Hi team,

Do you have a list of folks planning to do statements regarding the December 6th memorial?

NEWS RELEASE

Legal cannabis: help B.C. lead the way on safety, health

VANCOUVER - Government is inviting British Columbians to share their views about how the Province can keep young people, neighbourhoods and roads safe after Canada legalizes non-medical cannabis next year.

"We want to hear from as many people as possible about how we can best protect our kids, keep our roads safe, and lock criminals out of the non-medical cannabis industry," said Minister of Public Safety and Solicitor General Mike Farnworth. "It's critical that we work together to ensure the legalization of non-medical cannabis results in safer, healthier communities."

Today through Nov. 1, people can share their views about B.C.'s approach to non-medical cannabis legalization at: engage.gov.bc.ca/BCcannabisregulation/
(<http://www.engage.gov.bc.ca/BCcannabisregulation/>)

Under the federal government's new laws, provinces and territories have the power to regulate distribution and retail sales of non-medical cannabis. British Columbia can also upgrade traffic-safety laws to protect people on the roads from cannabis impaired drivers.

"I hope British Columbians will get involved, be heard, and help us shape how we maximize public health and safety when non-medical cannabis is legalized by the federal government next year," said Farnworth. "While we already have laws banning drug-affected driving, and they remain in effect, this is also an opportunity for people to let us know how we can make them stronger and more effective."

In addition to the open public engagement process, government will also proactively seek opinions from a representative cross-section of British Columbians on their views concerning non-medical cannabis regulations, with a random telephone survey.

Local governments, Indigenous governments and organizations, and stakeholders from law enforcement, health, agriculture and other sectors will also have specific engagement opportunities with the Province on cannabis regulation later this fall. As well, the Province has invited the Union of B.C. Municipalities to establish a standing committee on cannabis legalization so local governments can share their experience, knowledge and concerns as B.C.'s regulatory framework develops.

"Local governments welcome the start of the consultation process as we move towards creating a made-in-B.C. approach to legalization," said Union of B.C. Municipalities president Murry Krause. "Our members want to discuss issues like taxation, retail sales and personal cultivation in advance the regulatory framework being set in place. The proposed standing committee sounds like a good vehicle to support discussions."

Take Money Away From Gangs, Give It To Victims Instead

TEAM MICHAEL LEE BC THURSDAY 12 OCTOBER 2017

I believe that when crime – particularly organized crime – threatens our citizens' right to live in safe, caring communities, then we need to fight back.

I need your help. The NDP wants to stop a critical program that allows police to seize drug money from gangs.

The program, called civil forfeiture, lets the authorities take cash, jewelry, and fancy cars away from gangsters. Since our government introduced it in 2006, $73 million in proceeds of crime has been seized, with $31 million of that re-invested to crime prevention and victim compensation.

But NDP Attorney General David Eby has worked against this program for years.

In 2009, when police tried to act after a raid that found:

A 9 mm handgun, a M1 carbine assault rifle, ammunition for both, as well as marijuana, cocaine, crack cocaine, heroin, methamphetamine and money were seized from the townhouse....

Eby said "It is very concerning that they would pursue forfeiture in a situation where they were unable to get a criminal conviction."

You can read the full story here.

If crack cocaine and an assault rifle isn't enough, when does David Eby think the police should act?

I believe we need to use every tool at our disposal to keep our communities safe. And I support our civil forfeiture program because it takes away money from gangs and gives it to victims instead.

If you agree with me, please support my campaign by donating $5 here.

Join Us.

Thank you,

-Michael Lee

Hi Mike,

An offender in Vancouver failed to return to his halfway house last night and now a Canada wide warrant has been issued to track him down. In 2015 when Darren Wheatley did the same thing you spoke about what the government needs to implement to better monitor offenders – especially the ones expected to reoffend. You talked about Alberta's GPS monitoring system that is used. I'm wondering what is being done now that you are in government to try and fix this problem where violent offenders released into the community continue to disappear from their halfway houses.

Are you available for an interview today?

You can reach me via email or on my cell at 778-833-1853

Allison

Attachments: Estimates - time spent 2017.docx

Hey everyone,

With estimates slated to get underway I wanted to give a brief run through of how it works and what is scheduled so far.

How it works:

For those that are unfamiliar with it, estimates is the main way in which opposition gets to ask questions about Government finances. Estimates occurs in "Committee B" (also called the big house) which takes place in the main chamber, and in "Committee A" (also called the little house) which takes place in the Douglas Fir Room. The opposition gets to nominate three ministry estimates to take place in the big house and all others occur in the little house. During estimates, your minister will answer questions from the opposition on almost anything that refers to the ministry.

Your Minister must be present for the duration of their estimates and you should coordinate with your DM's office to ensure your Minister is appropriately briefed ahead of time and that the required ministry staff are present during estimates. On that note, if you have specific concerns about the order/timing of individual topics, crown corporations, etc, please reach out to your opposition critic to coordinate.

The schedule:

The little house will begin estimates this Thursday and continue until all estimates are complete. Below is the order in which ministries will do estimates, the approximate time the opposition thinks they will take, and a tentative schedule for next week. Also attached is how long each Ministry took last year for you to have a rough idea of how long to expect.
