Hi Jen — thanks for getting back to me.

I've since had another conversation with a person at the meeting between Premiers Horgan, Notley and Prime Minister Trudeau.

It is my understanding that during this meeting Premier Horgan told the PM that there were gaps in the Ocean Protection Plan that the B.C. Government was looking to address in its five-point plan.

The response from the federal government was, "If you need more from the Oceans Protection Plan, then name it." The federal government offered to further heighten marine safety at the meeting, but specific requests were not made.

Can you please provide some information as to why the Premier did not ask for more specific measures to address the gaps he said the provincial government was looking to address?

Thank you,

Geoff

Hi Geoffrey,

Apologies for the late reply. It's the last day of the legislative session here and quite busy. Please find responses below.

1. Kinder Morgan and Premier John Horgan had a series of meetings over the last year wherein the company tried to gain an understanding of the premier's position on the project, his concerns about the project and whether or not those concerns could be alleviated. Please confirm how many meetings were held.

Premier Horgan had no face to face meetings with Kinder Morgan in the last year. His Chief of Staff met with them twice to make British Columbia's concerns clear.

2. At the April 15 meeting in Ottawa between Premier Horgan, Premier Rachel Notley and Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, and attended by ministers Jim Carr and Bill Morneau, Notley and Trudeau had arrived with a pre-negotiated agenda. My understanding is that Premier Horgan did not pre-negotiate an agenda for the meeting before it took place. Please confirm whether or not an agenda was provided to Premier Horgan before hand.

For this meeting we had no advance agenda, nor was one provided. The Prime Minister led the discussion.

Hi Geoff,

There seems to be some misinformation here. BC actually sent the federal government a letter with specifics of what we wanted from the Oceans Protection Plan before the meeting between Notley Horgan and Trudeau.

This myth that we had not asked for any specifics was floating around right after the meeting, but it is simply untrue. I can find you the letter if you like.

I see Premier Horgan is going to be speaking to my CBC colleagues tomorrow morning at 7:10. Would the Premier be willing to talk to me, as well, on our CBC Victoria morning show?

If so we could do it at 07:00, 07:20, 07:40, 08:00, 08:10, or 08:20.

The interview would last 6 or 7 minutes, with no callers and no other guests.

It may be worth clarifying with reporter that scanning of social media is no longer at issue. The OIPC issued guidance report in March that stopped the practice more than a month before the Alacrity event. (

Note:

- OIPC issued a report on March 22nd that found social media history and internet search engines cannot be used to collect information about prospective tenants under PIPA. <https://www.oipc.bc.ca/investigation-reports/2141>
 - RECOMMENDATION 7
Landlords must not collect information about prospective tenants from social media platforms or internet search engines other than those few sources of publicly available information prescribed by PIPA.
- Certn stopped scanning Facebook and Twitter in response to the OIPC report and no longer collect information from social media. (as Global BC reported June 3, 2018)

A few updates based on conversation with Craig.

- Our government has taken steps to improve protections for renters including closing the fixed-term lease and geographic increase loopholes and bringing in new rules regarding renovation and demolition of rental housing.
- Our rental housing task force will continue to work to strengthen and modernize regulations as part of our plan to improve access to affordable housing for people in BC.

He also reminded me that we immediately put $7m annually into the Residential Tenancy Branch to deal with backlogs and create a compliance unit (to deal with complaints about bad landlords and bad tenants).

Hello Paul,
This statement attributable to Premier Horgan.

"In our brief conversation, I understood the program to be a matchmaking tool that helps connect people looking for an apartment with people looking to rent one.

"The government has clear guidelines on what sort of information can be requested by landlords and keeps a close eye for any inappropriate practices. There is no place for discrimination in access to housing. The privacy rights of renters are protected under BC law, and the Privacy Commissioner made clear this Spring that social media cannot be used to screen prospective tenants.

"Our government has taken steps to improve protections for renters including closing the fixed-term lease and geographic increase loopholes, and bringing in new rules regarding renovation and demolition of rental housing. Our rental housing task force will continue to work to strengthen and modernize regulations as part of our plan to improve access to affordable housing for people in BC."

I will also note that funding the Province provided Alacrity is dedicated to a clean tech incubator. Only clean tech companies are eligible. CERTN is not part of this funding.

What the Premier was saying is that it has been one of many proposals put forward over the years, but Minister Trevena is the one tasked with going through all these proposals and determining whether it's feasible at all. At this point there is no plan currently to move ferry terminals. For more information I would suggest contacting the ministers office.

Good day.

Charla sent an email a few days ago wanting to do an article (she does a weekly column on First Nations issues for the TC) featuring PJH, Chief Planes and Chief Chips. She wanted to take a pic of all three and focus her article on the fact they are all decision makers on Westshore who are also coincidentally cancer survivors.

She is calling me to see what progress has been made on setting up this request?

Apparently PJH has agreed to this.

Are either of you familiar with this request and working on it?

And if not do you want me to start working on this or ...who will?

I would prefer the Premier not be interviewed by the media at the event. We have just finished our media avail for the day and we were not expecting anything for this evening.

I'm also sure he will be too busy!

If a reporter does want to speak to the Premier should I pass along the request to you? I don't foresee him having time to speak with reporters at the event. Thoughts?

Thanks so much!

Trust you are both well.

On behalf of Rio Tinto I have two invitations / opportunities for the BC Premier's Office to consider. Both of the opportunities will provide the Premier in respectful and positive opportunities and they would recognize the Premier contribution to protecting and enhancing the resource sector in BC.

Invite and Opportunity #1

Dinner with Rio Tinto Chief Executive Alf Barrios and one or two other Senior RT Executive at or around 7:30 pm on Monday June 18th in Vancouver BC. The purpose of the dinner is to thank Premier Horgan and his Government for their interest and support in regard to the recent US tariffs on aluminum. The BC Govt efforts were very positive and helpful. This somewhat more informal private dinner would last between 7:30 pm. - 9:00 pm.

Invite and Opportunity #2

The Premier can attend and speak for a few moments, longer if the Premier wishes, at a reception hosted by the Canadian America Business Council / Mining Association of BC Reception to recognize the Corproate Integrity Award given to Rio Tinto. The venue will be the Vancouver Club on at 5:30 pm on Monday June 18th. (see invite below)

I wanted to get some perspective on things like: when is a large scale infrastructure project off-limits to investors? Why the federal government may not necessarily rely on institutional investors to get them out of this down the road. How will BC fight the feds or Alberta or other investors on this project? Things like that.

Do you think the premier would have time for a brief interview this week to discuss these things? Thank you for your time.

Last month, Premier Horgan said he no longer supports building commuter rail service in the capital. As a result of that statement, the CRD Parks Board is set to debate lobbying for an exemption to Transport Canada requirements that forces them to pay for upgrades to a rail crossing in the near future.
First of all: Have Premier Horgan's views changed at all in his statement? What is the province doing to help end the debate and uncertainties around the future of this rail corridor? It would seem a solution is necessary as millions of taxpayer dollars continue to be invested in a track that appears to have no future.
Here's an article for a bit more background info on the basis of my story:

Subject: Premier Dad Jokes

Hey Sheena,

I am doing a story on the Premier's penchant for making dumb dad jokes, and the party making it part of his persona on social media (re: the Dad Jokes website, R2D2 video, etc. etc.)

Three questions for you:

- 1) Is highlighting his dad jokes an initiative of the communications team, or something the premier has personally championed?
- 2) Could you estimate how many times a month you hear a dad joke from the premier?
- 3) Is there any particular reason why people have to fill in their postal code when giving their best dad joke to the premier?

I will not be hurt if you choose to decline comment.

Regards,

Justin

NEWS RELEASE

Wild salmon protection driving newly appointed Wild Salmon Advisory Council

VICTORIA - With pressures mounting on wild salmon stocks, the British Columbia government is bringing together experts from around the province to develop a strategy for restoring and sustaining B.C.'s salmon populations, announced Premier John Horgan.

The Wild Salmon Advisory Council will provide key insights and guidance on protecting wild salmon and maximizing the value of this important resource for British Columbia. Premier Horgan announced the new council alongside Lana Popham, Minister of Agriculture, and Adam Olsen, MLA for Saanich North and the Islands.

"Wild salmon are crucial to the success of our economy, the prosperity of coastal communities, and the lives, culture, and history of Indigenous peoples," Premier Horgan said. "The Wild Salmon Advisory Council brings experts together to help develop a wild salmon strategy to protect B.C. salmon today and for future generations."

Co-chairs Doug Routley, MLA for Nanaimo-North Cowichan, and Chief Marilyn Slett of the Heiltsuk First Nation, will lead the council, as it addresses a wide range of issues affecting wild salmon.

"Wild salmon play a unique role in our coastal ecosystems and underpin the prosperity of so many B.C. communities," Popham said. "The challenges and pressures affecting wild salmon stocks in B.C. are complex. It's important that we work with people with diverse expertise to find solutions, restore healthy fish stocks, and protect wild salmon. I look forward to working with our federal partners as we move forward to protect wild salmon."

The Wild Salmon Advisory Council will consist of 14 British Columbians who have a broad understanding of the role that salmon play within B.C.'s environment, for coastal and inland Indigenous communities, and local economies up and down the coast.

"I am thrilled to see some progress on the wild salmon file," Olsen said. "The threats to fish stocks are many - habitat and ecosystem degradation, poor management, fish farms, climate change - and the majority of B.C.'s salmon runs are in decline. The Wild Salmon Advisory Council needs to act decisively to give government clear direction on the path forward. The most important thing this government can do to restore wild salmon populations is to move from consultation to action, with urgency. We cannot continue to manage wild salmon runs to zero. I look forward to my role on this council."

Government will begin developing proposals for a made-in-B.C. wild salmon strategy this summer, supported by the advice and guidance of the Wild Salmon Advisory Council. The Province will then submit recommendations in fall 2018 to the legislative assembly's Select Standing Committee on Agriculture, Fish, and Food. Those recommendations will support a public consultation process to examine the health, habitat, and management of wild salmon and the sustainability of the wild salmon industry in British Columbia. The process will inform the development a wild salmon strategy for B.C.

Quotes:

Doug Routley, MLA for Nanaimo-North Cowichan, co-chair -

"The future of wild salmon is a pressing issue across the province and in my community. I am honoured to be co-chair of the Wild Salmon Advisory Council, and very excited to get to work with the council, so we can move forward with a Wild Salmon Strategy for B.C."

Chief Marilyn Slett, Heiltsuk First Nation, co-chair -

"It is critical that we strengthen the connections between our communities, our environment, and our economy, for the future of wild salmon and the broader environment they depend on. Coastal First Nations support the re-emergence of a conservation-based economy, while taking into account the cultural and ecological diversity of our territories, and the responsibility to maintain and protect the lands, water and resources within them. I look forward to discussing solutions, like ecosystem-based management that our First Nations have championed."

A backgrounder follows with biographies of Wild Salmon Advisory Council members.

BACKGROUND
Wild Salmon Advisory Council members' biographies

The Wild Salmon Advisory Council will consist of 14 members, drawn from a diverse set of backgrounds, covering a broad range of knowledge about the importance of wild salmon to the province's environment, First Nations' traditional uses, and the economy of many B.C. coastal communities.

The council is expected to provide advice on a broad range of policy issues affecting wild salmon that will help inform both the work of the Wild Salmon Secretariat and provide guidance and advice to the Province.

Wild Salmon Secretariat

The Wild Salmon Secretariat is made up of staff from the Office of the Premier and contracted support from B.C. Coastal First Nations, who will provide logistical support for the Wild Salmon Advisory Council, and who are tasked with the hands-on work of developing and writing an options paper on a made-in-B.C. wild salmon strategy.

Select Standing Committee on Agriculture, Fish and Food

On May 31, 2018, the legislative assembly tasked the Select Standing Committee on Agriculture, Fish and Food with conducting consultations to examine the health, habitat and management of wild salmon, as well as the sustainability of the wild salmon industry in British Columbia.

Government intends to provide the Wild Salmon Secretariat's options paper to the Select Standing Committee and ask the committee to use the options paper as the basis for its consultations with the public.

Next Steps

Government will use the findings and recommendations of the Select Standing Committee to inform the development of a wild salmon strategy for B.C.

Minister of Agriculture's Wild Salmon Advisory Council members:

Doug Routley, MLA for Nanaimo-North Cowichan, co-chair

Doug Routley is MLA for Nanaimo-North Cowichan. Born in New Westminster, and raised in Duncan, Routley understands the island's unique challenges and opportunities of life in the region, and his experience gives him a grasp of what his constituents care about, and how their needs can be met.

Chief Marilyn Slett, Heiltsuk First Nation, co-chair

Marilyn Slett is a member of the Heiltsuk Nation and is serving her 10th year as elected Chief Councillor. Chief Slett has served two consecutive terms as an elected tribal councillor, and is a former executive director of the Heiltsuk Tribal Council. Her regional representation includes current President of the Coastal First Nations/Great Bear Initiative, British Columbia Assembly of First Nations Women's Representative on the National Assembly of First Nations Women's Council, and elected to the Board of Directors of the British Columbia Assembly of First Nations.

Adam Olsen, MLA for Saanich North and the Islands

Adam Olsen was first elected as MLA for Saanich North and the Islands in 2017. He is a former two-term Central Saanich councillor and small business owner. Olsen was born and raised on Tsartlip First Nation in Brentwood Bay, and is a member of the Tsartlip First Nation. He served as the chair of Planning and Development and Water and Wastewater, and represented the community on a number of boards and commissions, including solid and liquid waste, Greater Victoria Public Library and the Regional Housing Trust Fund.

Joy Thorkelson, United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, president

Joy Thorkelson has spent 40 years representing and working for people who rely on fishing for a living. She has worked for healthy fish stocks, policies that support active fish harvesters and policies, to retain and expand processing work in B.C. - especially in B.C.'s rural coastal communities. As a Northern Panel member of the Pacific Salmon Commission, she has given advice regarding U.S. salmon interceptions and negotiations with Alaska. Thorkelson was chair of Fisheries Renewal BC, which funded and devolved project decision-making to regional groups with representatives from local governments, First Nations, resource users, environmentalists and other salmon habitat natural resource users.

Ray Harris, First Nations Summit, co-chair

Ray Harris is a member of the Stz'uminus First Nation on Vancouver Island, and previously served for 10 years as the elected Chief of the Stz'uminus First Nation. Harris is an active commercial fisherman on the B.C. coast.

He has been instrumental in organizing the Coast Salish Gatherings and the formation of the Coast Salish Council, which focuses on environmental and resource health in the Coast Salish Sea and region. Harris is currently serving his fourth consecutive term as co-chair of the First Nations Summit (FNS).

Dawn Machin, Okanagan Nation Alliance fisheries biologist

Dawn Machin is a member of the Okanagan Indian Band, part of the Okanagan (Syilx) Nation. After receiving her bachelor of science degree from the University of British Columbia, she started as the Okanagan regional biologist for the then-Canadian Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fisheries Commission, and then moved to the Okanagan Nation Alliance where she was responsible for program management of the Fisheries Department.

Machin was a board member of the provincial Crown corporation, Fisheries Renewal BC (1997-2001). After having children, Machin returned to the Okanagan Nation Alliance, to reconnect with the people and community involved in the management of Syilx resources.

Thomas Alexis, Upper Fraser Fisheries Conservation Alliance, director

Thomas Alexis is a member of Tl'azt'en Nation of the Carrier Sekani Tribal Council, and belongs to the Frog Clan. He is actively involved in traditional teachings as well as fluent in the Carrier language. He was elected Chief of his community in 2002, and was re-elected for four consecutive terms. Alexis participated in the development of the First Nation Fisheries Action Plan for B.C. First Nations, and was appointed to the First Nation Fisheries Council of B.C.

Alexis is a founding board member for the Upper Fraser Fisheries Conservation Alliance that was formed in 2004. He sat on a negotiation team for Fraser Salmon Management Council, which is a mandated organization with 73 member bands from the Fraser watershed, as well as members that encompass Vancouver Island.

Ian Bruce, executive co-ordinator, Peninsula Streams Society

Ian Bruce began his career as a project advisor and salmon specialist with Canada's Department of Fisheries and Ocean's Salmonid Enhancement Program, thus beginning his 35-plus year journey with salmon, salmon habitat, fish culture, community and First Nations, as a registered professional biologist, project innovator, leader and mentor. In 1997, Bruce returned to the Saanich Peninsula to work for the B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch before helping found Peninsula Streams Society (PSS) in 2002. PSS successfully engages with students, citizens and government to provide environmental education, stream stewardship and habitat restoration.

Martin Paish, director, Sport Fishing Institute of British Columbia

Martin Paish has been both a strong advocate for wild salmon, and a keen salmon angler for his entire adult life. As a 20-plus year member of the B.C. Sport Fishing Advisory Board and director of the Sport Fishing Institute of B.C., Martin has spent countless volunteer hours communicating the value of wild salmon, and the fisheries they support, to government, stakeholders and NGOs.

Mike Hicks, Capital Regional District's director for the Juan de Fuca Electoral Area

Mike Hicks has spent most of his adult life involved in the sport fishing industry. Hicks works with his wife Kathy, operating their bed and breakfast and representing the Juan de Fuca Electoral Area as regional director. He has run successfully in two federal elections, and has been a strong advocate for increased habitat protection, habitat rehabilitation and salmon restoration.

James Lawson, commercial fisherman, Tsimshian and Heiltsuk First Nation

James Lawson is a member of the Heiltsuk First Nation from his father's side, and his mother is Tsimshian. After obtaining his bachelor of science degree, he decided to become a career fisherman to carry on his family legacy. He aims to help in the development of sustainable fisheries management in B.C. through comprehensive ecosystem stewardship.

Cailyn Siider, commercial fisherman from Sointula, B.C.

Cailyn Siider is a fifth-generation commercial fish harvester from Sointula. She and her family are actively involved in commercial prawn, halibut, rockfish, Dungeness crab, roe herring and salmon gillnet, troll, and seine fisheries. Siider believes strongly in the long-term health and sustainability of the British Columbia coast, and the communities that depend on it.

Tasha Sutcliffe, Ecotrust Canada

Tasha Sutcliffe serves as Ecotrust Canada's vice-president, and also as director for the Fisheries and Marine Program, a position she has held since 2007. She brings extensive experience in fisheries, community economic development and business systems. Prior to joining Ecotrust Canada, Sutcliffe spent nine years as the regional director for the Community Fisheries Development Centre in Prince Rupert, where she worked to create community economic alternatives in the face of reduced commercial fishing opportunities.

Ward Bond, Island Outfitters, and Pacific Salmon Foundation board member

Ward Bond is co-owner and operator of Island Outfitters, and has been since its inception in 1994. Hunting and fishing are his passion. He served as the local chair for the Sports Fishing Advisory group from 2002 until 2007, as well as the main board, Chinook Working Group, Halibut Allocation Board and chair for the Ground Fish Working Group. He is a member on the board of directors for the Pacific Salmon Foundation.

Hi Ainslie,

Sorry for the delay. We can't anticipate funding until we've received the recommendations of the select standing committee. When we do, we'll engage with the federal government, because they have a major role and responsibility in this, and we'll determine what provincial investments are appropriate.

"Over twenty years ago, Suman Virk and her family endured an unimaginably painful loss when their 14 year old daughter was murdered. Reena Virk's death forever changed this province and transformed our understanding of the consequences of bullying.
"Suman Virk's tireless work to end bullying has helped make life better for countless kids in B.C. We will be forever indebted to her, and will continue to work to prevent youth violence in her memory.

It's summertime, be a good time to do so. What do you think?

The topics would depend on when we do this.

Possible?

Sheena,

Hope you are well. I am reaching out on behalf of the West Block, the national Sunday morning program on Global TV. Our last show for the season is this Sunday June 24th (so last taping day is this Friday June 22nd) so I am reaching out to see if Premier Horgan would be available to appear on the show this week as a bit of a look ahead to the summer and where he sees the whole pipeline project going this summer.

We could tape this late Thursday afternoon if that helps in terms of his schedule.

Eric Sorensen is hosting the show this week.

Please let me know if this is possible.

Thank-you.

Cheers,

Janet E. Silver

It has been the previous decision of the press gallery not to accredit s.22

He has been unable to produce any documentation from SHAW TV that he is a member of their staff who would represent them with a press pass at the legislature. Therefore, he doesn't meet our guidelines. He phoned me today and I told him if he could provide such a letter, we would reconsider his application. He has not.

Nonetheless, he says he intends to come to the building today anyway because the premier's office gave him the media advisory of the technical briefing.
You guys can continue to send him advisories if you want, but we won't be accrediting him to attend until he provides the same type of letter from an employer that the rest of the media need to get credentials here.

Dear friends,

Please join me in welcoming Amber Hockin to the new position of Deputy Chief of Staff in the Premier's Office. Amber will be joining our team July 9. She is an accomplished leader and has extensive experience within the labour movement. She is currently Director of Operations at Move UP where she manages the day-to-day operations of the 12,000 member Union. She has also worked in various roles with the Canadian Labour Congress, including as Regional Director, and within CUPE as both a staff and elected representative. Amber has also served on a variety of community based Boards and is currently the Treasurer of the BCNDP. Her responsibilities will include many of the aspects of Layne Clark's position, including primary management of Ministerial staff. However, it will also include oversight of key policy files as required. We expect there will be further adjustments of specific duties now performed by Layne as Amber assumes her duties.

I know Amber will be an outstanding addition to our team and, once again, thanks to Layne Clark for her tremendous contribution during her time in the Premier's Office.

Hi Sheena,
I'm Joao Correa with CBC Radio, On the Coast.
We're doing a segment today at 5:05 about the report on money laundering recently released.
We've talked with David Eby about the implications of the report and what's next.
We'd like to hear from premier John Horgan whether the government will take the recommendations from the report, and what is the government planning to do moving forward with the recommendations.
We'd like to have him in studio at 5:05. Our host today is Matthew Lazin-ryder.
We can do a live phone interview if he can't come in.
Let me know asap if we can book him in.
Thanks,
Joao.
