Below is a list of notable news articles from today's news (since 12pm) which mention the FMM or feature FMM items:

Trudeau open to rail car purchase, more generous EI rules to help struggling energy sector

CBC. <https://www.cbc.ca/news/politics/trudeau-rail-cars-oil-notley-1.4935419>

- Prime Minister Justin Trudeau says he is willing to consider helping Alberta Premier Rachel Notley fund the purchase of rail cars to increase the volume of oil her province can ship to international markets.
- Trudeau suggested the federal government could ease the pain for the energy sector by temporarily extending Employment Insurance benefits for affected workers.

Premiers head to Montreal for meeting with Trudeau amid criticism over oil, carbon tax

Globe & Mail. <https://www.theglobeandmail.com/canada/article-doug-ford-prepared-to-walk-away-from-first-ministers-meeting-if/>

- The tone going into Thursday's night's dinner underscored the tensions that seem likely to turn Friday's meeting into the most acrimonious first ministers' gathering in years
- Summary of some of the agenda items provinces want to talk about (similar to previous news articles)

John Ivison: Any unity at First Ministers' Meeting will come in opposition to Trudeau

National Post (opinion). <https://nationalpost.com/opinion/john-ivison-any-unity-at-first-ministers-meeting-will-come-in-opposition-to-trudeau>

- Canadian federalism (through the constitution) makes it difficult to achieve progress and achieve consensus in Canada as opposed to other countries (such as China)
- Politics will come to the fore in Friday's meeting; "any unity on show in Montreal will be 100-per-cent in opposition to [Trudeau]"

Ottawa shrugs at Ford's threats to ditch first ministers' meeting

iPolitics. <https://ipolitics.ca/2018/12/06/ottawa-shrugs-at-fords-threats-to-ditch-first-ministers-meeting/>

- "Premier Ford can explain to the citizens of Ontario why he left a meeting with other first ministers to talk about how to improve the Canadian economy," federal Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Dominic LeBlanc told reporters in Montreal.

- PM Trudeau noted he is looking forward to the discussion with Premiers "with all of the premiers around the table"

Trudeau, Ford happy to sit down and talk together

GlobalNews. <https://globalnews.ca/video/4737420/trudeau-ford-happy-to-sit-down-and-talk-together>

- Trudeau noted it was important to sit down together to talk about GM plant closing last week, among other things
- Premier Ford noted his eagerness to talk about "job killing carbon tax", and with the other Premiers about the economy, steel and aluminum challenges and internal trade.

B.C.'s new climate action plan heavy on incentives to switch to electric power

Globe & Mail. <https://www.theglobeandmail.com/canada/british-columbia/article-bc-climate-plan-proposes-changes-that-will-impact-every-part-of-the/>

- Horgan is one of a shrinking number of premiers still working with the PM to put a price on carbon pollution
- Mr Horgan said of the conference call on Tuesday: "There wasn't a resounding amount of enthusiasm for carbon pricing, which is something we believe is foundational to a successful plan, so we'll see how provinces like Ontario and Saskatchewan respond to that,"
- Federal Environment Minister McKenna said: "I think B.C. has a solid plan; it's great to see them being so ambitious,"

Provinces to Trudeau: It's always about you

Macleans. <https://www.macleans.ca/politics/ottawa/provinces-to-trudeau-its-always-about-you/>

- "The feds and the provinces can't even agree on who should be allowed to attend a pre-meeting luncheon on Thursday—Ottawa says just the Prime Minister and premiers with one note taker, while the provinces want each leader to bring in an official."

And from Twitter:

Doug Ford:

Had the pleasure of speaking with @PremierScottMoe and @BlaineHiggs ahead of the First Ministers' meeting to discuss some of the issues facing our provinces. The job-killing carbon tax is top of mind.

Power & Politics tweet:

"We want to make sure the agenda is exactly what we want to talk about. We don't need to be lectured by [Trudeau's] ministers," says @fordnation as he meets with @PremierScottMoe and @BlaineHiggs ahead of tomorrow's first ministers meeting

"Cut the fluff and we change the agenda," says @RachelNotley about first ministers meeting agenda. "We don't need to waste time for people to take sort of self-congratulatory victory laps on things that have already happened." #cdnpoli #abpoli #fmm

.@DLeBlancNB says if @fordnation walks out of first ministers meeting, "Premier Ford can explain to the citizens of Ontario why he left a meeting with other first ministers to talk about how to improve the Canadian economy." #cdnpoli #onpoli #fmm
