Good morning and happy Friday!

I'm wondering if the Premier has given any speeches lately where he outlines his budget priorities for the coming year? And if so, may I please get a transcript? I'm planning to write about the coming budget today.

My impression from the scrum in Nanaimo was that it was going to focus on the 'making life more affordable' file - so daycare and housing. But then a couple of months ago, I would have predicted a 'clean energy' focus. So I am looking for some clarity.

Cheers
Justine

Hi all,

Realize the last week has not allowed looking at things like this. This is for Feb 16 though, so I wanted to bump it as I understand it could be a great announcement for the Premier and he could do it with not too much extra travel on the 16th when he goes to PR for the Basketball Tournament. Resource Benefits Alliance in Terrace.

Let me know what you think.

Hi Sage and Kate,

I wanted to flag this for you because a decision should be made on it relatively soon. Craig tells me it is still very confidential, but in supplementary estimates for the budget, the major investment in Resource Benefits Alliance will be made (approx. $100 million). This will become public in the days following the budget, I'm told no later than the 25th. If the Premier added a drive to Terrace during his trip to Prince Rupert for the Basketball Tournament he could announce it.

You likely know this, but this would not be pre-announcing something from this year's budget, because supplementary estimates, crudely put, add things to last year's budget.

If it doesn't get announced when he is there for the basketball, it would likely come out as part of the supplementary estimates.

Let me know if you want me to look into it and get you any further information.

Thanks

Rick

Havent had a chance to ask about this.

NR only from TAC to put up for sale the naming rights to BC place, set to go out on Monday. So essentially we could have the "Steve Nash Gym Stadium" or some such.

There are restrictions under the Province's "Naming Privileges Policy" which would prevent certain entities from acquiring the naming rights, and I can look into that if you feel it is necessary.

Subject: Budget priorities?

Good morning and happy Friday!

I'm wondering if the Premier has given any speeches lately where he outlines his budget priorities for the coming year? And if so, may I please get a transcript? I'm planning to write about the coming budget today.

My impression from the scrum in Nanaimo was that it was going to focus on the 'making life more affordable' file - so daycare and housing. But then a couple of months ago, I would have predicted a 'clean energy' focus. So I am looking for some clarity.

Cheers

Subject: Throne Speech - Draft 2

Hi Sage,

Thanks for reading my revisions to the Throne Speech. I've made a lot of changes in the past 48 hours. The language is more succinct but the long list of topics bogs everything down.

With all the subtractions – and additions – the word count has come out pretty much exactly the same as draft 1, with the In Memoriam still to come and no mention of hydro (I received materials from EMPR but they are quite dense, I have not put it in out of concern for word count)

One strategy would be to try and parse sentences, however it might be more effective to think about what topics we could drop entirely that are discussed elsewhere, like in budget or in public events in the days leading up to (or following) Throne. Then, we bring a shorter, tighter draft to PJH and make the case for what remains and why.

We don't have a lot of time, and I'm running out of steam – I will leave these thoughts with you for now and we can touch base in the morning before you head into your meetings to decide what we do next.

Hi All,

In the lead up to the trip this week, I just wanted to check if we wanted to look into scheduling some time for the Premier with Joel Connelly of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

The best time would be the evening of Wednesday, or perhaps in Redmond in the late afternoon Thursday after Microsoft and before the drive to Olympia. In any case, if we want to go ahead with trying to schedule it we can discuss options, and how best to reach out to Joel (or any other journalist we may want to).

Let me know
Thanks

'Understand Premier Horgan is due to address our Legislature early next month. So far, not a great amount of media interest down here. I've tried to flog TransMountain story, given that tankers would go by islands^{s.22} and Turn Point on Stuart Island ^{s.22}

Anyway, I'll likely be in Seattle, but able to follow the speech on TVW. If there is a way of getting an advanced text, it would help a great deal in drafting the article. I would comply with any embargo. Were there a few minutes for an advance phone interview, I would gladly accept.

Travel budgets have been curtailed with on-line journalism. I have, however, found a source of foundation money, and can hopefully get to Victoria and/or Vancouver later this year, and cover your upcoming federal election.

Good morning Sage,

Wanted to make sure you have a copy of this. Chris McLaren has reached out to Tim re timing, with the indication the office would like for the Premier to do this, but looking for some significant flexibility on timing. I'll be following up with Chris to express the sense of urgency around the public signal to the feds that BC is paying attention to the importance of the National Shipbuilding Strategy to BC. Urgency arises from active pressure of Davie (Quebec shipyard) and Quebec unions demanding more of the work before the coming election.

Don't need anything from you on this until confirmed, but when scheduled, it will be a good opportunity for Premier to stand up for good BC jobs in a collegial way with the fed gov't, and to talk about BC's support for rebuilding our shipbuilding industry.

Best,
Michael

Dear Premier Horgan,

Please find attached a letter, from Seaspan Shipyards CEO Mark Lamarre, updating you on the National Shipbuilding Strategy and requesting your active engagement in supporting Seaspan's role in the NSS and the thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions in annual economic activity that come to BC with it.

In addition, we wish to invite you, at your earliest convenience, to tour the near complete Offshore Fisheries Science Vessel, docked at Ogden Point near the BC Legislature. This is the first vessel built in BC under the NSS. Per the content of the attached letter, we view this as a strong opportunity to demonstrate and communicate the commitment of the Province of BC to the role of BC's marine industry in delivering the NSS.

As you are likely aware, other Canadian jurisdictions have been agitating for more work under the program, which would likely have the consequences of depriving BC of work and jobs we have earned and invested in. It is our hope that you will be able to find time between now and the next sitting of the Canadian parliament, in late January, to participate in a tour and to deliver a message of support for BC shipbuilding.

I would be pleased to act as Seaspan's contact point for meeting coordination and logistics.

Kind personal regards,

Tim

Hi All,

One further thing I forgot about Feb 22 is that it is the day slated for the fed's gun violence announcement as well, which they wanted to do on the island. We can discuss tomorrow if there has been any progress on that as well, and how we make everything fit around that too.

Thanks

Subject: Pitches for Monday

Importance: High

Hi all,

Here are the pitches from Friday, so we have them ready for Monday.

Thanks

Rick

AEST

- Student Housing for 96 at College of the Rockies. We could do this during the March break, during Minister Mark's second of her two days, March 15th. It is a joint $17.7 million project, roughly two thirds from the province and one third from the school.
- Part of CleanBC, we are launching an online public input portal about ways to address labour market opportunities. NR only. They want February 25th though, and that day is very full
- Community Workforce Response Grant – to connect displaced workers (mill closures, natural disasters) to skills for in-demand occupations. It will take place in the Nisga'a Village of Gingolx, which is an hour or so outside of Terrace, which I think makes it ok that it will happen on February 22, which is already very busy. That said, given it seems to be somewhat province wide, we should also look at how it could be announced in a more populous location (either instead of or in addition to).
- Opening of the new Sustainable Energy and Engineering Building at the SFU Surrey Campus – Premier Requested, and a fixed date of Friday, April 26.

SDPR

- Grant to the BC Dental Association of $3.6M to provide funding for not for profit dental clinics. It will be part of the Poverty Reduction Plan, and we need to find a date afterwards for a specific reannouncement of this.

MCFD

- RIVERVIEW: Youth from the Maples Adolescent Treatment Centre are moving from their current decrepit building to a brand new purpose-built facility on the Riverview grounds that will be a much healthier, more positive place for youth to live, staff to work, families to visit, and youth and their families to receive outreach services. CITZ funded the building and MCFD funds the Maples operations, which provides residential, non-residential and outreach services to support youth, families and communities, and services for troubled 12-17 year-olds with significant psychiatric and behavioural conditions. TIMING: the residents will be moving in on Family Day weekend, so the event can be some time in March
- Paula also made reference to planning a reannouncement of the childcare thing that is in the budget. But we did not get into details of timing or content for obvious reasons.

FLNRO

- Rural dividends plan. These grants provide over $18 M of funding to 151 projects. Many regional releases and opportunities for local reannouncements to follow. They want to put the release out on FEBRUARY 25th, which is very busy already and I think that we should move it to a different day. Potentially, we could have it closer to or at the beginning of the March break and try to coordinate something on the Minister's behalf.

MAH

- NR ONLY, FEBRUARY 7th. Revelstoke Land Purchase for housing. It is a good story locally. (MAH-91875)
- Mass Timber Plan – Craig pitched this at the previous MA meeting, a change to the building code to allow larger wood buildings. Wants to make the announcement in Okanagan Falls. March 21st or 22nd are the best dates, the Thurs and Fri of the second break week. This does not count towards the Minister's two budget days during the break.
- FEBRUARY 16 IN TERRACE/PRINCE RUPERT

MIRR

- First Nations Clean Energy Business Fund announcements. Funding granted for clean-energy projects approved through the First Nations Clean Energy Business Fund. To be clear, MIRR did not pitch this on Friday. But the date range is over the March break and I think it could be a great topic for Minister Fraser and others during the March break (Jonathan agreed). Also potentially including Minister Heyman, but I don't know how involved ENV is in this, if at all.

February 22 and 25: This is not to do with pitches, but two busy days that I just wanted to make sure are clear to you.

Feb 22 has:

- 8am: Minister James Budget Speech to GVBOT (Vancouver)
- Time TBD: Ministers James and Robinson open the last of the promised 600 Modular Homes in Vancouver
- Time TBD: Minister Trevena does availability on the Redlin Coastal Ferry Review Report in Victoria
- Time TBD: Minister Popham announces a food hub in Vancouver (this can be worked around everything else)
- This does not include what if anything the Premier will do that day.

I'd suggest that MCJ goes ahead with Breakfast speech at 8am or so, Minister Trevena does the Ferry thing at around 10:15am or so, and then MCJ and MSR do the Housing announcement shortly after noon. We can perhaps have Minister Popham go at the same time as Minister Trevena. This depends on what the Premier may be doing as well.

Feb 25 is a sitting day so everything is in Victoria:

- Minister James - Announcement of Presale Condo Registry
- EMPR – Mining Day, event in the Hall of Honour at Lunch time
- FLNRO Rural Dividend NR (as mentioned above, we should move this)
- PSSG – Minister Farnworth is introducing Legislation to further regulate payday lenders, something which I think should get attention.

My suggestion for the 25th is that Minister James do her presale condo announcement at 9:15am before the house starts sitting, and then we have mining at lunch in the Hall of honour, and then Minister Farnworth do a scrum in the mid afternoon whenever possible after introducing his legislation.

Ah!
Okay. Well. I don't think the price is actually a problem. Harold seemed fine with it. But logistically, I can't schedule all that stuff and flights and hotels and give you an okay today. So. I think we'll pass.
That being said – I learned a valuable lesson about how my editors seem to like the idea of participating in these trips if the premier is going. So, next time, let me know more in advance if you can and then we can avoid the last minute scramble and there's a good chance we might actually go.

Answers:

Unlike in a campaign we cannot pay for this and then bill back. Postmedia would need to pay up front.

We can send exact flight numbers that the premier is on and the hotels where we are staying. Cost should be around $1000-$1200, for both flights and both nights at the hotel altogether.

If the specific flights aren't available there are other options.

You will get free transportation, in the secondary vehicle travelling with the premier – a separate vehicle travelling the exact same places as him at the same time. We'd carve out time in the itin to talk with the premier, of course.

You'd get access to all things the premier does. I can arrange a chat with our tour coordinator for today to go through the itin in detail.

Here's the thing, though – we need to know by today if we can confirm you.

Hi Jen,

I sent a request through text and email to Sheena for a possible interview with the Premier today but haven't heard back and I'm wondering if I have the wrong contact info or if Sheena is away. Can you advise?

Here's the request:

I'm wondering if the Premier is available to chat about the Langford mayor's push for emergency measures on the TCH at Leigh Rd after a second fatal there. Stew Young is specifically calling on John Horgan as the area's MLA to do something immediately and I would like to hear his thoughts and the plans for this area.

Thanks.

I think this is likely what Rob Shaw wants updated. My apologies, but I had forgotten that we ultimately decided that we needed to provide all of the information as I wasn't that involved in their release. So you can ignore my comments about "we changed our policy" yesterday, as we clearly changed it back. We can update the full list (which is included in the 2nd link below), but it would take some time and the person who runs our database is away until Monday. We could definitely get it to you by end of day Tuesday though.

If so does this mean we are back to the 11th and 14th for both?

I've included Joleen here so she's in the loop s.22 and if we do go back to the 11th and 14th then malcolmson's swearing in can likely remain on the 13th

FYI after two conversations with Lori W today - here's the latest.

Lori reports that it IS a problem to hold the BCH Phase 1 until post budget. A couple of reasons but the most compelling is a legislative requirement that the minister of finance would otherwise be required to publish a written statement of non-compliance (with obligation to provide certain supplementary budget information pertaining to BCH accounts at the same time as the tabling of the main estimates - Budget day). Moreover another complication is that there are other references to BCH accounts (that imply knowledge of the conclusions of the review) elsewhere in the Budget documents.

Bottom line it appears is that we are compelled to do BCH review release pre budget - basically back to where we began.

If it's any help we are advised that everyone who would be concerned about cancellation of SOP is already aware.

Hi again,

I just wanted to follow up on the email below; I heard back from Via Rail, and if we move forward with the station as a venue they have asked that we confirm by tomorrow morning, as they need to start moving some equipment for us.

I have also confirmed that Creekside Community Centre is not available; as such, unless we look for additional options that weren't on the original list, I think the train station is likely the best option we have.

Please let me know if you would like me to go ahead and confirm the venue.

Thanks,

Subject: RE: Announcement time on 15th in Vanc?

Hi all,

I went and looked at some of the possible venues last week; I've attached photos and my feedback below. In terms of time, we were talking mid-morning, but like Rick said, it depends on PJH's schedule.

- Via rail station- outside: There is a covered space through the back. It directly looks over the site (not strictly necessary, I realize). We would likely have to do some tenting, but we wouldn't be relying on it entirely.
- Creekside Community Centre: this is not particularly close to the site (10-15 minute walk), and I'm still waiting back to hear if it is available. I've done many events at this location and it is a great spot- certainly we could set up a lot of the materials, and it has a nice view over false creek. The room in question could hold 100+ people, but it's not as forgiving if we get much more than that. Logistically, this would probably be the simplest.
- Via rail station- inside: The building is beautiful, huge, and full of history. Unfortunately, it will have to remain open to the public, and all of the various ticket booths, gates, and businesses would need to be accessible. This would be challenging if we get a larger crowd. We can use stanchions and some of the existing benches to manage the crowd, but I still think it would get awkward.
- Science World: Not available
- Warehouse on site: not available
- The site itself: I think no. It's an unpaved parking lot, and if the weather is anything like it was last week, it basically becomes a lake.
- Soccer field next to site: again, if the weather is like last week's it would be a gross mucky mess

Please let me know your thoughts on venues.

Thanks,

I'm sure can do whatever works for the Premier time-wise. I was assuming mid morning. I'm including Marlene as she is the lead on this for us. Are there any constraints from the venue or the other participants Marlene that would make ascertain time necessary or a no-go for St. Paul's?

Just a heads up that we will be generating another co-signed letter from MSFraser, MMMark, and PJH for the 28th annual women's memorial march (Feb 14). If you get the letter on Monday or Tuesday, are you able to review and approve within a day?

Hello Sarah -- draft copy of the statement is attached. Added the full ministry to Minister Fraser in the lede. That was about it as far as edits go, other than lowercasing "minister" when "Premier and the minister" is mentioned later in the release.

Danielle has been added to the email chain as we'll (obviously) need PO approval for a PO release.

Hi Marlene,

Hope all is well!
We would like to use the attached photo of the Premier from the convention on the cover of our next magazine.

Here's a link to our magazine to give you an idea. It's distributed to 10,000 across the province to mostly logging contractors and government.

Wondering if we would need to get permission? I feel like we don't but as a courtesy thought I'd check.

If we do, could you please connect me with the appropriate person?

thanks so much

Strengthening the relationship between B.C. and Washington state, to seize opportunities and make life better for people

By Premier John Horgan

Over the past year and half, I've been working collaboratively with Washington state Governor Jay Inslee to strengthen the relationship between Washington state and B.C. and seize opportunities in the Pacific Northwest.

On Thursday in Seattle, I announced that B.C. is backing the next phase of a potential ultra-high-speed corridor service, linking British Columbia, Washington state and Oregon.

There is enormous untapped potential for growth in our region. We're working together to deepen ties, deliver strong, sustainable economic development, and create good jobs for people on both sides of the border.

Improving transportation connectivity is a critically important part of the path forward. In March 2018, B.C. contributed $300,000 for a business case analysis for a new ultra high-speed corridor.

On December 10, 2018, Governor Inslee announced that he is including USD $3.25 million in his budget for the development of a new ultra high-speed corridor authority for Washington, British Columbia and Oregon as part of his broader clean energy strategy.

B.C. has now committed to contributing an additional $300,000 for the proposed next phase of the project that will explore models for a multi-jurisdictional authority to lead a community engagement process and preliminary environmental review.

Our governments have been working jointly to grow the innovation and tech economy, tackle climate change, protect the environment, and promote mutually beneficial trade and improve transportation connectivity. Collaboration on the corridor study is another step towards realizing these shared goals.

Both of our governments also introduced innovative climate action plans in December of 2018. We share the common goal of rising to the challenge of climate change, while investing in a sustainable, low-carbon economies that are ready for the future. The CleanBC climate action plan is designed to help B.C. reduce climate pollution while creating more jobs and economic opportunities for people, businesses, and communities. B.C. and Washington State have a lot in common, and we know we are stronger when we work together. We're going to keep working collaboratively to seize opportunities and build a bright future. I'm excited about we can accomplish to make life better for people in our region.

Hi Sage,

Attached is an NR announcing the opening of an affordable housing project in Langford. It is a fed-prov-CRD joint NR.

Do you have any concerns with it? Is this quote good to go?

Premier John Horgan, MLA for Langford-Juan de Fuca –

“Providing safe, affordable housing for people is one of our government’s top priorities. Everyone deserves a secure place to call home, and together with our partners we are delivering brand-new homes for families and single people on the West Shore.”

Best,

JJ

Premier's statement on the Moose Hide Provincial Gathering and Day of Fasting

Premier John Horgan has issued the following statement in support of the Moose Hide Campaign's Provincial Gathering and Day of Fasting on Feb. 13, 2019:

"Today we recognize the Moose Hide campaign and its work to end violence against Indigenous women and children, and encourage men to speak out and hold each other accountable.

"Over one million women in our province have experienced physical or sexual violence since the age of 16. Indigenous women are 3.5 times more likely than non-Indigenous women to experience violence.

"Everyone has the right to live without fear and violence. It is the responsibility of every one of us to stand with survivors, believe their words, and honour their courage. As men and allies, we must be vigilant to make sure our words and actions do not perpetuate a culture of violence.

"Today, members of all parties in the B.C. Legislative Assembly will wear their Moose Hide pins and participate in a fasting to pledge their support for the campaign.

"Our government recognizes our responsibility to advance reconciliation with Indigenous peoples, and we are working together with the Minister's Advisory Council on Indigenous Women to right historical wrongs and to create a province where all Indigenous women and girls live free of violence.

There is hope for a better, brighter future if we all come together to make our communities safer for every person in B.C."

Purpose of this plan

- Define the through-narrative from Throne Speech to Budget
- Finalize Premier John Horgan's media plan for the TS
- Position/contextualize TS and Budget with media on background (staff)

Strategic Differentiation – TS / Budget

The TS outlines the government's vision for the year ahead; the budget is the fiscal framework for that vision. The TS narrative and key messages will go beyond the Budget to touch on the legislative agenda for both 2019 Spring and Fall sessions, and all the other work government will do.

Communications Objectives

- Use PJH's voice to drive interest in TS, elevating our government's narrative
- Have PJH personify the values and vision expressed in the TS
- Prepare members of the media for what to expect in the upcoming TS and Budget without giving away key elements of TS or budget

Tactics

- Capture attention via PJH radio interviews in the morning, alerting audiences to TS and creating interest
- Afternoon scrum to provide evening broadcasts with clips, print journalists with quotes
- Background discussions with press gallery and other reporters (staff)

PJH media plan – Tues, Feb 11

Morning

TV – Global News Morning

CBC (pre-tape with Tanya Fletcher)

Radio –

CBC (Kamloops, Kelowna, Prince George, Vancouver, Victoria – all covered by pre-tape with Tanya Fletcher)

Afternoon

Post TS reaction scrum

(FB live)

Note: South Asian and Chinese media will be contacted to call into the afternoon scrum.

PJH media plan – Wednesday, Feb 12

Surrogate media plan- Wednesday, Feb 12

Ravi Kahlon for South Asian talk shows

Katrina Chen for select Chinese media talk shows

Details

- CleanBC (already announced)
- Gaming revenue (already announced)

Hey you two,

This is for the Walk of Fame event the Premier is attending Friday evening. They want to let media know PJH is attending.

The event is open to the general public, so wanted to check with you on this – prefer to have them just mention PJH on the Friday morning follow up or is earlier ok?

Would we also send an MA out?

Thanks,
Joleen

Hi Joleen,

I hope you are well. As mentioned by Jody, we sent out the attached media advisory today.

When would you be comfortable with us sharing the Premier's attendance with media? We will be doing follow ups tomorrow to make sure they have the release in the schedule and then again on Friday morning. Ideally, we would let media know as early as possible so that they can allocate resources but understand if you would prefer that we hold off until Friday for security or other reasons.

Please do let us know your preference.

Thank you,
Nicole

Hi Amber,
QA on the cell phone passage in the TS.

What are you planning to do on cell phone billing?

- Canadians pay more than most places in the world for cell phone plans and mobile data.
- Telecom regulation is mostly federal but we want to do what we can to help people get a fair deal.
- This includes improving billing transparency and strengthening consumer protections around contracts.
- The Solicitor General will be leading this work - and consulting the public - to help people frustrated by high cell phone bills.

Horgan - forestry reforms & responsive government

By Horgan - 76th annual Truck Loggers Association Convention

John Horgan: Thank you very much for the introduction and for those who -- everyone knows what a joinery is? We were doing a little bit of discussion about that. I worked at the Cowichan joinery many, many years ago on Vancouver Island. We made a door jamb, a window sash and other things. I just pulled the wood and swept up the floor but it was a lucrative business for the owners at that time. I made a little bit of pocket money and it paid for my education.

I also spent some time in a pulp mill in Ocean Falls. I think I talked about that last year. Anyone ever been to Ocean Falls? Bless you. You can't go into a room and not find someone from Ocean Falls. If you've been in the swimming pool, you know that stroke, stroke, turn, stroke, stroke, turn is how you've got Olympic swimmers out of Ocean Falls.

It's great to be here again for my second go-around at TLA. I want to thank President Mike Richardson. I want to thank Dave Elstone for constantly being in our office -- people need to know that he is relentless. I'm not just trying to prop up his career. He is relentless -- you know that. Wherever I go, whether it's talking to people working in the forest industry in the Interior, in the Kootenays, in the north, Dave's always there making sure that I remember my roots as a Vancouver Islander and a coastal dweller, and the importance of TLA issues not just to you in this room but to the province broadly speaking.

To all the board members, to past president Jacqui -- who had the best lunch she's had in five years, I'm told -- and to the TLA staff, thanks very much for the work you do each and every day to maintain and support the good hard work of the members of the TLA here in the room today.

We have a number of members of the Legislature with me, my colleagues from cabinet -- Minister Jinny Sims, Minister of Citizens' Services, and of course Minister Doug Donaldson, Forests, Lands, Natural Resource Operations and Rural Development -- are both here from the government side. John Rustad and Jordan Sturdy are here from the opposition side, again, also friends of the forest industry. It's good to have a cross-section of the Legislature here to talk about the importance of the work that you do each and every day making it work.

I asked the piper if he knew Doug and the Slugs and he said he did, and he was going to -- he said if he'd been given another half an hour, he would've been able to bang out Making It Work on the pipes. Perhaps he's gone away to do that now. I said, you can either do Amazing Grace or that other song you do on the pipes, whatever that one is. It was nice to be piped in again and well done to everyone to make me welcome again. I really appreciate that.

Not only is the TLA making it work but we in government have been doing our level best to make it work as well. It's been 16.5 months -- coming on 17 months, actually, tomorrow -- since I was sworn in as the 36th Premier of BC. I want to certainly acknowledge what a great opportunity, a personal opportunity this has been for me. I am humbled by the opportunity.

I have been buffeted a bit by some of the challenges. Scott talked about the worst fire season ever, which you'll remember was followed by the worst fire season ever. That was my introduction by fire to the office of Premier. It was an opportunity for me to criss-cross the province to talk to people, not just forest fire fighters but people in industry, people in communities, and to recognize the true resilience of BC and the people who have the good fortune to live here.

I hope that the flood season that's about to come upon us with the freshet is not -- and I think it's going to rain for the next 60 days, if I've got the forecast, the weather right this morning -- I'm hopeful that the natural disaster part of my mandate is over and we can start focusing on some other issues. I think many people in the room will know John Allan, who I coerced out of retirement to come back and lead the ministry. John knows a good deal about forestry, as you know, and we're very grateful to have his expertise and experience at the cabinet table assisting Minister Donaldson and government to make sure that when we bring forward policy changes that they're consistent with what is needed in this room and what's needed in communities right across the province.

As your members know and all of you know, the land base is diverse and changing. Many of you have been in the industry for generations. Many of you have just started. I shared a story in the green room -- although I'm colourblind. Was it a green room? -- offstage before we came in about being at a wedding in Campbell River just not last summer but the summer before.

Of course, you're in Campbell River, it's a resource town. My goddaughter was getting married and there were a bunch of young people there, as happens at weddings. Everyone was told by the father of the groom to just leave them alone. Don't bug them. Just leave them alone. After a couple of drinks, as you know at a wedding, often times, people have something on their mind.

A couple of young guys came over and talked to me about forestry. They say, you're not going to wreck stuff, are you? They're really worried about that. I didn't take it personally, nor did I take it as a comment on the NDP. For at least the past 20 years, working in the woods, working in forestry has been challenging. Circumstances changing regularly, government policy changing regularly. Your challenges on the land base, whether it be in the Interior with pine beetle, whether it be addressing the needs of dwindling milling capacity, dwindling opportunities to move logs. It's led to an increase in raw log exports, which has led to a frustration in communities that are detached from industry, but they see wealth leaving BC without any value being added to it.

I know and you know it's a complicated issue but it's not one that we can continue to ignore. With a dwindling fibre basket, the challenges of old growth stands that need to be preserved, we need to find ways to work through all of those issues whether it's public perception or reality. The industry has been and will continue to be under a microscope.

The work that you do is important for your families. It's important for communities. It's also important for BCers. We need to address perception and we need to make sure that our reality is on a track that will benefit the people in this room and the people of the province.

I know that the TLA and others across the province have ideas about how we can renew our coastal forests. There is no magic. There is no solution that will come out of a bag that no one's thought of before. I am confident working with Dave the TLA executive and you at tables around this room and people in communities right across the coast, up and down the island and in the Interior and the Lower Mainland, we can find solutions to ensure that we continue to have a robust forest sector that will continue to provide wealth to the province, wealth to families and wealth to communities.

Finding the right solutions means that we have to work together. Although I'm grateful for the opportunity to speak to you today about coastal forestry, we need to make sure that we're focused on people, on communities and the lives that are so much affected by the work of your sector.

For too long, in my opinion, government's vision for the coastal forest sector has been to ship our natural resources somewhere else. For the last 20 years, employment on the coast has declined by about 40%. Lumber production has dropped by 45%, pulp production by 50%. At the same time, log exports from Crown land have increased by nearly ten-fold. The impact on communities has been profound. Mills have closed, small businesses have faltered, families have been forced to move away.

I said that I lived in Ocean Falls and Ocean Falls closed back in 1980. I left town and went on to do other things. People left Ocean Falls and they went to Gibsons, they went to Campbell River, they went to Gold River, they went to other places to make money in the forest sector. As time has gone by, the communities to move into have been dwindling. I'm seized of that as a born and raised Vancouver Islander and as a coastal dweller.

I am absolutely committed to making sure that we turn that around, that we ensure that the value that we get out of our forests from our dwindling fibre basket is put to work for you, put to work for your families and put to work for the people of BC. To continue on the track that we're on with respect to leaving too much waste in the woods and shipping too much product offshore without any value added to it is not sensible and it's not sustainable.

I believe there's a bright future in forestry on the coast and in the Interior. Paper Excellence's purchase of Catalyst, I think, sends a signal from the investment community that there is prospects for a greater tomorrow than we had yesterday. That future includes healthy companies, healthy contractors, strong indigenous participation and profitable and sustainable contracting in the industry by the people in this room.

The policy reforms that I'm going to be announcing today are the start of a process. I want to emphasize that. As I was saying to executive members not just today at lunch but in the meetings that I've had over the past 17 months -- 17 months tomorrow -- we need to work together on this. You know more about what's happening on the land base than I do. You know more about how you can better improve efficiencies of your operation than I do. Government can put in place incentives and regulations to develop an opportunity for investment to come here and give you more opportunities to move logs to different companies than the ones you're dealing with today.

How do we manage all of that? It's not to recreate the industry of 20 years ago. That's not going to happen. I get that, you get that, the public needs to get that. I'm determined to return our natural resource wealth to the communities where it comes from, to maximize the benefit to workers, to contractors and everyone that relies on forestry in BC. To that end, I'm pleased to say that we've completed the contractor sustainability review. We'll be moving forward with regulatory changes that will eliminate the fair market rate test, effective as soon as Mr Allan and Mr Donaldson can get that done.

That's the result of hard work by many of the people in this room to make that happen. Doug will have more details on that tomorrow as we roll out the plans. We're moving ahead with other reforms as well that will affect the industry in four key areas. I'm just going to run through those.

Firstly, we're going to rebuild our solid wood and secondary industries by processing more fibre in BC. Simply put, we're going to make sure that more timber can be processed here in BC communities. To accomplish that, we're going to reform raw log export policies. We're going to discourage high grading and curtail the export of minimally processed lumber. This will be a phased-in process and will apply first to new sales through BC Timber Sales programs. Again, this is not going to be the stroke of a pen, a magic wand -- it's going to be hard work but I want to leave no doubt that we are not going to continue to send away unprocessed material to be processed somewhere else, sometimes just a few miles from where we're just having our lunch today. That's not acceptable to me. It's not acceptable to BCers.

We will find a way through incentives and regulations, through carrots and sticks, to make that happen. We know and I know and you know that you can't force people to invest in unprofitable ventures. I get that. You get that. There's no magic here -- it's going to be hard work and it's going to be commitment by all of us to make sure that we can continue to thrive with the forest that we have as we grow the sustainable industry going forward.

Secondly, we're going to improve harvest performance to decrease waste and ensure more fibre is made available for domestic manufacturers, including the pulp and paper sector. This means greater utilization and increased penalties for waste, creating the fibre recovery zone on Vancouver Island and the south coast to make more fibre available for pulp and other activities.

Thirdly, we're going to take steps to prevent surrogate bidding on timber sales. That will ensure that timber sale auctions are fair and free from manipulation by surrogate bidders.

Finally, we are fostering stronger business-to-business relationships. This means it's going to take a number of forms. As an example, the ministry is going to pool volumes across BC Timber Sales with First Nations and other licensees to ensure that we're finding and maximizing economies to scale so that we can use our fibre more effectively. That's all of us working together -- BC Timber Sales, indigenous communities, contractors, tenure holders. Again, I don't want to leave any room for misunderstanding here. This means things are going to be done differently and that we are going to reduce the number of logs that leave BC and increase the amount of activity that we can get out of each log that you take out of the forest.

This is a conscious and deliberate strategy. I want to make that absolutely clear. It is going to be a phased-in process and it will take time to figure out. We were talking about unintended consequences. What I've learned as a member of the opposition for way too long -- and for John and Jordan, I've got some pointers, I can help you out on getting through some of those dark days -- what I learned as an opposition member, what I learned as someone working in the industry, what I learned over the past 16-and-a-bit months as Premier is that there are always unintended consequences. Government needs to be responsive to that.

If we make a mistake as we go forward with these four key changes, we're going to be responsive to that change. There is advantage in being a minority government. Again, I keep talking about what we had at lunch. We should've just had live mics here. It would've been a shorter speech. If there are unintended consequences, government should respond quickly to that. Majority governments tend to sit back and say, well, we'll figure that out over time. Minority governments have to figure it out every day.

I have to be responsive to your membership and to people in communities across BC every day. If we make a mistake, I'm not going to hold fast to that mistake because it was mistake. I'm going to try and fix it. That's the mandate that Doug's been given and that's what we intend to do.

Lastly, I want to talk about one area that I think is critically important. We're going to make amendments to the Forest and Range Practices Act to support the revitalization initiative by returning to district managers the authority to manage the land base. They know more about what's going on on the land base than I do. They know more about what's going on on the land base than Doug does. We're not going to second-guess the people you have to work with each and every day. We're going to make the assumption that you and they are going to work in good faith to get the best outcomes off the land, the most fibre to the most people to create the most value for BCers.

I think that transparency is wanted by the public and it will help us with the question of perception over reality by making sure that everybody knows what's going on, why it's going on and it'll be driven by your ability to meet the tests that government has put forward for you, whether it be 20 years ago, whether it be 10 years ago, whether it will be in the next 10 weeks. We have every confidence that you'll be able to adapt.

You in this room and the forest sector has adapted decade after decade to changing circumstances, changing fibre profiles, changing circumstances in the marketplace. Softwood lumber agreements have come and gone. Price have gone up. We've had an extraordinary run over the past 12 months of the highest prices anyone has ever seen. We can't depend on high prices to mask the challenges that you know well are there for all of us to address.

We need to support all of this by making sure that wealth generation capacity in the forest is there for you, for your families, for your companies and for the communities that you operate in. Wherever I go, I talk to mayors, I talk to councillors, I talk to walkers, I talk to contractors. They all have one common theme -- that is wanting to continue to work in the forest industry that has been feeding families for 150 years at least. It also means reconciliation on the land base with indigenous communities.

My government has undertaken what is absolutely a transformative discussion with indigenous communities. Some of that has been represented on television screens recently in the north when it comes to the differences between hereditary and elected leadership. These are challenges for you every day. These are challenges for government every day. Equally important, these are challenges for indigenous communities every day. It's not up to me or us or you to tell indigenous communities how to manage their government, how to manage the way they work with you.

My job -- our job -- is to make sure that we're making a seamless transition from what we know to what we know we have to get to. A couple of examples that I want to talk about when it comes to reconciliation, two of them very close to me on Vancouver Island. BC Timber Sales recently entered into quite a unique agreement with the Pacheedaht First Nation and the Cowichan Lake Community Forest in what's called Qala:yit Community Forest just north of Port Renfrew in my constituency, and the Huu-ay-aht First Nations have entered into an arrangement with Western Forest Products to purchase a portion of TFL 44 and they plan to acquire more.

The face of forestry will be changing. The ability for all of us to work together remains the same. Again, I look back over what has been my time here on Vancouver Island -- which is my entire life -- things have changed decade after decade after decade. One common theme is indigenous communities have always been here. They always will be here. You have always been working in the forest. You want to continue working in the forest. That relationship can only get better. It couldn't get any worse than it was 25, 20, 15 years ago. We are on the brink of successes when it comes to reconciliation that will open up our economy not just for indigenous communities but for all of us.

That is a task worth fighting for. That is a task that I've set for all of my ministers in every mandate letter I sent out, whether it was to Jinny at Community [sic] Services or Doug at Forestry. We need to reconcile with indigenous communities so that we can all move forward in a positive way. We've seen real results from that in the Broughton Archipelago when it comes to salmon aquaculture. Again, I should've written some of this stuff down.

Just before Christmas, we announced a groundbreaking agreement between Marine Harvest and other operators in the Broughton Archipelago with the indigenous communities there to move some fish farms out of the migratory routes for wild salmon and provide opportunities for continued employment, continued economic development but sovereignty on that land base for the people who have been there for millennia.

People, myself included, didn't think that was possible. Yet there we were, just before Christmas, announcing a groundbreaking agreement that will lead to prosperity on the coast, prosperity on the north island where it's desperately needed, and a way forward for every other sector in the province. The UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People is not a veto. It is an opportunity -- an opportunity for all of us to share the benefits and splendour of this spectacular province.

I want to thank you all very much for your patience and perseverance on the land base. I want you to know that you have a partner in me. We will have some bumps along the road but you've seen bumps before. You've overcome those bumps before. Again, with your help and co-operation with the work of newly minted, fresh as a daisy John Allan in the deputy's chair, and Doug Donaldson as minister, we're going to continue to work with the TLA and everyone who wants to work with us so that we can have the prosperity that we all want for ourselves and we want for other BCers. Thank you for the opportunity to talk to you. I look forward to little unintended consequences and lots of optimism and positivity going forward. Thanks very much.

I forgot the important part because I didn't write it down. That was on training. We have the lowest unemployment rate in the country. We're hovering around four to 4.4% unemployment, which means difficulty recruiting and retaining workers. You know that full well. We've been talking with TLA and I and others in the industry about how we can assist with training the next generation of workers in the forest sector. There have been some very innovative ideas coming from the TLA executive. We're taking that back to Minister Donaldson and Minister Melanie Mark, responsible for Skills Training.

We're closing up Budget 2019 right now. It'll be tabled in less than a month. I wanted to make the commitment today -- and I'm looking at Dave. He's nodding vigorously, so that'll be one less meeting we'll have to have, Dave. That's good. I understand the challenges that you have recruiting and retaining workers, the challenges of training outside of the classroom and how do we make sure that you can bring on younger people, younger men and women who want to be part of the forest industry without it being debilitating for you. Government has a responsibility to help you train people to help your businesses grow. We're committed to doing that. We'll have more to say about that in the weeks ahead.

I don't want to lead anyone to the view that in the next budget there's going to be a windfall for training. We are fixated on trying to address -- I mean, I don't know if you've noticed, I keep referring to young John Allan. None of us are getting any younger. We need to make sure that the next generation that's going to replace the people around these tables, to replace the executives of the TLA, are getting the training they need now so they're going to be there for all of us in the future. When those hip replacements are going to be needed by all of you, we need young people to making all that happen.

That's the last thing I'll say about that. Training money is to come. Thanks a lot.

Q & A

Reporter: Just regarding the fee on raw logs, could you just outline what the fee is right now and how that's going to change, and what that change will encourage?

Horgan: What currently exists is what's called a surplus test, and tenure holders can't export logs without having demonstrated that there is no capacity in BC to add value to those logs. We're going to turn that upside-down. We're going to make sure that the committee that had been struck back when the previous log export policies came into place some 14 years ago are revisited, and that, again, will be a phased-in process. There's no specific fee. It's about incentives to those who want to invest in forestry, that want to add value to our logs, and it's also regulations to prohibit the reckless abandonment of the notion that our logs are attached to community.

I'll continue answering that question, because I think it's important. What I wanted to make abundantly clear to the Truck Loggers today, who have been 76 years an association in BC working on the coast and on the island, is that we need their sweat and capital to continue to grow our core sector. But we also need to send a signal to the investment community, that if there are dollars that want to come into our forest industry, we have fibre to meet that demand. We want to reduce the amount of logs going out and increase the amount of jobs being created from our logs.

Reporter: So are you bringing any incentives for companies to come?

Horgan: Yes. And that would be developed over the next number of months, working with industry, working with communities, working with trade unions who have been, again, a vital part of our forest industry going forward. And all of these people working together, indigenous communities, all of the people that have a footprint on the land base, is how we're going to find success. But over time, it's become effective profit-making to ship logs raw. If you're in Port Alberni and you're gone down from two shifts to one at the mill and you see logs going onto barges, that's offensive to you. It's offensive to me, and I think it's offensive to most BCers. We want to revitalize our forest sector on the coast. We want to make sure that we're creating more jobs from our fibre.

Reporter: Just regarding that fibre, you say there's emphasis on getting more of the wood waste out of the forest?

Horgan: That's right.

Reporter: What is the incentive for people to pull that out, because obviously that's in some hard-to-reach places and you can't get as much out of that fibre as you can actual timber.

Horgan: You can get pulp and paper, and we just had a significant investment by Paper Excellence in the former Catalyst Mills in Powell River, in Crofton, and in Port Alberni. They all need fibre to drive those mills. Much of that is found in waste, and we want to make it economical to get that waste to someone who can add value to it. And that means incentives to those who are working on the land when they're bringing logs out, but they also bring waste to the roadside so it's easily accessible. These are going to be incremental costs to those who are working in the woods, and that's where the incentives come in. The regulations are no more leaving piles of waste, they're not accessible to those who want to access that fibre, and that's where you have the carrot and the stick approach to this. It will be a cooperative way forward, and I'm confident that people want to see progress on these issues. Whether they're in the industry or not in the industry, they want to see more value from our forest, and we're intending to do that.

Reporter: Is there an incentive in areas near pulp and paper mills?

Horgan: Again, we've seen a decline in milling capacity over the past 15 years, some 40% reduction. Mills have closed, whether they've been pulp and paper, whether they've been sawmills. And sawmills have historically fed pulp mills, so when you lose a sawmill, you lose fibre for pulp and paper. All the waste that's being left behind can supplement those lost sawmills by bringing the fibre that's needed to market. The challenge is going to be to make that economic, and that's where we're going to work with the industry to make it happen.

Reporter: You received a big standing ovation when you were saying you were going to get rid of the market rate, but silence when you said that you were going to reduce exports and keep more of that here. You're talking about collaboration, working partnerships, all those wonderful words, but it sounds just in the room there, that silence. So how are you going to actually work with the logging companies and get them on your side?

Horgan: I wasn't just speaking to the room when it comes to raw log exports. I was speaking to BCers. And it doesn't take too long to walk down Burrard Street here in Vancouver or any street in any community in BC, and say would you prefer to see logs stay in BC and jobs created from our fibre, or do you prefer to see profits made by sending those logs away? The answer will be overwhelmingly, I want to see more value for my forests. The forests, the public lands of BC, belong to all of you, and everyone wants to see greater value added. The changes that were made by the BC Liberals have enabled log exports to be the easiest way to make quick money. We've seen Canadian companies investing in US mills, not investing in BC. We want to turn that around.

Reporter: So the question is, how are you going to get companies on your side?

Horgan: Again, we start by addressing the contracting issues. You saw enthusiasm. There is still work to be done there, but it's about, how do we bring in incentives to have investments, so that loggers have somewhere for the logs to go? If mills go down, it's not incumbent upon the Truck Loggers Association to recreate those mills. It's incumbent upon us to create a climate and environment where investment will come, as Paper Excellence has done, and start reinvesting in our forest industry. And that means by adding value to our wood and that is a job for government. The contractors that were sitting on their hands today when it comes to raw logs are concerned that the fastest way for them to continue their businesses is to continue with the status quo. But they just want to keep working. And they're happy to sell their logs to a Canadian company, but they don't have any right now. And that's the challenge for government, not for the contractors.

Reporter: I was wondering if you could tell me what kind of incentive compared to foreign companies are Canadian companies going to give to loggers when it comes to processing this wood?

Horgan: It goes back to this surplus test that has been the standard under the former government. We want to make sure that we are providing opportunities for logs coming out of our forest to have value added, or at least minimal manufacturing added to it. That is a challenge for government, not for the contractors that were here today. And again, I want to stress that I was speaking about forest policy. Some of that will be welcomed by the Truck Loggers Association, as you saw today. The rest of it is okay, show me. And that's my responsibility and Doug Donaldson's responsibility, to show the industry that we're going to put in place the incentives and the regulations to protect what is our commonwealth. These forests, public lands, belong to all BCers, indigenous and non-indigenous. We need to find a way forward that benefits everybody. I think people are going to be excited about this.

Reporter: You also mentioned unintended consequences as something that you're focusing on. Given that these companies are exporting, I'm assuming because it's cheaper for them to process it out there, if it's going to be more expensive for them to process it here, are you concerned about what that's going to mean for say, home builders, given our crisis right now? Just those consequences down the line, if it's more expensive for them to process here in Canada?

Horgan: I think everyone in the room today understands the challenges on the land base in BC, whether it's chasing a dwindling fibre supply, whether we're butting up against protected areas, butting up against old growth stands that are more valuable standing than they are laying down, these are issues that didn't arrive yesterday. They've been here for some time. And what I'm hopeful the TLA and those who are interested and passionate about forestry will take away from these initiatives, is that we're going to do our level best to put in place an environment that will encourage investment. We have the hottest economy in the country, low unemployment, strong growth rate, but our foundational industry, forestry, is percolating along, and there's lots of money being made, sufficient so that major companies are making significant investments in Sweden and the US, but not in BC. That's on us to resolve that, to see how we keep some of those dollars that are being made in our forests, but invest it off-shore. Shareholders are happy with that. BCers are not.

Reporter: The Greens and Liberals are critical of the speculation tax, saying your government is treating people like speculators, unless they can prove otherwise. Do you think having every title holder spend ten to 20 minutes to fill out a form every year is reasonable?

Horgan: I do. The alternative would be for me to say, dear speculators, please identify yourselves and let us know when you want to submit your speculation tax. Citizens fill out homeowner grants every year. You have to tick the box and send it back to get your homeowner grant. I've been doing that as long as I've lived in my house. I fill out an income tax form every year. It takes more than ten minutes, and I haven't complained about that. This is an additional activity to protect our housing sector, which has been buffeted by speculation. 99% of BCers will not be affected by this tax, and I think the Liberals and the Greens are making a tempest in a teapot. The Liberals, particularly, are forgetting that the crisis we find ourselves in was of their making, and the fact that someone is doing something about it may offend them, but it doesn't offend BCers. I'm confident that people will be quite happy to tick a box saying I do not speculate in the real estate market, and go out and find those that are, and make them pay the cost that will bring down housing prices for regular families and provide more opportunities for people to live and thrive in BC.

Reporter: On that note, you mentioned that fewer than 1% of BCers will actually be affected by this tax, so you bring up the homeowners grant as a way to compare...

Horgan: Income taxes. Everyone fills out income taxes.

Reporter: But so few people are going to be taxed on this, so how do you argue that everyone is going to have to fill out this form, 99%, yet so few people it's actually going to apply to?

Horgan: The counterargument is, dear speculator, please identify yourself. And I'm not confident that's the most effective way to identify speculation. These issues were debated in the Legislature. The Greens were fully briefed on it over and over again. The Liberals had opportunities in the Legislature to raise concerns if they had them. They didn't. I think the biggest challenge for BC Liberals is, we're trying to do something about speculation in the housing market, and they did nothing.

Reporter: Some experts in housing, a UBC expert I talked to today, said pre-screening could have been another option. Did you look at other alternatives, and if so, why did you decide on this?

Horgan: Carole James was managing this file. You can put that question to her. I'm not aware that we looked at pre-screening as an option, but Carole could certainly answer that question for you.

Reporter: How is your government planning to track the success of the speculation tax?

Horgan: There's a whole host of initiatives that we brought forward to address the housing crisis in BC, a 30-point plan. We're bringing on more supply. BC Housing has been as ambitious in the past 17 months as they've been in the past 17 years in bringing on non-market housing. We're working with communities to try and streamline processes so there can be faster approvals to bring on more supply. The federal government has taken on a number of initiatives that have dampened the real estate market in metropolitan areas across the country, and it's had a significant impact here in Vancouver. So measuring success for me is, are young people seeing opportunities to live here in homes here in BC, or are they continuing to be priced out because speculators are leaving homes vacant? And again, I want to stress the fastest way to avoid the speculation tax is if you have two or three or four homes, which is not, I suggest to you, the position of the majority of BCers, you can avoid the speculation tax by renting that second or third or fourth home in certain parts of BC, Metro Vancouver, the Lower Island, Nanaimo and Kelowna, you can avoid that by bringing that housing stock onto the market, which will drive down rent costs and address zero vacancy rates in some communities. That's how I measure success.

Reporter: What's being done to make sure homeowners understand the consequences of failing to fill out that form?

Horgan: I want to spend a minute on that. The consequences will be, if you find yourselves being advised that you're speculating on the real estate market and you're not, that can be resolved by a phone call and a conversation with the Ministry of Finance. We are not setting out to make life difficult for people. We're setting out to make sure that we're capturing the speculators. And the best way to do that is to say to homeowners, is your home occupied? That's pretty much what we're doing, here, and I don't think that's onerous, and I'm fairly confident that the benefit to the housing market, the benefit to BCers, will far outweigh the time it will take people to say that.

Reporter: There's going to be over a million homes that will be registered. Who is going to police this and check to see if what these people say is true?

Horgan: The Ministry of Finance has been working on this. It's the first tax of its kind in the country. We've been working for coming onto 18 months on this file. We talked about it in opposition. We've implemented it as government. And we're going to monitor it as it goes forward, and if there are issues that we need to address, we'll address them.

Reporter: Have you crunched the numbers in terms of what the amount will be of rental stock that could possibly come back into these markets that you talked about?

Horgan: We haven't, but we know that there are vacant homes, certainly in Vancouver. That's been identified by the work that was done by the former council to identify vacant homes and address that. But we do know that we have low vacancy rates in places like Kelowna, Victoria, Nanaimo, and if we can bring more stock on without having to build new stock, in other words, if there are homes that are now sitting vacant that we can now occupy with renters, that's going to be a net benefit to the community. A 30-point plan that includes a whole range of issues to address what was the most important issue during the election campaign. And again, I speak to my friends in the Liberal party, perhaps if they had awoken to this issue sooner, they wouldn't be in opposition complaining about it today.

Reporter: The speculation tax, do you think that seniors may get confused, since they don't know what they are doing?

Horgan: I don't think that seniors don't know what they're doing, but if there are challenges, we're going to make sure that we're there to help people along the way. We can do this by phone, you can do it online, you can do it by mail, and if you make a mistake, we'll be quick to resolve it. There's not going to be penalties on people who make a mistake. There will be penalties on those who are purchasing real estate and leaving it vacant. Speculating in our marketplace has led to a ridiculous increase in housing costs. We want to drive that down. The public wants us to drive that down, and 99% of BCers will not be affected by this at all. We're asking them to fill out a form as they do their income taxes, as they do their homeowner grants, in the interest of helping the next generation of BCers find a place to live. Good morning, Sage!

Do you happen to know if a transcript exists of John's speech at the TLA Convention this year? I know it's a very busy week so no rush, this can definitely wait. Thank you!

To whom it may concern,

I write from Australia to request a copy of a recent speech made by Hon. John Horgan at the annual Truck Loggers Convention regarding the Forest policy reforms to rebuild the coastal forest sector (<https://news.gov.bc.ca/releases/2019PREM0003-000046>).

We have interest in the issue, and I cannot seem to find a copy of the speech online anywhere.

Any assistance would be greatly appreciated.

Kind regards,

Horgan - forestry reforms & responsive government

By Horgan - 76th annual Truck Loggers Association Convention

John Horgan: Thank you very much for the introduction and for those who -- everyone knows what a joinery is? We were doing a little bit of discussion about that. I worked at the Cowichan joinery many, many years ago on Vancouver Island. We made a door jamb, a window sash and other things. I just pulled the wood and swept up the floor but it was a lucrative business for the owners at that time. I made a little bit of pocket money and it paid for my education.

I also spent some time in a pulp mill in Ocean Falls. I think I talked about that last year. Anyone ever been to Ocean Falls? Bless you. You can't go into a room and not find someone from Ocean Falls. If you've been in the swimming pool, you know that stroke, stroke, turn, stroke, stroke, turn is how you've got Olympic swimmers out of Ocean Falls.

It's great to be here again for my second go-around at TLA. I want to thank President Mike Richardson. I want to thank Dave Elstone for constantly being in our office -- people need to know that he is relentless. I'm not just trying to prop up his career. He is relentless -- you know that. Wherever I go, whether it's talking to people working in the forest industry in the Interior, in the Kootenays, in the north, Dave's always there making sure that I remember my roots as a Vancouver Islander and a coastal dweller, and the importance of TLA issues not just to you in this room but to the province broadly speaking.

To all the board members, to past president Jacqui -- who had the best lunch she's had in five years, I'm told -- and to the TLA staff, thanks very much for the work you do each and every day to maintain and support the good hard work of the members of the TLA here in the room today.

We have a number of members of the Legislature with me, my colleagues from cabinet -- Minister Jinny Sims, Minister of Citizens' Services, and of course Minister Doug Donaldson, Forests, Lands, Natural Resource Operations and Rural Development -- are both here from the government side. John Rustad and Jordan Sturdy are here from the opposition side, again, also friends of the forest industry. It's good to have a cross-section of the Legislature here to talk about the importance of the work that you do each and every day making it work.

I asked the piper if he knew Doug and the Slugs and he said he did, and he was going to -- he said if he'd been given another half an hour, he would've been able to bang out Making It Work on the pipes. Perhaps he's gone away to do that now. I said, you can either do Amazing Grace or that other song you do on the pipes, whatever that one is. It was nice to be piped in again and well done to everyone to make me welcome again. I really appreciate that.

Not only is the TLA making it work but we in government have been doing our level best to make it work as well. It's been 16.5 months -- coming on 17 months, actually, tomorrow -- since I was sworn in as the 36th Premier of BC. I want to certainly acknowledge what a great opportunity, a personal opportunity this has been for me. I am humbled by the opportunity.

I have been buffeted a bit by some of the challenges. Scott talked about the worst fire season ever, which you'll remember was followed by the worst fire season ever. That was my introduction by fire to the office of Premier. It was an opportunity for me to criss-cross the province to talk to people, not just forest fire fighters but people in industry, people in communities, and to recognize the true resilience of BC and the people who have the good fortune to live here.

I hope that the flood season that's about to come upon us with the freshet is not -- and I think it's going to rain for the next 60 days, if I've got the forecast, the weather right this morning -- I'm hopeful that the natural disaster part of my mandate is over and we can start focusing on some other issues. I think many people in the room will know John Allan, who I coerced out of retirement to come back and lead the ministry. John knows a good deal about forestry, as you know, and we're very grateful to have his expertise and experience at the cabinet table assisting Minister Donaldson and government to make sure that when we bring forward policy changes that they're consistent with what is needed in this room and what's needed in communities right across the province.

As your members know and all of you know, the land base is diverse and changing. Many of you have been in the industry for generations. Many of you have just started. I shared a story in the green room -- although I'm colourblind. Was it a green room? -- offstage before we came in about being at a wedding in Campbell River just not last summer but the summer before.

Of course, you're in Campbell River, it's a resource town. My goddaughter was getting married and there were a bunch of young people there, as happens at weddings. Everyone was told by the father of the groom to just leave them alone. Don't bug them. Just leave them alone. After a couple of drinks, as you know at a wedding, often times, people have something on their mind.

A couple of young guys came over and talked to me about forestry. They say, you're not going to wreck stuff, are you? They're really worried about that. I didn't take it personally, nor did I take it as a comment on the NDP. For at least the past 20 years, working in the woods, working in forestry has been challenging. Circumstances changing regularly, government policy changing regularly. Your challenges on the land base, whether it be in the Interior with pine beetle, whether it be addressing the needs of dwindling milling capacity, dwindling opportunities to move logs. It's led to an increase in raw log exports, which has led to a frustration in communities that are detached from industry, but they see wealth leaving BC without any value being added to it.

I know and you know it's a complicated issue but it's not one that we can continue to ignore. With a dwindling fibre basket, the challenges of old growth stands that need to be preserved, we need to find ways to work through all of those issues whether it's public perception or reality. The industry has been and will continue to be under a microscope.

The work that you do is important for your families. It's important for communities. It's also important for BCers. We need to address perception and we need to make sure that our reality is on a track that will benefit the people in this room and the people of the province.

I know that the TLA and others across the province have ideas about how we can renew our coastal forests. There is no magic. There is no solution that will come out of a bag that no one's thought of before. I am confident working with Dave the TLA executive and you at tables around this room and people in communities right across the coast, up and down the island and in the Interior and the Lower Mainland, we can find solutions to ensure that we continue to have a robust forest sector that will continue to provide wealth to the province, wealth to families and wealth to communities.

Finding the right solutions means that we have to work together. Although I'm grateful for the opportunity to speak to you today about coastal forestry, we need to make sure that we're focused on people, on communities and the lives that are so much affected by the work of your sector.

For too long, in my opinion, government's vision for the coastal forest sector has been to ship our natural resources somewhere else. For the last 20 years, employment on the coast has declined by about 40%. Lumber production has dropped by 45%, pulp production by 50%. At the same time, log exports from Crown land have increased by nearly ten-fold. The impact on communities has been profound. Mills have closed, small businesses have faltered, families have been forced to move away.

I said that I lived in Ocean Falls and Ocean Falls closed back in 1980. I left town and went on to do other things. People left Ocean Falls and they went to Gibsons, they went to Campbell River, they went to Gold River, they went to other places to make money in the forest sector. As time has gone by, the communities to move into have been dwindling. I'm seized of that as a born and raised Vancouver Islander and as a coastal dweller.

I am absolutely committed to making sure that we turn that around, that we ensure that the value that we get out of our forests from our dwindling fibre basket is put to work for you, put to work for your families and put to work for the people of BC. To continue on the track that we're on with respect to leaving too much waste in the woods and shipping too much product offshore without any value added to it is not sensible and it's not sustainable.

I believe there's a bright future in forestry on the coast and in the Interior. Paper Excellence's purchase of Catalyst, I think, sends a signal from the investment community that there is prospects for a greater tomorrow than we had yesterday. That future includes healthy companies, healthy contractors, strong indigenous participation and profitable and sustainable contracting in the industry by the people in this room.

The policy reforms that I'm going to be announcing today are the start of a process. I want to emphasize that. As I was saying to executive members not just today at lunch but in the meetings that I've had over the past 17 months -- 17 months tomorrow -- we need to work together on this. You know more about what's happening on the land base than I do. You know more about how you can better improve efficiencies of your operation than I do. Government can put in place incentives and regulations to develop an opportunity for investment to come here and give you more opportunities to move logs to different companies than the ones you're dealing with today.

How do we manage all of that? It's not to recreate the industry of 20 years ago. That's not going to happen. I get that, you get that, the public needs to get that. I'm determined to return our natural resource wealth to the communities where it comes from, to maximize the benefit to workers, to contractors and everyone that relies on forestry in BC. To that end, I'm pleased to say that we've completed the contractor sustainability review. We'll be moving forward with regulatory changes that will eliminate the fair market rate test, effective as soon as Mr Allan and Mr Donaldson can get that done.

That's the result of hard work by many of the people in this room to make that happen. Doug will have more details on that tomorrow as we roll out the plans. We're moving ahead with other reforms as well that will affect the industry in four key areas. I'm just going to run through those.

Firstly, we're going to rebuild our solid wood and secondary industries by processing more fibre in BC. Simply put, we're going to make sure that more timber can be processed here in BC communities. To accomplish that, we're going to reform raw log export policies. We're going to discourage high grading and curtail the export of minimally processed lumber. This will be a phased-in process and will apply first to new sales through BC Timber Sales programs. Again, this is not going to be the stroke of a pen, a magic wand -- it's going to be hard work but I want to leave no doubt that we are not going to continue to send away unprocessed material to be processed somewhere else, sometimes just a few miles from where we're just having our lunch today. That's not acceptable to me. It's not acceptable to BCers.

We will find a way through incentives and regulations, through carrots and sticks, to make that happen. We know and I know and you know that you can't force people to invest in unprofitable ventures. I get that. You get that. There's no magic here -- it's going to be hard work and it's going to be commitment by all of us to make sure that we can continue to thrive with the forest that we have as we grow the sustainable industry going forward.

Secondly, we're going to improve harvest performance to decrease waste and ensure more fibre is made available for domestic manufacturers, including the pulp and paper sector. This means greater utilization and increased penalties for waste, creating the fibre recovery zone on Vancouver Island and the south coast to make more fibre available for pulp and other activities.

Thirdly, we're going to take steps to prevent surrogate bidding on timber sales. That will ensure that timber sale auctions are fair and free from manipulation by surrogate bidders.

Finally, we are fostering stronger business-to-business relationships. This means it's going to take a number of forms. As an example, the ministry is going to pool volumes across BC Timber Sales with First Nations and other licensees to ensure that we're finding and maximizing economies to scale so that we can use our fibre more effectively. That's all of us working together -- BC Timber Sales, indigenous communities, contractors, tenure holders. Again, I don't want to leave any room for misunderstanding here. This means things are going to be done differently and that we are going to reduce the number of logs that leave BC and increase the amount of activity that we can get out of each log that you take out of the forest.

This is a conscious and deliberate strategy. I want to make that absolutely clear. It is going to be a phased-in process and it will take time to figure out. We were talking about unintended consequences. What I've learned as a member of the opposition for way too long -- and for John and Jordan, I've got some pointers, I can help you out on getting through some of those dark days -- what I learned as an opposition member, what I learned as someone working in the industry, what I learned over the past 16-and-a-bit months as Premier is that there are always unintended consequences. Government needs to be responsive to that.

If we make a mistake as we go forward with these four key changes, we're going to be responsive to that change. There is advantage in being a minority government. Again, I keep talking about what we had at lunch. We should've just had live mics here. It would've been a shorter speech. If there are unintended consequences, government should respond quickly to that. Majority governments tend to sit back and say, well, we'll figure that out over time. Minority governments have to figure it out every day.

I have to be responsive to your membership and to people in communities across BC every day. If we make a mistake, I'm not going to hold fast to that mistake because it was mistake. I'm going to try and fix it. That's the mandate that Doug's been given and that's what we intend to do.

Lastly, I want to talk about one area that I think is critically important. We're going to make amendments to the Forest and Range Practices Act to support the revitalization initiative by returning to district managers the authority to manage the land base. They know more about what's going on on the land base than I do. They know more about what's going on on the land base than Doug does. We're not going to second-guess the people you have to work with each and every day. We're going to make the assumption that you and they are going to work in good faith to get the best outcomes off the land, the most fibre to the most people to create the most value for BCers.

I think that transparency is wanted by the public and it will help us with the question of perception over reality by making sure that everybody knows what's going on, why it's going on and it'll be driven by your ability to meet the tests that government has put forward for you, whether it be 20 years ago, whether it be 10 years ago, whether it will be in the next 10 weeks. We have every confidence that you'll be able to adapt.

You in this room and the forest sector has adapted decade after decade to changing circumstances, changing fibre profiles, changing circumstances in the marketplace. Softwood lumber agreements have come and gone. Price have gone up. We've had an extraordinary run over the past 12 months of the highest prices anyone has ever seen. We can't depend on high prices to mask the challenges that you know well are there for all of us to address.

We need to support all of this by making sure that wealth generation capacity in the forest is there for you, for your families, for your companies and for the communities that you operate in. Wherever I go, I talk to mayors, I talk to councillors, I talk to walkers, I talk to contractors. They all have one common theme -- that is wanting to continue to work in the forest industry that has been feeding families for 150 years at least. It also means reconciliation on the land base with indigenous communities.

My government has undertaken what is absolutely a transformative discussion with indigenous communities. Some of that has been represented on television screens recently in the north when it comes to the differences between hereditary and elected leadership. These are challenges for you every day. These are challenges for government every day. Equally important, these are challenges for indigenous communities every day. It's not up to me or us or you to tell indigenous communities how to manage their government, how to manage the way they work with you.

My job -- our job -- is to make sure that we're making a seamless transition from what we know to what we know we have to get to. A couple of examples that I want to talk about when it comes to reconciliation, two of them very close to me on Vancouver Island. BC Timber Sales recently entered into quite a unique agreement with the Pacheedaht First Nation and the Cowichan Lake Community Forest in what's called Qala:yit Community Forest just north of Port Renfrew in my constituency, and the Huu-ay-aht First Nations have entered into an arrangement with Western Forest Products to purchase a portion of TFL 44 and they plan to acquire more.

The face of forestry will be changing. The ability for all of us to work together remains the same. Again, I look back over what has been my time here on Vancouver Island -- which is my entire life -- things have changed decade after decade after decade. One common theme is indigenous communities have always been here. They always will be here. You have always been working in the forest. You want to continue working in the forest. That relationship can only get better. It couldn't get any worse than it was 25, 20, 15 years ago. We are on the brink of successes when it comes to reconciliation that will open up our economy not just for indigenous communities but for all of us.

That is a task worth fighting for. That is a task that I've set for all of my ministers in every mandate letter I sent out, whether it was to Jinny at Community [sic] Services or Doug at Forestry. We need to reconcile with indigenous communities so that we can all move forward in a positive way. We've seen real results from that in the Broughton Archipelago when it comes to salmon aquaculture. Again, I should've written some of this stuff down.

Just before Christmas, we announced a groundbreaking agreement between Marine Harvest and other operators in the Broughton Archipelago with the indigenous communities there to move some fish farms out of the migratory routes for wild salmon and provide opportunities for continued employment, continued economic development but sovereignty on that land base for the people who have been there for millennia.

People, myself included, didn't think that was possible. Yet there we were, just before Christmas, announcing a groundbreaking agreement that will lead to prosperity on the coast, prosperity on the north island where it's desperately needed, and a way forward for every other sector in the province. The UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People is not a veto. It is an opportunity -- an opportunity for all of us to share the benefits and splendour of this spectacular province.

I want to thank you all very much for your patience and perseverance on the land base. I want you to know that you have a partner in me. We will have some bumps along the road but you've seen bumps before. You've overcome those bumps before. Again, with your help and co-operation with the work of newly minted, fresh as a daisy John Allan in the deputy's chair, and Doug Donaldson as minister, we're going to continue to work with the TLA and everyone who wants to work with us so that we can have the prosperity that we all want for ourselves and we want for other BCers. Thank you for the opportunity to talk to you. I look forward to little unintended consequences and lots of optimism and positivity going forward. Thanks very much.

I forgot the important part because I didn't write it down. That was on training. We have the lowest unemployment rate in the country. We're hovering around four to 4.4% unemployment, which means difficulty recruiting and retaining workers. You know that full well. We've been talking with TLA and I and others in the industry about how we can assist with training the next generation of workers in the forest sector. There have been some very innovative ideas coming from the TLA executive. We're taking that back to Minister Donaldson and Minister Melanie Mark, responsible for Skills Training.

We're closing up Budget 2019 right now. It'll be tabled in less than a month. I wanted to make the commitment today -- and I'm looking at Dave. He's nodding vigorously, so that'll be one less meeting we'll have to have, Dave. That's good. I understand the challenges that you have recruiting and retaining workers, the challenges of training outside of the classroom and how do we make sure that you can bring on younger people, younger men and women who want to be part of the forest industry without it being debilitating for you. Government has a responsibility to help you train people to help your businesses grow. We're committed to doing that. We'll have more to say about that in the weeks ahead.

I don't want to lead anyone to the view that in the next budget there's going to be a windfall for training. We are fixated on trying to address -- I mean, I don't know if you've noticed, I keep referring to young John Allan. None of us are getting any younger. We need to make sure that the next generation that's going to replace the people around these tables, to replace the executives of the TLA, are getting the training they need now so they're going to be there for all of us in the future. When those hip replacements are going to be needed by all of you, we need young people to making all that happen.

That's the last thing I'll say about that. Training money is to come. Thanks a lot.

I write from Australia to request a copy of a recent speech made by Hon. John Horgan at the annual Truck Loggers Convention regarding the Forest policy reforms to rebuild the coastal forest sector (<https://news.gov.bc.ca/releases/2019PREM0003-000046>).

We have interest in the issue, and I cannot seem to find a copy of the speech online anywhere.

Any assistance would be greatly appreciated.

Subject: For review: Women's Memorial March letter 2019

Checked with Minister Fraser & Minister Mark. Going to PS Dean now.

Today, because of years of work led by Indigenous women, family, and community members, thousands of people will gather on the unceded territories of the Musqueam, Squamish and Tsleil-Waututh First Nations to commemorate and honour the lives of the women and girls who have been murdered or gone missing in Vancouver's Downtown Eastside. It is with sincere regret that we are unable to walk with you in this year's 28th Annual Women's Memorial March.

For many, February 14th is Valentine's Day. But for those who march, this date has a different meaning. It is a day of remembrance, when community comes together to honour and celebrate the lives of all the women who were unjustly taken from their families and communities. These women and girls are not a statistic. They are loved, and we honour the determination, courage and resilience of the families and communities who keep their memories alive. These women are mourned but they will not be forgotten.

It is also a day to hold those in authority to account. For 28 years, the February 14th Annual Women's Memorial March has been a leading voice calling for action to end violence against Indigenous women and girls. Our government shares this commitment. We will work together to support the safety and well-being of women and girls and we commit daily to doing all that we can to prevent the conditions that cause them to experience violence, poverty, homelessness, and racism in violation of their human rights.

Thank you to the organizers, volunteers and all those who continue to advocate for change. While we cannot be with you in person, we march in step with you in spirit and recommit to our promise to work alongside you so that women and girls can thrive in our communities free of violence, intolerance, and fear.

Hi Sage,

Please see the attached BG for the Premier's meeting with the City of Williams Lake tomorrow. This BG includes a BN from EMPR on the EPA extension for the NWE Williams Lake biomass facility.

We also included a section on wildfires, which was originally requested but may not be discussed at the meeting.

Thanks,

As you may be aware the Premier's Office has very strict demands upon the preparation of speaking materials and presentations on the part of the premier. We will need to see the full scope of content proposed for PJT at his March 12 opening address to the upcoming Tech Summit no later than next Monday, February 11.

I recall that last year at the same event the premier promised to return this year with an announcement concerning the tech strategy. I appreciate we are no longer reaching for this – but I'm uncertain as to how we are characterizing or otherwise framing his contribution to this year's event.

Depending upon the assessment of content we may be faced with a choice as to whether it is necessary to reconfigure the premier's role.

Thanks for your attention to this.

Making life better for people at the heart of government Throne Speech

By John Horgan, Premier of British Columbia

Making life more affordable, improving the services people count on, and making sure everyone benefits from B.C.'s strong economy, was the heart of our government's third speech from the throne.

The Throne Speech sets out the progress we've made, and the choices our government is making, to fix problems and make life better for people in B.C.

Everyone deserves the opportunity to build a good life in the communities they call home, with housing and child care they can afford, quality public services like health care and education, good jobs and a better future.

For years, choices were made for the few at the top, while life became more difficult for everyone else. Our government is making different choices and working to build a better B.C. for everyone.

Instead of letting costs rise, our government is working to put money back in people's pockets. To tackle the housing crisis, we've taken action to build more housing, curb speculation, and improve security for renters, and we're getting results. B.C.'s housing market is finally beginning to moderate after years of spiraling out of control.

Our $1 billion investment in child care has lowered costs for families, increased the number of licensed spaces, and delivered the highest quality of care for B.C. kids. It's good for parents, good for kids, and good for the economy.

To help people struggling to make ends meet, our government has cut MSP premiums in half and will eliminate fees entirely by Jan. 1, 2020. To help the 22 million passengers who travel on BC Ferries each year, we've frozen ferry fares on major routes and provided discounts on minor and northern routes for the second consecutive year.

Instead of letting communities fend for themselves, we are delivering the services people count on. That includes faster, better access to health care, with a network of urgent primary care centres, new hospitals, more MRIs and more hours of care for seniors. To give our kids the best possible start, we are hiring thousands of more teachers and building and upgrading schools around the province to make them safer.

Instead of working only for the wealthy few, our government is working to make sure people benefit from the strength of our economy. The CleanBC climate plan will make sure we are protecting this beautiful province, while building a strong and sustainable future. Created in partnership with the BC Green Caucus, CleanBC is government's roadmap to reduce emissions and create an innovative, low-carbon economy.

We're encouraging economic growth across sectors by investing in people and the infrastructure and services communities need. We're also encouraging sustainable growth in B.C.'s traditional industries— and working to increase local processing, Indigenous partnerships, and jobs for local workers and communities. And we're opening the doors to skills training, so people can be part of the skilled workforce B.C. needs.

From revenue sharing to economic development, First Nations must be full participants in decisions that affect their rights and lands, and share in the prosperity of this province, to benefit everyone in B.C. It's all part of delivering a strong, sustainable economy that works for people, now and into the future.

Making life better for people starts with the choices we make every day. Today and every day, our government is going to keep working hard to make life better for people.

Our AGM and conference covers a range of topics relevant to community forests and the communities that manage them, including community wildfire protection, climate change mitigation, and First Nations reconciliation and representation. We welcome you or your representative to come and speak to our members and to attend some or all of the conference.

Please see the attached letter for more detailed information. We look forward to hearing from you!

Hi

I am editing this year's Invest in BC guide on behalf of the British Columbia Economic Development Association and I was wondering who I should contact to obtain a letter of greeting from the Premier to appear in the front of the guide. You can find an example of last year's letter on p. 7 of the guide here: <https://biv.com/magazine/invest-bc-2018>

Can we meet to discuss next week? The earlier the better.

We are definitely getting info later these days. It really helps even if we just have TBCs in advance, so we can plan.

Erin is updating work flows at the moment, so perhaps we can discuss that as well?

Talk soon!

Hi Sage,

Sorry for the delay on this. I just heard back from Carla at TAC. She asked PavCo for the full lists from previous years, and they replied with the following:

"BC Place and the Convention Centre typically light up for more than 100 initiatives per year, including everything from Autism Awareness, Big Brothers and Big Sisters, United Way, World Mental Health Day, Breast Cancer Awareness, World AIDS Day and many more – both local and international in scope.

Most of these lightings are initiated by the charitable organization, or by our staff who proactively seek initiatives to support.

Last year we specifically engaged with government on a couple of occasions:

- Multiculturalism Week Awareness - Friday, November 23rd (MTAC)
- International Overdose Awareness Day - Friday, August 31st (Ministry of Health)"

Carla thinks it's might take a little while for them to compile the list. Are we okay to move forward with the list I sent, or would you prefer to wait for PavCo to send theirs?

Thanks!

Hi Jen & Sage,

Just a reminder about this list of awareness days that we are suggesting BC Place, the cauldron at the Convention Centre, and the fountain here at the Leg be lit up for. This list is by request of TAC.

There is no major rush on this, but our first suggested day is Holocaust Memorial Day, which is January 27th.

Thanks!

Hi Jen,

TAC has requested a list of awareness days that we'd like BC Place and the cauldron at the Convention Centre to be lit up for. Here is a list of our suggestions, along with the full calendar of statements from 2018. I'll also be in touch with IGRS about lighting up the Leg and the fountain.

Let us know what you think!

On Budget Day, Rob, Molly and I are available to give a budget briefing to MAs and other staff in the evening (~6:30pm). Would that be helpful?

We're also reaching out to Roseanne to offer a briefing for CAs the morning after budget.

The only thing I would add (and this may be specific to the Premier's office), is who is responsible for approval from the politician on the plan to go ahead. Also I would include proposed timing of interview, and whether the interview is live or pre-taped.

Hi Robyn,

CBC Radio-Canada is looking for Minister Dix to do a few clips in French re the Budget tomorrow morning. They often come to him for French clips on a variety of topics as they are accustomed to working with him as Minister Responsible for Francophone Affairs. Would Minister James like him to take the interview and are there KMs in French or could we work with IGR to develop some asap (no time for the 3 day turnaround for translation in Montreal).

Hi Liam:

As per our conversation last night, MOL would very much like to create more distinct separation between the introduction of our Bills this session.

We are ready to introduce the Workers Compensation Act – cancer presumptions next week on February 26, although March 5 would be optimal.

We would like to move the Employment Standards Act – worker protection priorities to April 29 or 30 to allow us to make an announcement about the removal of the self-help kit on or about May 1st.

Thanks for your assistance on this.

Karen

Hey,

Just wanted to check in and make sure you had the info below on tentative introduction and LRC dates for your Ministry's legislation, as well as to ensure if/when you have any updates to let us know. General reminders about what to do when introducing a bill are below and scripts are attached.

Ministry	Initiative	LRC Date	Notes	Bill Intro
LBR	Labour Relations Code — comprehensive review	26-Mar		08-Apr
LBR	Employment Standards Act — worker protection priorities	05-Mar		10-Apr
LBR	Workers Compensation Act — cancer presumptions	13-Feb		11-Apr

Reminders:

Got a piece of legislation coming? Wondering what's next? See the guide below...

How a bill becomes law: <http://members.leg.bc.ca/work-of-mla/bills-legislation.htm>

Before you introduce your bill:

- I. Your Minister will present to Cabinet LRC as the final step in the bill drafting process
- II. Get a bill binder from your Ministry that should include a 1st reading speech (~2min), 2nd reading speech (5-20min), key messages and list of Q and A's
 - a. This could also include things such as op-eds, draft tweets and facebook posts, etc
 - b. Speeches should be checked against the scripts attached
- III. Send a digital copy of the items contained in the bill binder to Angela Giuliano and Ed May for distribution to Caucus
- IV. Create communications plan, stakeholder outreach, organise event, guests in the gallery for bill introduction or Royal Assent dates, announcement, digital strategy, etc if required
- V. Work with Roseanne to organize Caucus briefing
- VI. Talk with CASA about offering Green caucus a briefing

Day of introduction

- You will get the physical copy of the bill to be tabled from House Leader's Office
- During Introduction of bills your minister will rise, table the bill, and read their 1st reading/introductory remarks (depending on the day this happens either first thing in the morning or afternoon, 10am or 1:30pm)

After introduction

- The Bill will usually sit on the order paper for a day or two at a minimum before 2nd reading debate begins (this allows all MLA's the chance to read/review the new legislation)
- This is also a good time to offer a bill briefing to your Liberal opposition critic (can also be done before the introduction as long as the draft bill and clauses contained therein are not provided)

As always, feel free to get in touch if there are any questions/concerns,

Hello Team,

Congrats on Budget 2019 – so many good things in there!

On Friday, February 22, Minister Ralston volunteers to do a tour of Korean language media outlets to talk about all the good news in the budget.

If you agree, he would visit the offices of the major Korean-language outlets in the Lower Mainland (Joongang Ilbo, Vanchosun, and Hankookin).

If there are other outlets / venues that Minister James would like him to visit – just say the word and we'll get there.

If you approve of the Korean-language tour, let me know and I'll get things confirmed.

Cheers

Message for the conference. I've highlighted the govt investments section.

Message from Premier John Horgan to the 2019 #BCTECHSummit Investment Showcase

Welcome to the 2019 #BCTECHSummit Investment Showcase in beautiful Vancouver, British Columbia. We're excited to once again host the #BCTECHSummit. B.C. is brimming with creative innovators, researchers and industry leaders who are pushing the boundaries of technology, growing innovation in every sector of the economy, and finding ways to improve people's lives every day.

The #BCTECHSummit Investment Showcase is an opportunity to connect promising entrepreneurs with investors from around the world. This year's showcase will see dozens of startups in clean tech, life sciences and information communication technology put their best foot forward. The pitch list is impressive with presentations in robotics, wearable technology, data analytics and 3D immersive software, among others.

British Columbia's tech sector is a vibrant industry with more than 10,500 companies and 114,000 employees across the province helping to grow a sustainable economy across all sectors. Our government is working collaboratively to make sure B.C. is a leader in tech, and our region is a global hub of innovation and connectivity.

We're providing important investments to promising B.C. companies through the BC Tech Fund, research infrastructure at post-secondary institutions, and state-of-the-art research at our national particle accelerator, TRIUMF.

We're also investing in people, through co-ops, scholarships and tech-related post-secondary spaces, to make sure we have the talent to grow B.C. innovation and tech now and into the future.

British Columbia is an appealing place for companies of all sizes to invest. Our government will keep working with trade partners to attract investment and expand global markets, while we make B.C. a great place for everyone who works and lives here. Innovate BC is building on this advantage, and hosting the #BCTECHSummit is a big part of that.

There is much to celebrate and I am confident that the future is bright for B.C. innovators.

Good luck to everyone in today's showcase!

Sincerely,

John Horgan, Premier of British Columbia

People raise this issue with me all the time.

We have known for some time that British Columbians are very passionate on this topic.

With the changes we're seeing south of the border we're going to have to monitor this closely.

With Washington and California both considering moving away from Daylight Savings time and an opportunity to partner with them arises, I am prepared to take this to the next level of consultation with the residents of British Columbia.

We will be honouring Kaye Kaminishi, the last surviving member of the Asahi Baseball Team with a lifetime achievement award as well as awarding our youth bursary to a local Japanese-Canadian youth baseball group.

This is for next Monday. Condo Registry and PSSG's Payday loan regulation. I meant to send this on Friday but it got lost amidst other things that day, my apologies for the delay.

Hi All,

Just checking in on this again for two reasons. First, it is in the Corp Cal as a news release only for the 25th. I understood it to be something that the Minister would like to do an avail about.

Further on that, Minister Farnworth is introducing legislation on the 25th to regulate pay day lenders – it is a second phase of sorts following up on something else we have already done.

s.13

Let me know what you think about that. It would likely need to be a mid afternoon presser as we'd have to wait for the bill to be introduced.

Thanks

Dear John Horgan:

I'm inquiring to ask if you might be willing to participate in an on-camera interview for a local documentary on Frankie Edroff (formerly Jeneece).

We would love the opportunity to include your perspective and insights as a lifelong Islander and as the Premier of BC on Frankie's fundraising efforts and work to create Jeneece Place, the affirmation of his trans male identity and his inspiring life story. We would also love to discuss your own work to make BC a more diverse and welcoming province, and get some context on any challenges you've encountered in making our institutions more inclusive.

Ideally, we could film a one-on-one interview with you, followed by a brief discussion between yourself and Frankie, who has many ideas for future policies to improve life for trans people in BC.

We are filming our remaining interviews this month through April and would be honoured for the chance to include you in our project at a date and location of your convenience.

Our film, Penny Girl, will premiere on Telus Optik in June, 2019, followed by presentations in film festivals and on CHEK TV.

Thank you kindly for your time and consideration and all that you do.

Yours,

Hi Liam:

As per our conversation last night, MOL would very much like to create more distinct separation between the introduction of our Bills this session.

We are ready to introduce the Workers Compensation Act – cancer presumptions next week on February 26, although March 5 would be optimal.

We would like to move the Employment Standards Act – worker protection priorities to April 29 or 30 to allow us to make an announcement about the removal of the self-help kit on or about May 1st.

Thanks for your assistance on this.

Hey,

Just wanted to check in and make sure you had the info below on tentative introduction and LRC dates for your Ministry's legislation, as well as to ensure if/when you have any updates to let us know. General reminders about what to do when introducing a bill are below and scripts are attached.

Ministry	Initiative	LRC Date	Notes	Bill Intro
LBR	Labour Relations Code — comprehensive review	26-Mar		08-Apr
LBR	Employment Standards Act — worker protection priorities	05-Mar		10-Apr

Reminders:

Got a piece of legislation coming? Wondering what's next? See the guide below...

How a bill becomes law: <http://members.leg.bc.ca/work-of-mla/bills-legislation.htm>

Before you introduce your bill:

- I. Your Minister will present to Cabinet LRC as the final step in the bill drafting process
- II. Get a bill binder from your Ministry that should include a 1st reading speech (~2min), 2nd reading speech (5-20min), key messages and list of Q and A's
 - a. This could also include things such as op-eds, draft tweets and facebook posts, etc
 - b. Speeches should be checked against the scripts attached
- III. Send a digital copy of the items contained in the bill binder to Angela Giuliano and Ed May for distribution to Caucus
- IV. Create communications plan, stakeholder outreach, organise event, guests in the gallery for bill introduction or Royal Assent dates, announcement, digital strategy, etc if required
- V. Work with Roseanne to organize Caucus briefing
- VI. Talk with CASA about offering Green caucus a briefing

Day of introduction

- You will get the physical copy of the bill to be tabled from House Leader's Office
- During Introduction of bills your minister will rise, table the bill, and read their 1st reading/introductory remarks (depending on the day this happens either first thing in the morning or afternoon, 10am or 1:30pm)

After introduction

- The Bill will usually sit on the order paper for a day or two at a minimum before 2nd reading debate begins (this allows all MLA's the chance to read/review the new legislation)
- This is also a good time to offer a bill briefing to your Liberal opposition critic (can also be done before the introduction as long as the draft bill and clauses contained therein are not provided)

As always, feel free to get in touch if there are any questions/concerns,

Hi Sage,

Here are rough storyboards for the three ads that are going to testing tonight. You'll see a lot more PDFs than three so here's the explanation:

- Benefits FINAL: 30s ad that is hard to show in storyboard because it "looks" like it's all happening on a single plane. In fact, I think the camera is kind of pushing forward constantly, and as soon as one "bag" is removed, the next one comes into view. This one is good because it's very "here's stuff we're doing", wrapped in 'making life better' messaging.
- One Day in the Park FINAL: Love this spot but there's no way we're doing it right now. But I still want to test it and hold it. It is a drone shot that moves around the park and we see character sets basically acting as visual icons of budget benefits. I included it in testing because I love the idea of it, but ain't no way we're committing that much production money on a weather-related roll of the dice.

- Budget Series FINALS (Family Budget, Healthy Budget, Smart Budget): These are all 15s spots. In each one, our main character is looking a little glum, then as budget benefits are rattled off, their mood changes. I like the people feel of this one.

In all cases, we're going for very broad casting, so it has a diverse look. Then, we're going to do English, Punjabi and Chinese V/Os for appropriate TV stations.

Lemme know if you have questions. Link is below. PW is s.15

I have done many interviews, and much research, and need to bounce my information off someone knowledgeable on your end – for my background only and off-the-record chat.

Also, I will check with you for further details on the $22-billion in tax revenue over 40 years from LNG Canada's spinoff benefits (which if I recall, excludes the impact of workers' personal income taxes paid).

Hi Mira,

We are very honoured and excited to have the Premier speak at the Nikkei Place Foundation's dinner in March. We will be honouring Kaye Kaminishi, the last surviving member of the Asahi Baseball Team with a lifetime achievement award as well as awarding our youth bursary to a local Japanese-Canadian youth baseball group.

I've attached here a Speaker Confirmation letter with details on the event as well as some background on our charity. I am also attaching a draft Press Release as well as cc-ing our Communications Manager, Lindsay Fong here. Please review and let us know how we should include the Premier's name in our marketing materials.

Dear Premier Horgan,

On behalf of the Shakti Awards planning committee, I would like to take this opportunity to cordially invite you to the Shakti Awards Gala on March 9th, 2019.

The Shakti Awards were introduced as a celebration of International Women's Day in 2000. Over the years they have grown to a much anticipated annual event where prominent and everyday women are acknowledged and celebrated. This year we are expecting approximately 500 guests at this formal event. Along with celebrating the success of the award recipients, attendees will be inspired by the shared wisdom of our keynote speaker as well as dinner and entertainment.

The Shakti Awards Gala will be held on Saturday, March 9th at 6:30 p.m. at the Bollywood Banquet Hall, 8166 128 Street, in Surrey. Awards will be presented along with a full dinner and entertainment.

The funds raised through the Shakti Awards Gala have allowed us to provide scholarships to deserving girls from inner city schools in the lower mainland and to fund Shakti: Empowerment of Women, Children and Families Society. This non-profit society is dedicated to empowering women, families and children, as well as working with underprivileged members of our community.

We have organized annual community events like Wellness Days in partnership with SFU, Surrey Campus and other community organizations and 'Community Cafes on Sexual Violence and Violence against women' in partnership with Battered Women's Support Services and other agencies. We hold monthly healing circles and luncheons for women, to help them connect with their inner strength and with other like-minded individuals. We offer one on one support and referrals to women and men seeking help around abusive relationships, employment, parenting and other issues.

We will be honoured to have your presence at the Shakti Awards. We sincerely hope that you can join us and support the work that we do. For further information regarding the event, confirm your participation or to purchase tickets, please contact Sonia Andhi at 604-307-8796 or email us at shaktisociety2000@gmail.com.

Let's come together and celebrate women and acknowledge those who have made a difference in our communities. We thank you for your support.

Thank you.

Hi Eric / Sage,

Since Shauna's arrival at TAC, she has worked wonders to get the Strategic Tourism Framework ready for next Friday's (March 1) Tourism Industry Conference 2019 in Vancouver. The almost-final draft is attached. This needs GCPE review of the Minister's Message and probably a quick review of the framework itself in order to go to print.

This document was initially referred to as a "tourism strategy" and on that basis would have been expected to go through the committee process. As the content developed, it became clear that it was a framework brochure intended for BC's tourism sector, and on that basis committee review was not necessary. TAC has worked closely with our office in developing the document and has had comments from other ministries.

I'm not sure who on the GCPE side would be able to give this a quick review, but if you could let me know or forward it on that would be fantastic. Don approves the content as-is, pending any minor edits that may be noted by fresh eyes reviewing the document. Hi,

The Seattle Times has followed up with us on the conversation between Mayor Durkan and the Premier, and we who were on the call provided a summary of the conversation to our Comms team. They plan to provide the statement below my signature to the Times, with the background information provided only as background (not to be used in the article).

I just wanted to make you aware before they ship this out.

s.13; s.16

Please let me know if you have any questions.

"Mayor Durkan and Premier Hogan had a productive conversation, and both share a commitment to protecting our environment and climate. Mayor Durkan reiterated her concerns with logging and mining in the Donut Hole or Silverdaisy Area in the Upper Skagit Watershed. The Mayor and the Premier committed their respective governments to working together on these issues moving forward."

BACKGROUND

As you previously reported, the Mayor believes that Seattle considers logging to be contrary to the intent of the 1984 High Ross Treaty and the risk of increased sediment threaten the bull trout population in Ross Lake.

With respect to issuing any future permits, the Premier expressed his appreciation for Seattle bringing these concerns to his attention and agreed to consider the concerns that the Mayor raised. The Premier asked that Seattle provide any additional reports supporting our concerns regarding the impacts additional logging would have on water quality, which we intend to do.

Regarding mining claims that have kept the Donut Hole property from being included in the BC Provincial Parks system, the Mayor suggested that those rights be acquired and asked for the Premier's assistance on getting the Donut Hole into protected status as soon as possible.

Hi folks,

Have spent some time with Lele and Shurti this morning to get their feedback on how to proceed. Here are the next steps, let's discuss when you have a minute.

Per the back and forth yesterday, in language tax folks will be paired with MLAs for all these QAs. The other day you suggested Spencer be the MLA spokesperson – Lele agrees he is a good fit. For Punjabi, Shruti recommends MLA Brar.

We are happy to reach out to Spencer – have you given him a heads up?

We are in the process of scheduling media training and practice for staff and recommend that they attend in studio (staffed by me) to better triage questions and strategize response. I anticipate the answer staff will have to offer most frequently is, “it sound like you have a special case – you need to speak to someone at the call centre so we can help you”.

Here's a sum up of what's on the books:

RedFM:

- Will take place in studio, on a Friday.
- MLA Brar + in language tax expert (Kally).

Fairchild:

- Will take place Monday – Friday, 5-6pm.
- In studio.
- SCH + in language tax expert.

AM 1320:

- Will take place on a Saturday, 10-11 or 11-12
- In studio.
- SCH + in language tax expert.

Please see the attached March Statement Calendar for your approval. This has been reviewed by Lele, Shruti and the Digital team. I'm just waiting to hear back from Stakeholder Relations.

As for the IWD statement on March 8th, GEO is no longer launching a 1-year progress report on that day, so they are asking if we would like to do a joint statement. Please advise.

Something to think about?

A new cricket field is to be built in North Delta. And when that happens it would perhaps be a good opportunity for the Premier to inaugurate it, considering his love for the game.

Hi again – just got off the phone with David. We can consider this response approved by both ministries. Don or Liam, can one of you send it on up the chain to whoever else should review before we consider it final?

Proposed Response:

- We can confirm the previous government provided $30,000 to support for the
Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal
Coalition (WMC).
- The coalition still exists today.
They are incorporated federally and the details are available online here.

- We recommend you connect with the WMC directly to confirm current membership.

Thanks,

Sarah.

Matrilineal Coalition
queries

Hi David and FYI Sarah,

What is the current status of the
Wet'suwet'en
Matrilineal Coalition,
which received $30,000
in funding from each of the previous BC Liberal government and
Coastal GasLink?

I am told that Gloria George, Theresa Tait-Day and Darlene Glaim are still directors (Darlene temporarily stepped down in 2017).

They told me that the coalition still exists and has not been dismantled. Could you confirm?

Also, who are the other directors? (At one point, there were two others, including Herb Naziel, if I recall).

I have finished a draft of my upcoming story. It is now scheduled to be posted online on Sunday and published in Monday's Globe print edition (though that could change if there is breaking news that bumps my story).

For now, I would need your response by noon PT on Saturday, though this afternoon would be better.

I could insert your details tomorrow, but I will be filing my story for editing late this afternoon to get the ball rolling on the editing process.

I see that the BC NDP government's Indigenous Relations Minister Scott Fraser met in May, 2018, with Wet'suwet'en

hereditary chiefs, but those meetings did not include the three women that I noted above due to a rift
within the hereditary clans.

The previous BC Liberal government recognized
Gloria, Theresa and Darlene in their hereditary roles as recently as the spring of 2017.

Hi Sage,

Adding Joleen to this as she will need to help with this if it goes ahead.

It seems like MMF could do a scrum/avail tomorrow morning with at least one validator listed below, Scott Hannah from Nomoredebts.org.

I've also asked Kelly Newhook for her suggestions locally and she has said she might have other suggestions, not sure if they would work though.

The bill is being introduced this afternoon, so tomorrow morning should work for a scrum. Does this still make sense for you?

Assuming so, should we do it in a more informal way (hallway, his office) or perhaps the hall of honour?

Let us know
Thanks
Rick

Hi – I've resolved Shannon's comments and fiddled with some formatting things.

Good to see many of his comments directly addressed.

I predict we're going to get some feedback about the front end being too long and there not being enough emphasis on the economy from the perspective of a business audience.

We could add in a line somewhere on the affordability measures – putting $ back in people's pockets that they can spend in our economy.

Hi Sage,

I just received updates from EDUC. The new online safety sessions will actually reach 19,000 students, which is now reflected in the SN and BG.

They also confirmed that Central Middle School will do the third performance. They do not know yet who the Central student receiving the proclamation will be, which is now TBD and highlighted in the SN.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thank you,

Erin Richards

Last year, it seems like the PO and FIN debriefed independently, which is great, but we're hoping that this time around we could start with a joint PO/FIN/GCPE debrief from the folks involved.

We are writing a draft news release to announce the Premier's participation, which I will email you this week for review. Your comments are welcome, as well as advice on timing of when to issue the release.

Secondly, we are posting a Convention Program this week. Would it be OK to show the Premier as 'invited' for the luncheon keynote on Friday, April 5?

Current versions of the Pink Shirt Day materials are attached.

Veronica/Melissa – materials attached are for your review. Can you please facilitate PO sign off for the NR as well? His speech writer at HQ has reviewed but asked we get the sign off.

Rick – please pull out what is needed for the PJH briefing on Monday afternoon.

Note: There is one number update in the NR

Also, we secured a 30-member choir from Central Middle School to perform. So we will have approx. 80 students from three schools (Northridge, Central and Reynolds).

The event guest list is also attached for the MO and PO's review before Rick sends it out on Monday. Veronica, we've added the board chair. We're not sure if we should invite the whole board. Please let us know if we should add or remove anybody.

Thanks for all and have a great weekend!

Chatted with Sheena. She will announce at the beginning of the scrum they will take topical questions. We want the ministers up there to help support announcement-related answers. I don't think there's a way to then get the Ministers away gracefully, unless people have ideas to the contrary.

Hi all,

I just wanted to follow up about the scrum format for Thursday's caregiver announcement.

Our thinking is that we can brief the other speakers that once it wraps, they don't need to stay up there at the podium and I can escort them off to the side as the scrum starts. I think it will be difficult if we end the event completely, and have him meet/mingle with guests. It gets hard to pull him out of that and clear/settle the room again.

I assume we want the Ministers still up there as well, as per usual with announcements, or do we want his scrum to be completely separate? We just don't have a lot of options and feel it would be a bit clunky to end an announcement without taking Qs and go to a completely separate location.

Also just wondering if this is a one off for this event, or if we need to consider this for all upcoming events?

Kate/Amber – just wondering about timing and pre-brief. I plan to brief all the speakers at 12pm (start event at 12:15pm). Does the Premier want to join that/have it in his office? Not sure if he'd want a chance to meet the other speakers before we begin.

Thanks,
Joleen

Hi Sage,

Re your ask last week about putting the $800 million into the ad script, it's a pretty tough fit re the copy below:

*British Columbia's 2019 Budget is about making life better for people.
With more support for families.
Strengthening the services we all count on.
And making life more affordable, right now.
Find out what the budget can do for you at BCBudget.ca.*

Wondering if you'd be okay with, instead, highlighting the billions in infrastructure (whatever the number is). That way, we could just change "families" in the second line to "communities", and it would work.

So then we'd have people in the first line and communities in the second line.

Thoughts?

Tks,

Robb

I'm hoping you can help expedite this request from Reynolds Secondary – so sorry for the last minute request.

Reynolds – which has a big Pink Shirt Day assembly on Tuesday, and will be featured in our BC Gov event – has a wall dedicated to anti-bullying.

They're hoping to have the Minister and Premier Horgan sign the attached anti-bullying pledges to frame and put up on their school wall.

This was done last year as well.

Might it be possible to get these signed today?

Once signed, I'll pick them up from you and get them to the school.

Thanks for all,

Erin

Hi Sarah and David,

I have finished my draft of my story, but an editor has asked me to flesh out a couple of points before publication.

What are the B.C. NDP government's plans, if any, to meet with the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition?

I am wondering whether Scott Fraser and/or John Horgan have any plans to meet with WMC?

Gloria George, Theresa Tait-Day and Darlene Glaim are the original WMC directors, and they told me that the Office of the Wet'suwet'en and hereditary chiefs have shunned them for supporting Coastal GasLink (the three Wet'suwet'en women have been stripped of their hereditary titles, according to Unist'ot'en supporters).

WMC wrote a letter to the Premier dated Sept. 17, 2018, to introduce the group, and asked for a meeting with the Premier in the spirit of collaboration.

What is the status of that?

The previous BC Liberal government recognized the three women as genuine Wet'suwet'en Nation hereditary leaders, but I am wondering whether the BC NDP government also sees them as legitimate hereditary leaders or not?

Brent. Below is answer to your questions. Cheers.

- We can confirm the previous government provided $30,000 to support the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition (WMC).
- The coalition still exists today. They are incorporated federally and the details are available online here.

- We recommend you connect with the WMC directly to confirm current membership.

Hi Sarah,

There are some details in B.C. Supreme Court, based on Coastal GasLink and Unist'ot'en filings.

CGL notes that the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition incorporated as a not-for-profit group in August, 2015, for instance, with the three women as directors.

The coalition supports CGL.

Hi David and FYI Sarah,

What is the current status of the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition, which received $30,000 in funding from each of the previous BC Liberal government and Coastal GasLink?

I am told that Gloria George, Theresa Tait-Day and Darlene Glaim are still directors (Darlene temporarily stepped down in 2017).

They told me that the coalition still exists and has not been dismantled. Could you confirm?

Also, who are the other directors? (At one point, there were two others, including Herb Naziel, if I recall).

I have finished a draft of my upcoming story. It is now scheduled to be posted online on Sunday and published in Monday's Globe print edition (though that could change if there is breaking news that bumps my story).

For now, I would need your response by noon PT on Saturday, though this afternoon would be better.

I could insert your details tomorrow, but I will be filing my story for editing late this afternoon to get the ball rolling on the editing process.

I see that the BC NDP government's Indigenous Relations Minister Scott Fraser met in May, 2018, with Wet'suwet'en hereditary chiefs, but those meetings did not include the three women that I noted above due to a rift within the hereditary clans.

The previous BC Liberal government recognized Gloria, Theresa and Darlene in their hereditary roles as recently as the spring of 2017.

Hi Sage

I hope this quick note finds you well. I wanted to personally send a note to see if you were able to come by the Clean BC celebration Wednesday night. We hope to see you there.

You're invited...

Last December, Premier John Horgan's government called on BC Green leader Andrew Weaver to deliver a plan that redefined the province's role as a climate leader: CleanBC. It holds the promise of a better, healthier, more competitive and more affordable future that will benefit all British Columbians.

It's leadership worthy of celebration and you're invited to join us to raise a glass and do just that.

WHEN: Wednesday, February 27 | 7-10pm

WHERE: Steamship Grill & Bar, 470 Belleville St, Victoria

Hi all –

I'd like to initiate a budget debrief call to specifically talk through the lock-up – experience of the stakeholders and media, logistical set-up, lessons from last year etc. We made several adjustments this past year and will likely want to make more for the year to come based on our collective experience last week.

I've cc'd Olivia who will help us organize a time, hopefully for later this week.

Thanks!

Sage, it looks good but I think it would help to require a description of the deliverable, not as the lead of a news release but take-away conclusion. For example the purpose could be to announce the extension of childcare subsidies but the take-away would be that core audiences are aware of wider childcare opportunities and how to access them. Ideally, we would focus communicators on the image they want to leave the audience with, not just the pure content. I realize this is a media plan, narrower than a communications strategy, but I think we should encourage them to think more broadly about the deliverable.

Subject: ALR issue in Surrey

FYI: The ALR issue has come up again. Stakeholders are very disappointed and angry that none of the provincial ministers including the Agricultural Minister have kept their word as promised. They claim that they were specifically assured that all old permits and those that have gone through the process of pre-loading will be grandfathered under old rules, but this has not happened. They also claim that there were several promises made that multi generational families will be able to apply for a bigger home to ALC, but they say that under new regulations there is no clause which makes it possible for them to do so. They have said that the politicians have betrayed them and they will soon be taking some action against the government.

Hi all,

I wanted to follow up on the format for COFI luncheon. They have proposed the following agenda, which includes 15 min remarks and 20 mins of Q&A:

12:15pm – Lunch begins, intro remarks

12:45pm – Premier introduced by lunch sponsor

12:50pm – Premier speaks

1:05/1:10pm – moderated Q&A with COFI CEO, using Pidgeonhole

1:25pm – thank you

1:30pm – event wraps

Audience is about 650 people, open to media.

I don't believe the Q&A portion was ever agreed to or signed off, so please let me know what you would prefer.

Also wanted to check in on scrum and see if we want to plan for one here?

Thanks,
Joleen

Hi all,

Attached is a template for us to use for any and all subsequent PJH media plans.

That is, any availability that is more than a scrum - e.g. a weekly scrum or an announcement scrum. Recent examples include Catalyst/Paper Excellence, First Ministers Conference, Year End, LNY, S/A media visits, Throne Speech, etc.

The template will help organize our work as well as clarify roles and responsibilities.

I don't envision this template as being rigid – additions and subtractions are welcome, as circumstances require.

Thanks,

Sage

The Premier will take questions tomorrow, so I am assuming that he will not do so today? There will be no Q&A from the podium, and Fleming can take questions off to the side if there are any, while the Premier mingles with the kids.

Subject: Premier Key points Victoria Chamber speech

Here are the key points from the Premiers Speech – I have highlighted the phrase 'foregone opportunity' because it seems to be his preferred phrase when speaking about ICBC and BCHydro

-Budget 2019 – continue with work we were doing, issues that matter to people, significant challenges for businesses going forward but doing it from a place of strength – economy, labor numbers etc.. That being said we do have threats, Trump and US Tariffs, international trade.

-Childcare is an economic question, we need the labour force to be strong

-Washington state – positive working relationship with Cascadia, recognizing together we are the 5th largest economy in the world. Climate change, salmon, orcas are all economic problems, not social problems.

-Inherited Challenges - Challenges of ICBC and BC Hydro: Billions of dollars in foregone opportunity because of choices of the previous government. (Buying at $100 and selling at $25 joke in reference to IPP seemed to play well). Consequence is not just higher rates and deferred debt, but its billions of dollars that we will not have to invest in people, infrastructure and industries. He uses this to segue into how their bills will go down because we are eliminating PST on Hydro for businesses.

-People love living in BC, but sure wish they had a doctor, wish their kids schools weren't so cramped.

-E&N corridor – talking about the realities of projects/solutions that we thought would be so easy to resolve.

-Working on solutions for Hydro and ICBC (reminding people why we have public auto insurance)

-BC Ferries another challenge – 22 million passengers with increased cost and decreased service, talked about us restoring ferry services

-Services, infrastructure, healthcare – talked about Minister Dix on creating a new way of delivering healthcare, fair pharmacare, NPs, Urgent primary care centres. Talked about recruiting doctors and how they can't be trained overnight, family practice not as attractive to new generation of doctors.

-Addressing root causes of poverty fundamental to success of all communities – poverty reduction plan

-All of these are key initiatives to success of their business and economy

-Climate Change – challenge of our time. Have to adapt if we are going to be part of the solution and not the problem. Clean BC - If we are going to reduce our emissions it has to come from transportation and housing.

-LNG - largest investment in Canadian history, lists of number of construction jobs this will create and revenue that will be directly invested in services for British Columbians.

-Housing – done lots, more to do – we need more supply to meet the needs of growing families. If you are going to recruit and retain we have a responsibility to lay the foundation of housing for these workers. Investing $7 billion in this housing plan.

-Need to train these people – 2900 spaces in STEM at universities in BC

-$50 Million in broadband across the province, remote communities can be connected to businesses and their customers.

-An economy that works for everyone – at the core is reconciliation for indigenous people. Mentions gaming revenues to indigenous people, uses TSouke nation as an example in ingenuity.

-Significant Tax relief in this budget - $800 million in partnering with Federal Government, we need to ensure we attract new investment everyday and remain competitive.

-Need to fix transportation challenges and build our communities for the future – building the infrastructure we need outside of the city.

-Need to take our competitive advantages and dial them up – uses Royal BC Museum as an example

Hi all,

Some problems with the speaking notes today.

I don't believe we got an update on the name of Central student. I missed that in my review and should have corrected, but hopefully we can also rely on respective ministries and writing teams to confirm TBC info when we get to the day of an event.

Additionally, the SN did not reflect the agenda. The SN had him thanking the students for the performance when they were to perform afterwards.

I hoping we can work together to avoid these problems in the future.

Thanks,

Sage

Subject: UPDATED MATERIALS: Caregiver Rate Increase

Hello,

Please note the following updates to materials for tomorrow's caregiver rate increase event:

- 1) News Release:
 - Quote added from Grand Chief Ed John (NR quote only, no event participation)
 - Minister Conroy's quote has been updated, to minimize duplication with GCEJ quote
 - All Ministries have approved the release, is in final
- 2) Questions and Answers:
 - New question added – Q5 –MCFD has identified a potential issue with the Child in the Home of a Relative program, which was discontinued in 2010 however some families continue to receive payments under the program. I understand that MCFD is engaging in proactive communication to alert these families to the benefits of the Extended Family Program, which is one of the programs being enhanced by govt. and is part of the announcement. Minister Conroy is prepared to speak to this issue if it comes up during the scrum.
- 3) Premier's Speaking Notes:
 - The speakers' list on page 1 has been updated
 - A change has been made in describing the increase to the home share program – it is the program, not the rate, that is getting a 15% lift
- 4) No changes to SDPR Issues Note on CLBC Home Share program information note

Sage: I will send you a chart with figures as a supporting document for this briefing, in the event the Premier wants a full breakdown of the % increases by caregiver type and age of person receiving care. This information is contained in a table, and will be provided as a URL link in the NR.

Hi Sage,

The speaking notes not reflecting the agenda was entirely my fault. I originally had him thanking the students for their attendance, but realize now that this line was changed when it went through review by my supervisor, and I didn't catch it. I'm very sorry about that.

In terms of the Central Middle School students, I added their names to version 6, which was then updated to version 7 when I included the additional context for the comments about Carol Todd. I've attached the email thread here. It looks like the Premier was given version 6 and not 7, and I'm not sure when that might have happened. I didn't see a final copy after you and I worked on those last-minute funding lines.

Thank you for bringing this to our attention, and my apologies again for not being more on the ball.

Request

What are the B.C. NDP government's plans, if any, to meet with the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition?

I am wondering whether Scott Fraser and/or John Horgan have any plans to meet with WMC?

s.13; s.16

Gloria George, Theresa Tait-Day and Darlene Glaim are the original WMC directors, and they told me that the Office of the Wet'suwet'en and hereditary chiefs have shunned them for supporting Coastal GasLink (the three Wet'suwet'en women have been stripped of their hereditary titles, according to Unist'ot'en supporters).

WMC wrote a letter to the Premier dated Sept. 17, 2018, to introduce the group, and asked for a meeting with the Premier in the spirit of collaboration.

What is the status of that?

s.13; s.16

s.13; s.16

The previous BC Liberal government recognized the three women as genuine Wet'suwet'en Nation hereditary leaders, but I am wondering whether the BC NDP government also sees them as legitimate hereditary leaders or not?

s.13; s.16

Can the B.C. government comment on the latest filings by Michael Lee Ross, who includes an affidavit by Warner Naziel and I have a copy of that affidavit. Mr. Naziel seeks to discredit the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition (WMC), and I am wondering whether the B.C. NDP government recognizes WMC as a legitimate group? The previous BC Liberal government and John Rustad recognized WMC as legitimate.

s.13; s.16

Warner Naziel and others seeking to discredit WMC note that it received $30,000 each from CGL and the previous BC Liberal government.

What funding did the B.C. government (current and previous) and CGL provide to the Office of the Wet'suwet'en and Dark House?

Hello,

As discussed, we will need to compile a slightly expanded QA (see current attached) for the BCBC Roundtable on Friday.

The additional topics are as follows:

1. Current Challenges (trade, wildfires etc)
2. Tax competitiveness/general competitiveness
3. EHT – many companies will get a break
4. CBAs – benefits to construction, skills shortage
5. Mining Industry (positive outlook)
6. Environmental Assessment
7. Professional Reliance
8. Oil & Gas (Kinder Morgan and coastal gas link)
9. Where is our economic plan? (include answer about dated view that economic and social plans are separate entities)
10. Current Commodity Prices (include context for specific industries)
11. Investment success stories/job creation (LNG, Fujitsu, infrastructure investments)
12. Supercluster. Why didn't budget include investment? What are we doing for tech?
13. Worried about a future economic downturn (address fears for dark clouds, how our gov would act in the event of a recession)
14. Foreign Buyers Tax & Land Redevelopment
15. BC Assessment "Highest and best use"

Can everyone send lines for these topics to me by 12 noon tomorrow?

Please also send any additional topics that I may have missed and I will add to the list.

I will then compile and deliver to PJH by 3pm for a 3:30 briefing. Let me know if you have questions.

Hi Sage,

There is not really much of a theme to things that are confirmed in and around April 1.

Two things about that. First, we don't really have themes strongly for weeks on a general basis. I think it would be good to try to do so. Perhaps that could be a conversation.

More specifically, the legislation being introduced in the week before April 1 and the week of April 1 are loosely themed around the Environment and Consumer Protection respectively. (Legislation is below)

Let me know if you need more information on any of this.

I must have accidentally deleted the Health version – I can't find it in my inbox.

However! My requested change is to the (wait for it...) lede!

I'm hoping we can do a connect/contrast in the first two paras. Some of this can be achieved by juggling existing content.

This graph could move up to the top and be introduced with an emotive statement about how important health care is.

Because it asks questions about the Premier and a request from WMC to meet the Premier, MIRR MO wanted you to review.

Request

What are the B.C. NDP government's plans, if any, to meet with the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition?
I am wondering whether Scott Fraser and/or John Horgan have any plans to meet with WMC?

s.13; s.16

Gloria George, Theresa Tait-Day and Darlene Glaim are the original WMC directors, and they told me that the Office of the Wet'suwet'en and hereditary chiefs have shunned them for supporting Coastal GasLink (the three Wet'suwet'en women have been stripped of their hereditary titles, according to Unist'ot'en supporters).

WMC wrote a letter to the Premier dated Sept. 17, 2018, to introduce the group, and asked for a meeting with the Premier in the spirit of collaboration.

What is the status of that?

s.13; s.16

The previous BC Liberal government recognized the three women as genuine Wet'suwet'en Nation hereditary leaders, but I am wondering whether the BC NDP government also sees them as legitimate hereditary leaders or not?

s.13; s.16

Can the B.C. government comment on the latest filings by Michael Lee Ross, who includes an affidavit by Warner Naziel and I have a copy of that affidavit. Mr. Naziel seeks to discredit the Wet'suwet'en Matrilineal Coalition (WMC), and I am wondering whether the B.C. NDP government recognizes WMC as a legitimate group? The previous BC Liberal government and John Rustad recognized WMC as legitimate.

s.13; s.16

Warner Naziel and others seeking to discredit WMC note that it received $30,000 each from CGL and the previous BC Liberal government.

What funding did the B.C. government (current and previous) and CGL provide to the Office of the Wet'suwet'en and Dark House?

- 1.5 million renters in BC
- Nearly 1 in 3 British Columbians are renters
- More than half of the households in Vancouver are renters
- Almost half of BC renters are in unaffordable homes, meaning they are spending more than 30% of their income on rent
- 1 in 5 are spending more than 50% of their income on rent

Hello Amber,

I am contacting Premier John Horgan to ask a personal favour. ^{s.22}
^{s.22} They have a volunteer recruitment campaign tied to basketball, coinciding with March Madness. Every time they successfully recruit a new big brother, they hang a purple basketball net. This video says it better than I can:
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JH-Z8Qj5hsc> We are looking for Premier Horgan to support the campaign via social media -- a quick video clip or even just a tweet. He has often talked about what it was like to grow up without a dad and how basketball helped give him some focus and discipline in high school.

There are 1,200 kids in the Lower Mainland on a wait list for big brothers and they wait up to 3 years. Sometimes by the time they get a big brother, it's too late to turn their lives around, so it would be wonderful to help reduce that list.

I realize you must get a ton of asks from charities so thanks for flagging this one to his attention! I do believe it's an issue close to his heart and his personal values.

Many thanks.

These stats are all based on data from the 2016 census. See the two highlighted notes – you can decide whether that level of detail on the source / math is needed.

- 1.5 million renters in BC (NOTE: number based on: 591,550 households that rent out of a total of 1,832,540 households, or approximately 1 in 3; this works out to approximately 1.5 million, with a slight amount of growth factored in, out of the total population of B.C.)
- Nearly 1 in 3 British Columbians are renters
- More than half of Vancouver households are rental households (note this is households, not individuals)
- Almost half of BC renters are in unaffordable homes, meaning they are spending more than 30% of their income on rent
- 1 in 10 are in overcrowded units
- 1 in 5 are spending more than 50% of their income on rent
- 21.5% of renters are minors; almost 10% are seniors.
- There is no difference between genders.

Most of this data (at the provincial level – not the Vancouver number) is also available on the Canadian Rental Housing Index website (<http://rentalhousingindex.ca/>) which pulls from the 2016 census.

Here's the student loan quote.

"The second thing about student loan interest, is I think we have to be a little bit concerned that any loan that carries no interest encourages people to go into a lot of debt. And students may get carried away with debt. When I was the Minister responsible for the universities and colleges, I came across students who had run up $80,000 in debt. And they had no way to get out of it, and they were only 23 years old. So that's the concern we always have with interest-free loans, is why wouldn't you just go and borrow as much as you possibly can? And then why would you ever pay it back? Think about that. If you're given $80,000 and there's no interest, why would you ever pay it back? You just wait for it to fade away with inflation, thirty years later you might pay it back. So these are the kinds of things they have done to make people happy with gifts, but the gifts are not a happy life plan." – Andrew Wilkinson, RedFM, Feb 20, 2019

Hi Rob,
Some info for you. I will note this is the second time in recent memory Wilkinson has put in display how out of touch he is – he also made comments about the removal of interest on students loans being a disincentive to paying them back.

From Ministry of Municipal Affairs & Housing, except the affordability and overcrowding stats – those are from the Rental Housing Index done by BC Non-Profit Housing Assoc:

These stats are all based on data from the 2016 census.

- 1.5 million renters in BC (NOTE: number based on: 591,550 households that rent out of a total of 1,832,540 households, or approximately 1 in 3; this works out to approximately 1.5 million, with a slight amount of growth factored in, out of the total population of B.C.)
- Nearly 1 in 3 British Columbians are renters
- More than half of City of Vancouver households are rental households (note this is households, not individuals)
- Almost half of BC renters are in unaffordable homes, meaning they are spending more than 30% of their income on rent
- 1 in 10 are in overcrowded units
- 1 in 5 are spending more than 50% of their income on rent
- 21.5% of renters are minors; almost 10% are seniors.
- There is no difference between genders.

Most of this data (at the provincial level – not the Vancouver number) is also available on the Canadian Rental Housing Index website (<http://rentalhousingindex.ca/>) which pulls from the 2016 census.

And I would be remiss if I did not offer the counterpoint of our actions for renters.

- Created a Rental Housing Task Force to review tenancy laws to make sure renters are protected, and landlords have a fair market for their properties.
- Historic investment in affordable housing - $7 billion over 10 years - will build 114,000 affordable homes.
- This includes directly funding 37,000 affordable rental units:
 - o New rental homes for seniors so they can stay in their communities.
 - o New homes for Indigenous people.
 - o New housing for women and children fleeing violence.
 - o New student housing.
 - o New homes with 24/7 support for people who are homeless or at-risk of homelessness.
 - o And mixed income rental housing for low, moderate and middle income earners..
- Cut the maximum rent increase to ease pressure on people whose wages haven't kept pace with rent hikes.
- Helping make rents affordable for more low-income families by increasing Rental Assistance Program benefits by an average of 17%.
- Increased SAFER benefits for seniors by an average of 42%.
- To protect renters during the renovation and demolition of rental housing - doubled the notice period so renters now have 4 months to find another home.
- Increased penalties for landlords who act in bad faith so wrongly evicted tenants get 12 months' rent, instead of 2.
- Gave tenants the right of first refusal in case they want to move back into the newly renovated home.
- Fixed the fixed-term lease loophole and we eliminated geographic rent increases that caused outrageous rent hikes in some neighbourhoods.
- Empowered local governments to zone for rental to create more rental homes.

Subject: FOR TOMORROW -- BCBC- Additional topics for QAs

Hello,

As discussed, we will need to compile a slightly expanded QA (see current attached) for the BCBC Roundtable on Friday.

The additional topics are as follows:

1. Current Challenges (trade, wildfires etc)
2. Tax competitiveness/general competitiveness
3. EHT – many companies will get a break
4. CBAs – benefits to construction, skills shortage
5. Mining Industry (positive outlook)
6. Environmental Assessment
7. Professional Reliance
8. Oil & Gas (Kinder Morgan and coastal gas link)
9. Where is our economic plan? (include answer about dated view that economic and social plans are separate entities)
10. Current Commodity Prices (include context for specific industries)
11. Investment success stories/job creation (LNG, Fujitsu, infrastructure investments)
12. Supercluster. Why didn't budget include investment? What are we doing for tech?
13. Worried about a future economic downturn (address fears for dark clouds, how our gov would act in the event of a recession)
14. Foreign Buyers Tax & Land Redevelopment
15. BC Assessment "Highest and best use"

Can everyone send lines for these topics to me by 12 noon tomorrow?

Please also send any additional topics that I may have missed and I will add to the list.

I will then compile and deliver to PJH by 3pm for a 3:30 briefing. Let me know if you have questions.

Thank you!
