Connecting again on this to see if there is any chance for a phone call with Andrew before the 20th of Jan. I can make any of these times work:

Jan 15 – 12pm

Jan 16 – 12, 2:30pm, 3:45pm,

Jan 17 – 4pm, 4:30pm, 7pm

Jan 19 – let me know if there is a good time for Andrew this day and I'll make something work.

Dear Mr. Calitz

Please find attached a letter pertaining to the proposed LNG Canada project that I'm sending to you on behalf of the BC Green Caucus.

Prior to drafting this letter our caucus was briefed by the BC Government on their fiscal framework for a prospective LNG industry in British Columbia. As you will know, British Columbia presently has a minority government with the BC Green Party holding the balance of power. In order to give you and your industry the maximum level of certainty you require to make informed decisions, we felt it was prudent for you to receive detailed information from our caucus' perspective.

Please let me know if you would like to discuss anything further.

Sincerely,

Andrew Weaver

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

of BRITISH COLUMBIA

Mr. Andy Calitz
CEO, LNG Canada

March 16, 2018

Dear Mr. Calitz,

We are writing regarding your ongoing discussions with the Government of British Columbia on your proposed project, LNG Canada in Kitimat, B.C.

As you know, British Columbia currently has a minority government, where the votes of our three caucus members provide confidence in Premier Horgan's NDP government. The basis of our confidence is the Confidence and Supply Agreement ("CASA") signed May 30, 2017 which binds our two caucuses to act on the principle of "good faith and no surprises." As such, the government must consult with our caucus on all matters, and it must uphold the agreed-upon policies and initiatives enshrined in it. Our caucus has been consulted on the letter sent from the government to LNG Canada. We are writing to let you know our position on the government's proposal in order to provide you with the fullest possible scope of information.

First, extending the carbon tax to fugitive emissions is a core component of CASA. We have assurances from the government that this extension is forthcoming pending a determination of the necessary technologies and regulations to measure them. To be clear, it is our expectation that the carbon tax on fugitive emissions will be extended to all sources of these emission. This will have impacts on a number of industries and future proposed projects, including yours.

Second, CASA requires government to implement a climate action strategy to meet B.C.'s legislated emissions reduction targets. Therefore, all future development must fit within our province's commitment to the Pan-Canadian Climate framework to meet our emissions reduction targets, as well as soon to be legislated targets for British Columbia specifically. As such, it is incumbent upon government to assess your project through this lens and to specifically identify how it will accomplish the emission reductions required to meet our targets of not less than 40% below 2007 levels by 2030 and 80% below 2007 level by 2050. This must be done in a way that limits harm to other existing industries that provide jobs and economic activity that British Columbians rely on.

Finally, CASA commits government to implement an increase of the carbon tax by $5 per tonne per year beginning April 1, 2018. Our intention was to ensure that across the entire economy a clear market signal was sent that incentivized low GHG producing activity, as well as spurred innovation and investment in the new economy. We were made aware over the course of our consultations with government that the proposed measures to support Emissions Intensive Trade Exposed (EITE) industries would be extended to LNG as well. These measures would have the effect of rebating up to 100% of the carbon tax that was paid beyond the $30 per tonne, based on how the greenhouse gas production intensity compares to the global cleanest benchmark.

Andrew.Weaver.mla@leg.bc.ca

While our caucus is supportive of these measures for the many existing industries in B.C. that already provide jobs and economic activity for our province - many of whom made their investment decisions in a previous regulatory environment - our caucus does not support extending the EITE as currently conceived to a proposed LNG industry.

If such a measure goes forward without amendment we do not see how a climate action plan, as agreed to in CASA, would have any legitimate pathway forward to reach our GHG reduction targets. As such, our caucus would no longer have confidence in government, as they would not be living up to their commitments laid out in CASA.

We believe that British Columbia must make its GHG reduction targets and climate action plan the centerpiece of its economic strategy. Our focus must be on prioritizing innovation within our economy and seeing new investments that ensure we are leaving the next generation with real opportunities to prosper. We are deeply encouraged that the companies engaged in your joint venture are investing heavily in renewable energy and other clean technologies. B.C. has a highly educated workforce, world-class research institutions and a wide range of innovative companies. We would welcome the opportunity to work with you in a manner that builds on these opportunities while helping us meet B.C.'s GHG reduction targets, as committed to under the Paris Climate Accord.

We would be happy to discuss our position in detail with you.

Sincerely,

Andrew Weaver

Sonia Furstenuau presses Premier on wild salmon habitat protection

VICTORIA, B.C. - Sonia Furstenuau, MLA for Cowichan Valley, pressed Premier Horgan on his government's plans to protect wild salmon habitat in B.C. during question period today.

"Wild salmon are tremendously important to Northern and coastal communities, said Furstenuau.

"Wild salmon in the Skeena River alone generate $110 million per year, and our sport fishing industry produces revenues of $925 million and 8,400 direct jobs. But in 2009, the decline in the wild salmon run in the Fraser River was so severe it was classified as a catastrophic collapse. This year, salmon levels in the Fraser are approaching those same levels.

"Protecting our wild salmon stocks will require significant investment in habitat restoration. Will the Premier commit to meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau to advocate for the protection of our wild salmon stocks and to establish a joint provincial-federal strategy to phase out fish farms on migratory routes?"

The Premier responded that his government is committed to protecting B.C. wild salmon stocks, and that he will work with all levels of government and Indigenous leaders to ensure their protection.

As part of their role in opposition, the B.C. Green caucus members will continue to hold the government to account on its commitment to protect B.C.'s wild salmon, including its promise to phase out salmon farms along wild salmon migratory routes.

Andrew Weaver introduces ride-hailing legislation for the third time

VICTORIA, B.C. - Andrew Weaver, leader of the B.C. Green Party, today introduced his Ridesharing Enabling Act for the third time. Weaver previously introduced the bill twice under the past B.C. Liberal government. The bill has been modified slightly from previous versions to enable ICBC to develop an insurance regime for ride-hailing, as well as some other minor modifications.

"Now that all three parties have agreed to bring ridesharing to B.C., it's time we had a frank and substantive debate on the details of this issue," Weaver said.

"In the five years since ride-hailing was first introduced to B.C., there has been much fear-mongering and politicization of this issue. The legislature should be a place where people can hear their elected representatives engage in substantive debate about the issues that matter to them. There is no better opportunity to do this than in a minority government where parties need to work together. I urge the B.C. NDP to call this bill forward for debate so that British Columbians can hear an open, transparent discussion on ridesharing from their MLAs.

"B.C. cannot be a leader in the creative economy unless it addresses emerging technologies head-on. Vancouver is the largest city in North America to not regulate this industry. Meanwhile, ride-hailing companies are operating without proper oversight, insurance or regulation.

"Disruptive technologies like ride-hailing have ramifications throughout many facets of society. Parties have rightly raised concerns about how ridesharing will impact existing businesses and public safety. But our job as leaders is to offer solutions. Let's take this opportunity to do things differently by engaging in a substantive policy-based discussion about this issue that British Columbians have awaited for far too long."

Andrew Weaver welcomes appointment of Climate Solutions and Clean Growth Advisory Council

VICTORIA, B.C. - Andrew Weaver, leader of the B.C. Green Party, welcomed the government's appointment of the Climate Solutions and Clean Growth Advisory Council today.

"I commend Minister Heyman on convening this excellent and diverse group of British Columbians that will help make B.C. a leader in climate action once again," Weaver said.

"Both our caucuses have committed to implementing a climate action strategy that will meet our targets. This advisory council will provide valuable high level advice on how we can keep our climate commitments while ensuring that B.C.'s economy remains strong and its people able to thrive.

"Our province is already feeling the effects of climate change, but the risks of inaction to the next generation are even greater. We owe it to them to build a future that is full of promise and opportunity. We have set the targets that we must achieve in order to ensure intergenerational equity with respect to mitigating the effects of climate change. We now must develop an actionable strategy to achieve these targets. The B.C. Green caucus looks forward to working with the government on a climate action strategy to ensure we keep our promise to the next generation."

Adam Olsen responds to Auditor General's report on grizzly bear management, calls for moratorium by bringing hunting tags to zero

VICTORIA, B.C. - Adam Olsen, the B.C. Green caucus spokesperson for Forestry, Lands and Natural Resource Operations (FLNRO), responded to the Auditor General's report, An Independent Audit of Grizzly Bear Management, which was released earlier today.

"I am very concerned that the auditor general has found that the Ministries' have failed to properly manage B.C.'s grizzly population," Olsen said.

"These findings demonstrate the urgent need to develop a comprehensive approach to ensuring the health of grizzlies. We need to improve the coordination between the two ministries managing this file and prioritize transparency. Although the trophy hunt has received much high-profile attention, B.C.'s grizzlies face many other threats including habitat and food source loss due to human activity and, increasingly, the encroaching effects of climate change.

"Today, as a first step, I am calling for a moratorium on grizzly bear by bringing hunting tags to brought down to zero while we take the time to review our wildlife management practices and plan for a landscape altered by climate change.

"As legislators, our job is to look for feasible solutions to the issues that matter to British Columbians. Under the previous Liberal government, which actively supported the grizzly bear trophy hunt, my colleague Andrew Weaver worked hard to advance legislation that would ban the trophy hunt while protecting rights for local sustenance hunters and First Nations traditional practices. Now, with a party in government that has opposed the grizzly bear trophy hunt supported by the B.C. Greens, we have an opportunity to move the dial even farther on measures that will protect our province's grizzly bears."

B.C. Greens statement on new bargaining unit for paramedics and dispatchers to improve patient care

VICTORIA, B.C. - Sonia Furstenau, B.C. Green Party spokesperson for the Ministry of Health, welcomed the government's establishment of a new bargaining unit for paramedics and dispatchers.

"I applaud this move to give standalone bargaining to the paramedics and dispatchers working tirelessly to serve our communities," said Furstenau.

"Paramedics and dispatchers provide an essential service on the front lines of responding to medical emergencies. Now more than ever, we are indebted to them as they have shouldered the additional weight of a horrific drug overdose crisis. This bargaining unit will enable paramedics and dispatchers to advocate for issues such as response times, serving rural and remote communities and the opioid crisis.

"I also thank my colleague, Andrew Weaver, for his diligent work advancing this file. Andrew introduced the First Responder's Act in February and has advocating for the bargaining rights of paramedics and dispatchers ever since. I am proud this important B.C. Green initiative that will make a difference in the lives of British Columbians has been adopted by government."

Weaver: Mike de Jong's free kindergarten for 4 year olds is an opportunity for collaborative politics based on good public policy and evidence

VICTORIA, B.C. - Andrew Weaver welcomed B.C. Liberal leadership candidate Mike de Jong's campaign platform plank that would give free optional kindergarten for 4 year olds. This comes on the heels of a Conference Board of Canada report documenting the benefits of investments into Early Childhood Education on Friday. De Jong's policy follows in the footsteps of the B.C. Green Party platform which proposed to provide free early childhood education to three and four year olds.

"I am delighted that Mr. de Jong is proposing this excellent evidence-based policy as part of his B.C. Liberal leadership campaign," said Weaver.

"Early childhood education (ECE) yields higher returns than education at any other level. Last week's Conference Board of Canada report found that every dollar invested in early childhood education yields $6 down the road. Providing free ECE would also help families struggling with the effects of the affordability crisis. This is good public policy that puts people first - plain and simple.

"What's most exciting is that this demonstrates the enormous opportunity to work together across party lines in order to deliver for British Columbians. We all want the same thing: to ensure a high quality of life for the people we represent. When we focus on common ground, there is no limit to what we can accomplish.

"For far too long, politics in British Columbia has been about power, with opposition parties first instinct to take partisan shots at government with the sole aim of getting back into power themselves. This status quo leads to divisive, inflammatory and unproductive politics, much like we have witnessed south of the border. There is no better opportunity to do things differently than in a minority government. I welcome the opportunity to work with Mr. de Jong, and all members of the B.C. Liberal caucus, on this issue and other ways in which we can collaborate to make good, evidence-based policies a reality for British Columbians."

Weaver: Mike de Jong's free kindergarten for 4 year olds is an opportunity for collaborative politics based on good public policy and evidence

VICTORIA, B.C. - Andrew Weaver welcomed B.C. Liberal leadership candidate Mike de Jong's campaign platform plank that would give free optional kindergarten for 4 year olds. This comes on the heels of a Conference Board of Canada report documenting the benefits of investments into Early Childhood Education on Friday. De Jong's policy follows in the footsteps of the B.C. Green Party platform which proposed to provide free early childhood education to three and four year olds.

"I am delighted that Mr. de Jong is proposing this excellent evidence-based policy as part of his B.C. Liberal leadership campaign," said Weaver.

"Early childhood education (ECE) yields higher returns than education at any other level. Last week's Conference Board of Canada report found that every dollar invested in early childhood education yields $6 down the road. Providing free ECE would also help families struggling with the effects of the affordability crisis. This is good public policy that puts people first - plain and simple.

“What’s most exciting is that this demonstrates the enormous opportunity to work together across party lines in order to deliver for British Columbians. We all want the same thing: to ensure a high quality of life for the people we represent. When we focus on common ground, there is no limit to what we can accomplish.

“For far too long, politics in British Columbia has been about power, with opposition parties first instinct to take partisan shots at government with the sole aim of getting back into power themselves. This status quo leads to divisive, inflammatory and unproductive politics, much like we have witnessed south of the border. There is no better opportunity to do things differently than in a minority government. I welcome the opportunity to work with Mr. de Jong, and all members of the B.C. Liberal caucus, on this issue and other ways in which we can collaborate to make good, evidence-based policies a reality for British Columbians.”

B.C. Greens statement on new bargaining unit for paramedics and dispatchers to improve patient care

VICTORIA, B.C. - Sonia Furstenau, B.C. Green Party spokesperson for the Ministry of Health, welcomed the government's establishment of a new bargaining unit for paramedics and dispatchers.

"I applaud this move to give standalone bargaining to the paramedics and dispatchers working tirelessly to serve our communities," said Furstenau.

"Paramedics and dispatchers provide an essential service on the front lines of responding to medical emergencies. Now more than ever, we are indebted to them as they have shouldered the additional weight of a horrific drug overdose crisis. This bargaining unit will enable paramedics and dispatchers to advocate for issues such as response times, serving rural and remote communities and the opioid crisis.

"I also thank my colleague, Andrew Weaver, for his diligent work advancing this file. Andrew introduced the First Responder's Act in February and has advocating for the bargaining rights of paramedics and dispatchers ever since. I am proud this important B.C. Green initiative that will make a difference in the lives of British Columbians has been adopted by government."

Adam Olsen responds to Auditor General's report on grizzly bear management, calls for moratorium by bringing hunting tags to zero

VICTORIA, B.C. - Adam Olsen, the B.C. Green caucus spokesperson for Forestry, Lands and Natural Resource Operations (FLNRO), responded to the Auditor General's report, An Independent Audit of Grizzly Bear Management, which was released earlier today.

"I am very concerned that the auditor general has found that the Ministries' have failed to properly manage B.C.'s grizzly population," Olsen said.

"These findings demonstrate the urgent need to develop a comprehensive approach to ensuring the health of grizzlies. We need to improve the coordination between the two ministries managing this file and prioritize transparency. Although the trophy hunt has received much high-profile attention, B.C.'s grizzlies face many other threats including habitat and food source loss due to human activity and, increasingly, the encroaching effects of climate change.

"Today, as an initial step, I am calling for a moratorium on grizzly bear by bringing hunting tags to brought down to zero while we take the time to review our wildlife management practices and plan for a landscape altered by climate change.

“As legislators, our job is to look for feasible solutions to the issues that matter to British Columbians. Under the previous Liberal government, which actively supported the grizzly bear trophy hunt, my colleague Andrew Weaver worked hard to advance legislation that would ban the trophy hunt while protecting rights for local sustenance hunters and First Nations traditional practices. Now, with a party in government that has opposed the grizzly bear trophy hunt supported by the B.C. Greens, we have an opportunity to move the dial even farther on measures that will protect our province’s grizzly bears.”

Andrew Weaver welcomes appointment of Climate Solutions and Clean Growth Advisory Council

VICTORIA, B.C. - Andrew Weaver, leader of the B.C. Green Party, welcomed the government's appointment of the Climate Solutions and Clean Growth Advisory Council today.

"I commend Minister Heyman on convening this excellent and diverse group of British Columbians that will help make B.C. a leader in climate action once again," Weaver said.

"Both our caucuses have committed to implementing a climate action strategy that will meet our targets. This advisory council will provide valuable high level advice on how we can keep our climate commitments while ensuring that B.C.'s economy remains strong and its people able to thrive.

"Our province is already feeling the effects of climate change, but the risks of inaction to the next generation are even greater. We owe it to them to build a future that is full of promise and opportunity. We have set the targets that we must achieve in order to ensure intergenerational equity with respect to mitigating the effects of climate change. We now must develop an actionable strategy to achieve these targets. The B.C. Green caucus looks forward to working with the government on a climate action strategy to ensure we keep our promise to the next generation."

Andrew Weaver introduces ride-hailing legislation for the third time

VICTORIA, B.C. - Andrew Weaver, leader of the B.C. Green Party, today introduced his Ridesharing Enabling Act for the third time. Weaver previously introduced the bill twice under the past B.C. Liberal government. The bill has been modified slightly from previous versions to enable ICBC to develop an insurance regime for ride-hailing, as well as some other minor modifications.

"Now that all three parties have agreed to bring ridesharing to B.C., it's time we had a frank and substantive debate on the details of this issue," Weaver said.

"In the five years since ride-hailing was first introduced to B.C., there has been much fear-mongering and politicization of this issue. The legislature should be a place where people can hear their elected representatives engage in substantive debate about the issues that matter to them. There is no better opportunity to do this than in a minority government where parties need to work together. I urge the B.C. NDP to call this bill forward for debate so that British Columbians can hear an open, transparent discussion on ridesharing from their MLAs.

"B.C. cannot be a leader in the creative economy unless it addresses emerging technologies head-on. Vancouver is the largest city in North America to not regulate this industry. Meanwhile, ride-hailing companies are operating without proper oversight, insurance or regulation.

"Disruptive technologies like ride-hailing have ramifications throughout many facets of society. Parties have rightly raised concerns about how ridesharing will impact existing businesses and public safety. But our job as leaders is to offer solutions. Let's take this opportunity to do things differently by engaging in a substantive policy-based discussion about this issue that British Columbians have awaited for far too long."

Sonia Furstenau presses Premier on wild salmon habitat protection

VICTORIA, B.C. - Sonia Furstenau, MLA for Cowichan Valley, pressed Premier Horgan on his government's plans to protect wild salmon habitat in B.C. during question period today.

"Wild salmon are tremendously important to Northern and coastal communities, said Furstenau.

"Wild salmon in the Skeena River alone generate $110 million per year, and our sport fishing industry produces revenues of $925 million and 8,400 direct jobs. But in 2009, the decline in the wild salmon run in the Fraser River was so severe it was classified as a catastrophic collapse. This year, salmon levels in the Fraser are approaching those same levels.

"Protecting our wild salmon stocks will require significant investment in habitat restoration. Will the Premier commit to meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau to advocate for the protection of our wild salmon stocks and to establish a joint provincial-federal strategy to phase out fish farms on migratory routes?"

The Premier responded that his government is committed to protecting B.C. wild salmon stocks, and that he will work with all levels of government and Indigenous leaders to ensure their protection.

As part of their role in opposition, the B.C. Green caucus members will continue to hold the government to account on its commitment to protect B.C.'s wild salmon, including its promise to phase out salmon farms along wild salmon migratory routes.

Adam Olsen introduces bill to protect Indigenous gravesites

VICTORIA, B.C. - Adam Olsen, B.C. Green Party spokesperson for the Ministry of Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation, today introduced the First Nations Heritage Protection and Conservation Act. Earlier versions of the Private Member's Bill, which is aimed at protecting Indigenous sacred sites such as burial grounds and heritage objects, were introduced six times by former B.C. NDP MLA Maurine Karagianis.

"This bill is a first step towards recognizing that Indigenous burial and sacred heritage sites should have the same respect and protection as non-Indigenous cemeteries and sacred sites," Olsen said.

Olsen, who is the first W̱SÁNEĆ person to represent the constituency of Saanich North and the Islands, was involved in the effort to protect Grace Islet off the coast of Salt Spring Island from development atop a First Nations burial site.

"I saw firsthand how what happened on Grace Islet cost the provincial government a great deal of effort and a $5.45 million land purchase," Olsen continued.

"The First Nations Leadership Council have identified a number of potential tools to address the current inequity. My aim in introducing this bill is to keep this issue at the top of the agenda so that what happened on Grace Islet never happens again.

"Both our caucus and the B.C. NDP have committed in words to support the adoption of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission calls-to-action and the Tsilhqot'in Supreme Court Decision. This is an historic opportunity act. It is through action that we are going to repair the broken relationship between Indigenous people and the B.C. government. Let's seize this opportunity to do things differently by taking action so that First Nations burial and sacred sites finally have the equal respect and protection they have long been denied."
