The federal principles have arrived.

We will do some analysis.

Interestingly, more focussed on how the federation should work than on any nuts and bolts about economic recovery. Big focus on "agreeing to work together as a federation".

Hi Jon,

No apology needed, no doubt you're swamped (and pulling off amazing feats of pandemic governance without a playbook, I might add).

No doubt your schedule is busier and has less flex than mine, so why don't you suggest 3-4 slots that work and I'll juggle to accommodate. Attached is a BC-specific version of our framework deck.

Look forward to chatting.

Cheers

Hi Jon,

FYI—see below + attached. Wanted to make sure you saw it as well as undoubtedly you are (or will be) neck deep in the "what's next" planning as the gov't shifts from immediate relief and into recovery.

Happy to discuss at your convenience if you have questions, comments, or ideas for how we might best contribute.

Hope you and your family are managing alright through all of this.

Cheers

Hello,

Attached is a framework that we (Clean Energy Canada) put together with principles, vision, goals, and a framework for actions to guide a Resilient Economic Recovery stimulus package for Canada. While this was done for the federal government I think it may be useful for B.C. as well, and in particular for the framing for the recovery task force that you've created.

Let us know if you have any questions or would like to discuss. If you've interest in this framework, we could modify it for B.C. and send that tomorrow.

Hope you're all healthy and holding up during this crazy time.

Subject: Watershed Security Fund for B.C.
Attachments: Economic Stimulus, BC Watershed Security.pdf; BC Watershed Security Fund Letters of Support.pdf; Overview-Watershed-Security-Fund.pdf

Hi Jon,

I hope you and your family are doing well, staying safe and healthy. I am following up on our phone conversation a few weeks back about a B.C. Watershed Security Fund. Since we spoke last a lot has changed in B.C. and around the world with COVID 19. As the government explores options to kick-start British Columbia's immediate and long-term economic recovery we believe that a BC Watershed Security Fund can be a critical part of this stimulus package, creating good jobs in rural areas and ensuring resilience to future crises.

Attached to this e-mail are:

- 1) Strengthening Climate Resilience through BC Watershed Security: A Plan for Economic Stimulus and Reconciliation and A Watershed Security Fund Policy Brief
- 2) Letters of Support for a B.C. Watershed Security Fund, and
- 3) A Watershed Security Fund Overview.

You can also find a more detailed position paper on a Watershed Security Fund for B.C. Here.

We're currently working with Local Governments, First Nations and Community Groups to compile a list of 'shovel ready' projects that a Watershed Security Fund could invest in for immediate and long-term economic recovery after the crisis has passed. This list should be finalized in the next few weeks and I will share it with you once it's completed.

The CodeBlue BC community across British Columbians continues to grow as people are recognizing now more than ever the importance of access to safe and secure drinking water supplies, locally grown food, and the ability to effectively plan and respond to crisis impacting our local livelihoods.

Please let me know if you have any immediate questions. I would be more than happy to connect on a call to discuss both the Watershed Security Fund opportunity and how it fits into the priorities of the Economic Recovery Task Force.

Looking forward to talking with you more about this Jon.

All the best,

Coree

Subject: Enviro Con Calls - Next week
Attachments: ENGOs re ERTF April 9th.pdf

Hi Both,

Premier and Minister Heyman will be holding a couple con calls with environmental leaders next week that I wanted to flag for your attention. The first will take place on Tuesday and is in response to their concerns regarding lack of representation on the Econ task force. (letter attached). The 2nd call is to engage with members on the Climate Solutions Council regarding how cleanbc can be part of economic recovery efforts. We are confirming a briefing ahead of these calls for the Premier on Monday. If you would like to take part in the briefing, or either call – let me know.

Tues, Apr 21 - Organizing for Change Stakeholder Call:

To respond to their letter from last week (attached) in which they raised concerns about the makeup of the economic Recovery task force and urge for a rebuilding of a low carbon economy.

Call will also give Premier and Minister a chance to let them know about work in the ministry that is still continuing (related to species at risk, and other climate/CleanBC programs), and will allow ENGOs to share how their work is shifting given pandemic.

Attendees:

Lisa Matthaus, Organizing for Change
Jessica Clogg, ED, West Coast Environmental Law
Bruce Password, ED, CPAWS BC
Aaron Hill, ED, Watershed Watch Salmon Society
Kai Nagata, CD, Dogwood
Hannah Askew, ED, Sierra Club BC
Christianne Wilhelmson, ED, Georgia Straight Alliance
John Bergenske, interim ED, Wildsight
Sonia Theroux and Logan McIntosh, co-Eds, Leadnow
Karen Tam Wu, Regional Director, Pembina Institute

Fri, Apr 24 - Climate Council Stakeholder Call:

To respond to ideas about how cleanbc can be part of economic recovery. Climate Council is made up of high profile British Columbians that serve as advisors to government; purpose is also assuring them that climate is still a priority for this govt despite immediate challenges of the pandemic.

Attendees:

Colleen Giroux-Schmidt, Vice President, Corporate Relations, Innergex Renewable Energy*
Merran Smith, Executive Director, Clean Energy Canada*
David Black, President, MoveUP
Lee Brain, Mayor, City of Prince Rupert
Ian Bruce, Chief Operating Officer, David Suzuki Foundation

Matt Horne, Climate Policy Manager, City of Vancouver
