Hi Robert,

If you want to bring a copy to leave behind for me, I can distribute them to cabinet members after the meeting. We want to minimize flooding the room with oceans of paper, as I find that it quite often distracts the audience from paying attention to speakers

Paper materials for handout. Should we bring them? Have them delivered? Forget the idea entirely?

Hi All,

Further to my previous notes, we will be asking you to undertake an <sup>3</sup>Oath of Confidentiality<sup>2</sup> prior to the start of the meeting. Please find attached the copy of the Oath. I know it looks highly legal, but it is important to protecting the integrity of Cabinet discussions. You will note, however, that clause 2 a) makes it clear that you are free to share your individual advice as you see fit.

Elizabeth MacMillan, Deputy Secretary to Cabinet will have the forms ready for you to sign on Thursday.

In the meantime, despite intense media and other parties<sup>1</sup> interest in the questions we have suggested for the focus of your presentations, we would appreciate you keeping these in confidence.

Thank you very much.

Robert,

Had a good laugh about your untimely death. Of course Mark Twain came to mind.

You will have just received my previous note about AV and materials. I would prefer you didn't pass out written materials at the meeting, but if you would like to leave some behind, please bring them and we will distribute them afterwards. If you do want to leave written materials behind, to protect you and Cabinet, could you put <sup>3</sup>Confidential Advice to Cabinet<sup>2</sup> on any materials?

With respect to expenses, probably easiest to just have your staff contact me, and I will get my staff to handle them

Thanks.

Don:

Thank you for the invitation. I am enthusiastically looking forward to attending.

Pardon me for asking about logistics:

1. Will there be AV support?

2. May I distribute written materials?

Per confidentiality, I understand and agree to your recommendations. I dodged the reporters this week concerning your invitation in order to avoid corroborating the rumors. Please be assured that I will not quote any materials or comments received during Thursday's meeting.

And, as a decedent of a long line of canny Scots, who should my staff contact on the submission of travel expenses?

Hi Karen,

I apologize for how this has been portrayed. We want this panel to be viewed as an "experts panel" as opposed to a "stakeholder panel". We have chosen 6 individuals that we think have valuable expertise, albeit from different perspectives. So, we are not looking for a "position" but for advice.

In terms of what you can tell the people that are contacting you, my advice would be to put their perspective into writing and send it to Minister Mungall.

I would emphasize, however, that they should focus on "new" information. There won't be a lot of value add in repeating arguments that are already in the record and well known.

Hope that helps.

Feel free to give me a call if you wish to discuss further.

Hi All,

Thanks again to each of you for agreeing to participate in our Cabinet meeting next week.

Thursday, November 30 from 3-6 pm.

The format for the meeting will be as follows:

1. Each of you will speak in turn at the beginning of the meeting for 10-15 minutes to give your perspective and advice on the decision before Cabinet. I will draw names out of a hat so that people don't read anything into the order in which each of you speak.
2. After the last of you speak we will give each of you 5 minutes to comment what the others have said.
3. After that, we will let Ministers ask you questions.

To focus the discussion, I will send you a limited number of questions which you may want to contemplate in preparing your remarks.

Needless to say, this is a big, difficult decision that the Cabinet is wrestling with, and 3 hours will pass pretty quickly. So I would appreciate it if you could focus your remarks to your most essential points and stay within your allocated time.

Cabinet confidentiality is a critical feature of government decision making in the Westminster system of government, so I hope you will understand that we will be asking you to make an undertaking to protect this. To be clear, we are NOT saying you cannot share with others what your advice to Cabinet is - you are free to do that or not as you see fit. What we will, however, ask you to respect is the need not to share with others what other participants advise, and the questions and discussions that Ministers make.

Thank you once again for agreeing to help the Cabinet wrestle with this weighty decision.

Best wishes,

Don Wright

One of the items that Geoff raised with me earlier today is to ask for a briefing note on the Premier's responsibilities in the event of an emergency (earthquake, etc). It would be helpful to know the key contacts and what would be expected of him in these events. Further, if he is inaccessible in the event of an emergency, what is the best next practice?

I was planning on asking the Ministry for the 101, but thought it may be best to reach out to you first. Let me know if this is something I should send to you or reach out to the political staff within the MO myself.

Subject: Site C Update

Further to our discussion yesterday afternoon, I spoke with BC Hydro last evening and the BCUC Chair this morning.

On Tuesday BC Hydro staff called BCUC staff to flag the computational errors they had identified related to discount rates and transmission losses (Items 1A, B, C and 2C from the BC Hydro Overview of Initial Findings) plus a typo in table 43. Commission staff asked for further details to be e-mailed, which has not yet occurred.

The Chair says that the BCUC will issue a public amendment with respect to any errors. His initial thoughts, pending review of the detailed material from BC Hydro, is that changes in the single digits hundreds of millions are unlikely to change the Commission's conclusions, given the ranges in costs associated with some of the assumptions (he cited termination costs which range from $700M to over $2B).

I noted we were preparing a letter pulling together comments from EMPR, Finance and BCH seeking clarification on a number of the Commission's assumptions. The Commission would make that letter public along with their response.

Given the above, I recommend that we give BC Hydro the go-ahead to send their detailed information on the modelling errors, and that our letter just focus on the assumption issues. I can work with David to get the next draft circulated later today.

Good morning,

Please find attached the final package, which includes a revised <sup>3</sup>Broughton Process<sup>2</sup> deck. The deck was revised to consolidate the "Fish Health Science" perspectives (slides 5-7 in the previous deck) to one slide (slide 5 in the new deck). The thought behind this revision was that the deck was lengthy, these slides were very detailed and the key points could be covered verbally during the briefing.

Thanks,
Wes

Good evening:

Here's a quick summary from staff wrt today's call. Overall, no surprises and Graham Knox participated.

Which Ministry experts did you identify for the purposes of gathering input on the draft EAO Conditions?

Graham Knox, who was at the time Director of Emergency Management, was the expert most relied upon as our input was mainly in relation to spill response related questions. Also, we informed Craig that Fazil Mihlar was the Executive lead at the time and the lawyer may follow up directly with Fazil.

Was any substantive report/opinion with respect to spill response received by you or that you were aware of that was not included within or as part of the ENV response to the EAO?

No. But we did make Craig aware of the Nuka Research and Planning Group reports we had commissioned in relation to regime comparisons and world leading practices (Craig was not aware of these reports). Craig was made aware that these reports were released publicly.

If so, from which parties/experts please provide a copy if you have it.

Although the reports were released publicly, we did forward the link to the Craig.

I hope you will forgive me for sending this to all of you as one note. I wanted to thank you very much for allowing me to share a very special evening with you last Friday. I found it very moving, but I also found that it buoyed my optimism about moving our province and our country forward.

I can only guess at the sacrifices you and your families have had to make to do what you have done. And I know that this all would have taken a lot of courage on many occasions over the years.

I look forward to following each of your careers over the future years as you make your contribution to British Columbia and beyond.

With sincere appreciation,
