Don. Here is a further refined and templated version of the draft I gave you a few days ago. As I mentioned, I've been coordinating with Robb and we'll talk tomorrow to make sure this and that they're bringing is consistent.

Since theres only 30 minutes on the agenda, I framed it so that it could happen in that time. This version has speaking notes. Among the things you might want to consider:

There's time to make changes tomorrow or Monday morning if you like.

Attached are some preparatory materials focused on the upcoming retreat:

- An excel document with three worksheets focused on the three commitments, and three areas of focus reviewed and approved by cabinet in September. For each of those areas of focus, I have staged the relevant platform commitments, and one or two additional things s.12 . At the top of each worksheet is a summary of the key 2018 items.
- A one page Word document summarizing the 2018 items I picked out.
- A draft agenda, that is in mid-edit based on Shelley's conversation with Geoff last week. It is supplied for information only.

This afternoon Evan, Sage, Robb and I are sitting down to frame out the elements that day two will be based on .

This afternoon and tomorrow morning Shelley and I will be refining the agenda.

There is a consideration as to whether the Strategic Priorities, as set out here, will be useful in a retreat context. There is still time to reframe if needed. Shelley and I will consider how they could actually be used and report back.

Hi Suzanne –

I'm not sure you are the right person to ask about this, but I figured it may have crossed your desk. The Premier was approached yesterday by someone who told him that she was on his advisory committee. I'm almost positive it was the Women's Economic Council. <https://news.gov.bc.ca/stories/premiers-womens-economic-council-established-to-tap-into-new-opportunities> Do you know if this council still exists (even in theory if not practice?). I need to get back to him about it.

Good Morning – Stephen Brown contacted me yesterday to discuss his Minister's wish for the two issues (s.12 s.12) to go directly to TB rather than thru CCSI.

Stephen and I are both of the view, based on the materials and nature of the commitment that they respond to, that this is appropriate for s.12 but wonder whether some of the more substantive items addressed in s.12 s.12 deserve at least brief discussion at CCSI prior to proceeding to TB, (and particularly given the extent of consultation and awareness on the issue that is now the case for the green caucus).

In addition, independent of this decision, I assume there would be a remaining desire for both sets of materials to be tabled (at a minimum) with DMs CCSI at its next mtg Monday to ensure other DMs are aware of the status & proposed direction.

Grateful for your confirmation and/or other direction on these two matters.

Thanks
Elizabeth

Demand side actions

Building more supply, and especially more affordable supply is critical, and you play a critical part in that equation.

But supply doesn't help when it sits empty. More useful as an investment instrument than as housing.

British Columbia has always welcomed visitors and new residents alike. They enrich our culture and grow our economy.

But an empty house or condo, owned by a person or corporation resident in another jurisdiction who doesn't contribute to our economy is a cost, not a benefit to this province.

We all need to pay our fair share, and in the coming months we will be taking further steps to make sure that happens. We will be balanced. We will put British Columbia first. And everyone will pay their fair share.

...These actions are necessary but not sufficient. In the final analysis, we need more supply. And we need your help to do that....

Going to call you

Federal infrastructure money

One critical part of building affordable new housing for British Columbians is our partnership with the federal government.

Canada is in the process of advancing a National Housing Strategy. Right now $11 billion is on the table. Not chump change. But I think that number should grow, and we're advocating for that.

My government is fully engaged in getting our fair share, and we recognize that our British Columbia development community will play an integral role in delivering the new supply which will become possible with this funding.

This is important to my government because this housing is absolutely needed here. More supply, built by British Columbia's own development community, can work with the other measures I've touched on here to put affordable rental and owned housing within reach of average British Columbians.

I anticipate good news on this front very soon, with my government and the federal government investing in the future of housing here in BC.

Municipal roadblocks to development

Builders often raise the challenge of uncertainty, conflicts and delays during municipal planning processes when talking to me and my Minister of Housing, Selina Robinson.

People have described their frustration at having to jump through one set of hoops in one municipality and then a different set right next door in a different municipality.

The lack of certainty around processing development permit applications comes up often. I get it. Time is money, and uncertain timing means even more money as you try to juggle the people, materials and marketing that all lies in wait for a final go-ahead. Not to mention the knock on effect as developments down the line are affected by the same issues.

I think this can improve, and I think the province can play a role by working with local governments and the development community to assist in making that happen. In fact, our government is already working with local governments on how we can do more to develop the capacity needed at the local government level to help them move good projects forward.

And, I know that housing is a clear priority of UBCM as well. We want to engage with them on that. I want us to work harder, together. I want to encourage best practices, figure out how we get the capacity needed on the ground to get the housing we desperately need built faster.

I will work with you and with municipal governments to try to find the pragmatic, sensible improvements needed to make this work better.

It's not taking unilateral action. It's not setting development planning back years through expensive and divisive measures like the transit referendum. It's working together. Easy to say, hard to do, but I'm committed to doing it.

One option being pursued is to see if it’s possible to extend the meeting time. If that fails, we’ll be looking to reschedule items. In this case, I wonder whether you might be able to accommodate on the Planning Session Agenda, Minister James’ request for time to review her ppt re:s.12 , ~ 30mins.

First of all, I don't think a snort BN is appropriate. I think a chortle one is the type you need.

My scope of work:

- Leads a small department (4 directors, one support staff) responsible for working with Ministries to ensure the government's key objectives are well designed, delivered in a timely manner and meet the commitments government made to British Columbians.
- Particular focus is on initiatives where planning and delivery reaches across organizations i.e. response to overdose crisis, home affordability
- The office also assists Ministries to coordinate policy development, decision making and with time-limited significant initiatives such as the federal government's cannabis legalization.

Let me know if you need more.

Subject: Overview of your job responsibilities in DMO

Hello – can you both send me bullets of your scope of work? I am doing a snort BN for the estimate's binder that talks about the work of the DMO – so if you could send me today some public information on your work, it would be appreciated.

Suzanne, would you include a description of the work of PAO and how you would describe the work of each staff person.

Thanks

With that clarification, please don't schedule a placeholder for s.12 in January. We'll see how they go. Thanks

Hi there – just went back to my notes from our phone call. They are that this item (once on the Dec 6th agenda as a separate item) was NOT to be rescheduled. Consequently, we do not currently have a placeholder for this item in January. However, on the same ph conversation we talked about the s.12 s.12 that were sched for P&A Nov 23rd being moved on a placeholder-basis to Jan 18 P&A.

Happy to add a placeholder for the s.12 for January cabinet if you wish. Please, what would be best to target, subject to future confirmation – 17th, 24th or 31st?

Thx

Elizabeth. That was you and I on the phone where you said "why don't we put it on a January (I forget the exact date) agenda as a placeholder.

Good Morning – yes, we revised forecast yesterday to remove the stand alone item Dec 6 Cabinet s.12 s.12 and so all that appears on that Dec 6 Cab agenda is the report out of minutes from s.12
s.12

I am not aware of a January placeholder. Please can you elaborate?

Thx

Can you confirm that she will be reporting out though on s.12 s.12 at the December 6th Cabinet meeting. It would seem to me that if she does that and a discussion ensues and there is a desire for a more fulsome Cabinet discussion then we would use the January placeholder. Make sense?

Talked to Elizabeth MacMillan this morning. Agreed to take the s.12 item off the Dec Cabinet. Has been moved to January as a placeholder in case it's needed, not as a directive to go FYI. I replied to Tim letting him know there were no more questions for now from me. For both of you it's the timing (to Cabinet and of the potential announcement) that are most challenging.

Hi Suzanne, I understand that you called on Friday and were looking for a report out on next steps, resulting from our meeting with MDD, Evan etc on wednesday. Here's an update. Let me know if you still want to connect.

Should we move these to the next session (Spring 2019) or to a future session? If we don't hear from you by 2 (assuming you will be busy at P&A after that) , we'll assume Spring 2019.

Many thanks

Thanks, the change looks good Suzanne

We had an indication from s.12 after we chatted that they may also like some adjustments and are on a call with them later this morning. If there is a next version I will pass it along. Hopefully it won't be a significant tone changer.

Can I assume that the PAO review is complete if there are no changes from s.12

Thanks again for the quick turn around

Dan

I reordered the bullets and made a slight change. Any concerns for you in that? I didn't look at the sub, since I assume you'll just line it up with the letter.
