Subject: General Motors of Canada Meeting Request to Discuss BC's ZEV Policy Development

Dear Mr. Robinson

As a an industry leader in Electric Vehicle (EV) technology development and EV sales leader in Canada, General Motors has significant insights into the Canadian and BC EV market as well as other leading global EV jurisdictions. We believe that these EV market insights and experiences in Canada, U.S. and global jurisdictions would be invaluable in the government's ZEV policy development and we would like to be a constructive contributor in your government's ZEV policy development.

In addition, General Motors Corporation has recently publicly recommended the establishment of a U.S. National ZEV Program and we would like to share with you the high level elements of that policy proposal.

Our Vice President of Environmental and Corporate Affairs, David W. Paterson, and myself would like to request a meeting with you later this month to provide you with these insights on this policy matter. Our tentative plans are to be in Victoria from Jan 21st to Jan 23rd mid day. Would you please advise us if you or someone from the Premier's staff would have any availability to meet with us in that timeframe.

We appreciate your consideration of this meeting request and look forward to the discussion.

Hi Jon,

Further to my email yesterday, Carbon Engineering Ltd. (CE) has significant news on some recent strategic investments, which I'm excited to share with you.

Today, we announced two major strategic investors, the first being Oxy Low Carbon Ventures, a subsidiary of Occidental Petroleum Corporation, and the second being Chevron Technology Ventures, the venture capital arm of Chevron Corporation.

These investments enable CE to accelerate commercialization of our Direct Air Capture (DAC) and AIR TO FUELS™ technologies, and bring us closer to deploying our large-scale commercial plants. Both Occidental and Chevron are investing into CE's technologies and business plan, and this funding will allow us to accelerate the use of our technologies in a way that delivers affordable, low-carbon energy, and significant emissions reductions.

The significance of this news is not just the financial investment, but the long-term potential of two industry leaders investing in DAC as a mechanism to address sustainable energy goals. Being the first significant collaboration between a DAC developer and the major energy sector, this is an important milestone for the commercialization of DAC technology as a solution for both removing carbon from the air, and for producing ultra-low carbon sustainable fuel for all sectors of transportation, including aviation and maritime. As the world assesses how to tackle the climate and energy challenge, Carbon Engineering's progress to commercializing large-scale DAC technology provides a potential part of the solution.

These investments are part of a wider investor funding round that is currently underway at CE, and we expect to bring on additional investors in the near future.

A full copy of the news release is attached, or can be viewed on our website here. We'd be happy to have follow up conversations with the Province if there are any questions – this is an exciting step for us on the path to commercialization!

Best regards,
Anna
