Doug, the cabinet working group on the Wet'suwet'en issue will get an update Monday afternoon by conference call on the talks. I'll get you looped in. I've attached the framework we've developed for Scott so you have it. He's travelling up today. I'll also forward Don's notes on Nathan's work in the last 36 hours. Although you've stayed back because of your statutory decision-making role, this issue is strictly to find a peaceful solution and it would be good to have you engaged through the group.

Doug, I'm fine with content but the first sentence is a little garbled and needs clean—up. I've copied Matt so he can do that for you.

As your Stikine MLA I've been working on the inside of the institution I was elected to on immediate and, at the same time, future looking solutions to the current situation faced by BC, Canada and the Wet'suwet'en. In recent weeks as your local representative I've met in person or had direct conversations with Wet'suwet'en hereditary chiefs, the Office of Wet'suwet'en, the RMCP, the Premiers Office, the Premier, the Minister of Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation, federal MP Taylor Bachrach, the federal government, liaison Nathan Cullen and others. The immediate objective is to find a peaceful, safe resolution to the current situation. At the same time, the longer-term objective is about rights and title as outlined and committed to in the joint statement issued by Wet'suwet'en hereditary chiefs, the Premier and the Minister of Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation issued Feb. 7, 2019 that is included below. I will continue this important work as your local representative, as I did before becoming an MLA, and as I will as a member of the community long after my time as an MLA is done.
