can be printed up without hurting the economy?

2. Inernet Access

When it comes to accessing the internet, companes are charging around $100/mo. when many feel the fees should be the same, or similar to the cost of telephone charges at around $10 or $15/mo. They indicate at $100.mo. is not fair especially when more and more people are using mobile phones and companies are using equipment already in place for telephones. They are wondering if it's possible to remove useage caps and have full access insead of diifferent levels of usage without having to pay more for full access with no caps and should be on a flat rate basis and to force internet companies to apply lower fees based onequipment already in place?

Do you have any comment regarding these two items?

Thanks kindly.

You created a gender-balanced BC Cabinet. Did the inspiration come from Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's cabinet? How has this decision encouraged gender equality in the country?

How was your recent meeting with PM Trudeau? What were the crucial BC issues discussed? What kind of support has the Prime Minister promised for these issues?

The B.C. government announced the increase of the minimum wage from $10.85 to $11.35 per hour in September and to $15 by 2021. There are concerns that small businesses will be impacted by the wage hike. What obstacles do you see yourself facing to meet the four-year deadline?

Do you have any specific plans to reduce unemployment or create more jobs?

NDP and Green Party are against the expansion of the Kinder Morgan Trans Mountain pipeline, yet Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has declared his support to the project. How will you be maintaining your stand against the federal government? Affordable housing is still a prominent issue, especially in Vancouver and surrounding regions. What measures will the BC government implement to curb this issue?

The NDP campaigned on a promise to eliminate health-care premiums. What will be your next step towards this goal? How do you plan to replace that money?

How do you plan on dealing with the differences that arise between the NDP and Green Party over the four-year period?

Which issue do you see the Greens and NDP disagreeing upon during the partnership?

What is the most challenging task for you at the moment?

What changes do you believe will have the biggest impact on the future of the province?

What is your message to the residents of BC? What can they expect from the BC government in the coming years?

Kindly acknowledge this email.

Petrina

Hello Jen,

Our deadline for printing the magazine is September 1. It might be too tight but we can give it a shot. Please let me know of the Premier's availability in the last week of August for the interview.

Regards,

Petrina

Hello,

This is Petrina D'Souza from DARPAN Magazine, a South Asian lifestyle magazine based in Surrey.

In our September/October issue, we would like to include an exclusive interview with Premier John Horgan and talk about his new role, future plans, and top BC issues.

We would need to do an interview via phone or email before August 15 and will need some hi-res images for the article.

We recently featured Green Party leader Andrew Weaver in our DARPAN's 10 column in the July/August issue.

Please direct me to the right person to take this request forward.

Kindly acknowledge this email.

Regards,

Petrina D'Souza
